PREFACE

This third supplement to the 1973 edition of the District of Columbia Code has been prepared and published under the provisions of section 285b(6) of title 2, United States Code, as amended by Public Law 94-386, approved August 14, 1976. This supplement contains the additions to and changes in the general and permanent laws relating to or in force in the District of Columbia, enacted during the Ninety-third Congress and the first Session of the Ninety-fourth Congress by Congress and by the Council of the District of Columbia (except laws applicable in the District of Columbia by reason of being general and permanent laws of the United States).

On completion of the second supplement to the 1973 edition of the District of Columbia Code, the Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives fulfilled his statutory responsibility to prepare and publish until January 2, 1975 (the effective date of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act), new editions of the District of Columbia Code and annual cumulative supplements thereto.

On January 27, 1976, the Council of the District of Columbia adopted Resolution 1-182, containing a request to Congress that the Law Revision Counsel continue the preparation and publication of the supplements to the District of Columbia Code until the current cycle of supplements is completed. Subsequent to transmittal of the resolution to Congress by the Chairman of the District of Columbia Council (see Cong. Rec., vol. 122, p. H871, Daily Issue; Exec. Comm. 2487), legislation was enacted (Public Law 94-386, approved August 14, 1976) directing the Law Revision Counsel to prepare and publish annual cumulative supplements to the District of Columbia Code through publication of the fifth annual supplement to the 1973 edition. Thereafter, new editions of the Code, and annual cumulative supplements thereto, are to be prepared and published under the direction of the Council of the District of Columbia.

This supplement, together with the 1973 edition, establishes prima facie those laws in effect on January 18, 1976, except that titles 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 23, and 28, having been enacted into law establish legal evidence of the law contained in those titles.

The 1973 edition of the Code was completely annotated with notes to decisions of the courts affecting the respective sections of the Code. These notes have been brought up to the indicated pages in the following reports:

96 S. Ct. 578; 527 F.2d 1380; 407 F. Supp. 1407; 350 A.2d 224

This supplement continues the practice of setting out notes captioned "Reference in text", "Codification", "Section referred to in other sections", and "Cross references". These notes have proved to be useful to Congress, the bench and bar, and the public.

This supplement has been prepared and published under the supervision of Edward F. Willett, Jr., Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives. Grateful acknowledgment is made of the cooperation by all who have helped in this work, particularly by the staff of the Office of the Law Revision Counsel and by the Government Printing Office.

"(D) The Commission and the Commissioner shall jointly publish from time to time as appropriate, a comprehensive plan for the National Capital, consisting of the elements of the comprehensive plan for the Federal activities in the National Capital developed by the Commission, and the District elements developed by the Commissioner and the Council in accordance with the provisions of this section.

TITLE IV—THE DISTRICT CHARTER

PART A—THE COUNCIL

Subpart 1—Creation of the Council

CREATION AND MEMBERSHIP

SEC. 401. (a) There is established a Council of the District of Columbia; and the members of the Council shall be elected by the registered qualified electors of the District.

(b) (1) The Council established under subsection (a) shall consist of thirteen members elected on a partisan basis. The Chairman and four members shall be elected at large in the District, and eight members shall be elected one each from the eight election wards established, from time to time, under the District of Columbia Election Act. The term of office of the members of the Council shall be four years, except as provided in paragraph (3), and shall begin at noon on January 2 of the year following their election.

(2) In the case of the first election held for the office of member of the Council after the effective date of this title, not more than two of the at-large members (excluding the Chairman) shall be nominated by the same political party. Thereafter, a political party may nominate a number of candidates for the office of at-large member of the Council equal to one less than the total number of at-large members (excluding the Chairman) to be elected in such election.

(3) To fill a vacancy in the Office of Chairman, the Board of Elections and Ethics shall hold a special election in the District on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs, unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise have been held under the provisions of this paragraph. The person elected Chairman to fill a vacancy in the Office of Chairman shall take office on the day in which the Board of Elections and Ethics certifies his election, and shall serve as Chairman only for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy occurred. When the Office of Chairman becomes vacant, the Council shall select one of the elected at-large members of the Council to serve as Chairman and one to serve as Chairman pro tempore until the election of a new Chairman.

(4) Of the members first elected after the effective date of this title, the Chairman and two members elected at-large and four of the members elected from election wards shall serve for four-year terms; and two of the at-large members and four of the members elected from election wards shall serve for two-year terms. The members to serve the four-year terms and the members to serve the two-year terms shall be determined by the Board of Elections and Ethics by lot, except that not more than one of the at-large members nominated by any political party shall serve for any such four-year term.

(c) The Council may establish and select such other officers and employees as it deems necessary and appropriate to carry out the functions of the Council.

(d) (1) In the event of a vacancy in the Council of a member elected from a ward, the Board of Elections and Ethics shall hold a special election in such ward to fill such vacancy on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs, unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise have been held under the provisions of this subsection. The person elected as a member to fill a vacancy on the Council shall take office on the day on which the Board of Elections and Ethics certifies his election, and shall serve as a member of the Council only for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy occurred.

(2) In the event of a vacancy in the office of Mayor, and if the Chairman becomes a candidate for the office of Mayor to fill such vacancy, the office of Chairman shall be deemed vacant as of the date of the filing of his candidacy. In the event of a vacancy in the Council of a member elected at large, other than a vacancy in the office of Chairman, who is affiliated with a political party, the central committee of such political party shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, until the Board of Elections and Ethics can hold a special election to fill such vacancy, and such special election shall be held on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise be held under the provision of this subsection. The person appointed to fill such vacancy shall take office on the date of his appointment and shall serve as a member of the Council until the day on which the Board certifies the election of the member elected to fill such vacancy in either a special election or a general election. The person elected as a member to fill such a vacancy on the Council shall take office on the day on which the Board of Elections and Ethics certifies his election, and shall serve as a member of the Council only for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy occurred. With respect to a vacancy on the Council of a member elected at large who is not affiliated with any political party, the Council shall appoint a similarly nonaffiliated person to fill such vacancy until such vacancy can be filled in a special election in the manner prescribed in this paragraph. Such person appointed by the Council shall take office and serve as a member at the same time and for the same term as a member appointed by a central committee of a political party.

(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, at no time shall there be more than three members (including the Chairman) serving at large on the Council who are affiliated with the same political party. (Amended Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title III, § 306(a), 88 Stat. 458; Aug. 29, 1974, Pub. L. 93-395, § 1(2), 88 Stat. 793.)

ACTS FOR ISSUANCE OF GENERAL OBLIGATION BONDS

SEC. 465. At the end of the twenty-day period specified in section 464, the Mayor may issue general obligation bonds as authorized pursuant to the provisions of sections 461 to 465. An issue of general obligation bonds is hereby defined to be all or any part of an aggregate principal amount of bonds authorized pursuant to such sections, but no indebtedness shall be deemed to have been incurred within the meaning of this Act until such bonds have been sold, delivered, and paid for, and then only to the extent of the principal amount of such bonds so sold and delivered. The bonds of each issue shall be payable in annual installments beginning not more than three years after the date of such bonds and ending not more than thirty years from such date. The amount of said issues to be payable in each year shall be so fixed that when the annual interest is added to the principal amount payable in each year, the total amount payable either serially or to a sinking fund shall be substantially equal. It shall be an immaterial variance if the difference between the largest and smallest amounts of principal and interest so payable during each fiscal year during the term of the general obligation bonds does not exceed 3 per centum of the total authorized amount of such series. Such bonds and coupons may be executed by the facsimile signatures of the officer designated by the act authorizing such bonds, to sign the bonds, within the exception that at least one signature shall be manual. Such bonds may be issued in coupon form in the denomination of $1,000, or $1,000 and $5,000, registrable as to principal only or as to both principal and interest, and if registered as to both principal and interest may be issuable in denominations of multiples of $1,000. Such bonds and the interest thereon may be payable at such place or places within or without the District as the Council may determine. (Amended Aug. 29, 1974, Pub. L. 93-395, § 1(5), 88 Stat. 793.)

Such notice shall state, among other things, that no proposal shall be considered unless there is deposited with the District as a downpayment a certified check or cashier's check for an amount equal to at least 2 per centum of the par amount of general obligation bonds bid for, and the Mayor shall reserve the right to reject any and all bids. (Amended Aug. 29, 1974, Pub. L. 93-395, § 1(6), 88 Stat. 793.)

Subpart 2—Short-Term Borrowing

BORROWING TO MEET APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 471. In the absence of unappropriated available revenues to meet appropriations made pursuant to section 466, the Council may by act authorize the issuance of negotiable notes, in a total amount not to exceed 2 per centum of the total appropriations for the current fiscal year, each of which may be renewed from time to time, but all such notes and renewals thereof shall be paid not later than the close of the fiscal year following that in which such act becomes effective.

BORROWING IN ANTICIPATION OF REVENUES

SEC. 472. For any fiscal year, in anticipation of the collection or receipt of revenues of that fiscal year, the Council may by act authorize the borrowing of money by the execution of negotiable notes of the District, not to exceed in the aggregate at any time outstanding 20 per centum of the total anticipated revenue, each of which shall be designated "Revenue Note for the Fiscal Year 19____". Such notes may be renewed from time to time, but all such notes, together with the renewals, shall mature and be paid not later than the end of the fiscal year for which the original notes have been issued.

NOTES REDEEMABLE PRIOR TO MATURITY

SEC. 473. No notes issued pursuant to this part shall be made payable on demand, but any note may be made subject to redemption prior to maturity on such notice and at such time as may be stated in the note.

SALES OF NOTES

SEC. 474. All notes issued pursuant to this part may be sold at not less than par and accrued interest at private sale without previous advertising.

Subpart 3—Payment of Bonds and Notes

SPECIAL TAX

SEC. 481. (a) The act of the Council authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds pursuant to this title, shall, where necessary, provide for the levy annually of a special tax or charge without limitation as to rate or amount in amounts which, together with other revenues of the District available and applicable for said purposes, will be sufficient to pay the principal of and interest on such bonds and the premium, if any, upon the redemption thereof, as the same respectively become due and payable, which tax shall be levied and collected at the same time and in the same manner as other District taxes are levied and collected, and when collected shall be set aside in a sinking fund and irrevocably dedicated to the payment of such principal, interest, and premium.

(b) The full faith and credit of the District shall be and is hereby pledged for the payment of the principal of and the interest on all general obligation bonds and notes of the District hereafter issued pursuant to subparts 1, 2, and 3 of part E of this title whether or not such pledge be stated in such bonds or notes or in the act authorizing the issuance thereof.

(c) (1) As soon as practicable following the beginning of each fiscal year, the Mayor shall review the amounts of District revenues which have been set aside and deposited in a sinking fund as provided in subsection (a). Such review shall be carried out with a view to determining whether the amounts so set aside and deposited are sufficient to pay the principal of and interest on general obligation bonds issued pursuant to this title, and the premium (if any) upon the redemption thereof, as the same respectively become due and payable. To the extent that the Mayor determines that sufficient District revenues have not been so set aside and deposited, the Federal payment made for the fiscal year within which such review is conducted shall be first utilized to make up any deficit in such sinking fund.

(2) The Comptroller General of the United States shall make annual audits of the amounts set aside and deposited in the sinking fund.

Subpart 4—Tax Exemption; Legal Investment; Water Pollution; Reservoirs; Metro Contributions; and Revenue Bonds

National banking associations are authorized to deal in, underwrite, purchase and sell, for their own accounts or for the accounts of customers, bonds and notes issued by the Council to the same extent as national banking associations are authorized by paragraph seven of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24), to deal in, underwrite, purchase and sell obligations of the United States, States, or political subdivisions thereof. All Federal building and loan associations and Federal savings and loan associations; and banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, and savings and loan associations, domiciled in the District, may purchase, sell, underwrite, and deal in, for their own account or for the account of others, all bonds or notes issued pursuant to this title. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed as relieving any person, firm, association, or corporation from any duty of exercising due and reasonable care in selecting securities for purchase or investment.

WATER POLLUTION

SEC. 487. (a) The Mayor shall annually estimate the amount of the District's principal and interest expense which is required to service District obligations attributable to the Maryland and Virginia pro rata share of District sanitary sewage water works and other water pollution projects which provide service to the local jurisdictions in those States. Such amounts as determined by the Mayor pursuant to the agreements described in subsection (b) shall be used to exclude the Maryland and Virginia share of pollution projects cost from the limitation on the District's capital project obligations as provided in section 603(b).

(b) The Mayor shall enter into agreements with the States and local jurisdictions concerned for annual payments to the District of rates and charges for waste treatment services in accordance with the use and benefits made and derived from the operation of the said waste treatment facilities. Each such agreement shall require that the estimated amount of such rates and charges will be paid in advance, subject to adjustment after each year. Such rates and charges shall be sufficient to cover the cost of construction, interest on capital, operation and maintenance, and the necessary replacement of equipment during the useful life of the facility.

COST OF RESERVOIRS ON POTOMAC RIVER

SEC. 488. (a) The Mayor is authorized to contract with the United States, any State in the Potomac River Basin, any agency or political subdivision thereof, and any other competent State or local authority, with respect to the payment by the District to the United States, either directly or indirectly, of the District's equitable share of any part or parts of the non-Federal portion of the costs of any reservoirs authorized by the Congress for construction on the Potomac River or any of its tributaries. Every such contract may contain such provisions as the Mayor may deem necessary or appropriate.

(b) Unless hereafter otherwise provided by legislation enacted by the Council, all payments made by the District and all moneys received by the District pursuant to any contract made under the authority of this Act shall be paid from, or be deposited in, a fund designated by the Mayor. Charges for water delivered from the District water system for use outside the District may be adjusted to reflect the portions of any payments made by the District under contracts authorized by this Act which are equitably attributable to such use outside the District.

DISTRICT'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE WASHINGTON METROPOLITAN AREA TRANSIT AUTHORITY

SEC. 489. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, beginning with fiscal year 1976 the District share of the cost of the Adopted Regional System described in the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 (83 Stat. 320) [D.C. Such bonds, notes, or other obligations shall be fully negotiable and payable, as to both principal and interest, solely from and secured solely by a pledge of the revenues realized from the property, facilities, developments, and improvements whose financing is undertaken by the issuance of such bonds, notes, or other obligations, including existing facilities to which such new facilities and improvements are related, which financing may be effected through loans made directly or indirectly (including the purchase of mortgages, in those cases described in subsection (b) of this section, notes, or other securities) to any public, quasi-public, or private corporation, partnership, association, person, or other legal entity.

(b) Except in the case of housing, recreation, commercial and industrial development, the property, facilities, developments, and improvements being financed may not be mortgaged as additional security for bonds, notes, or other obligations, but in no event shall any property owned by the District of Columbia or the United States be mortgaged for the purpose of this section.

(c) Any and all such bonds, notes, or other obligations shall not be general obligations of the District and shall not be a pledge of or involve the faith and credit or the taxing power of the District, shall not constitute a debt of the District, and shall not constitute lending of the public credit for private undertakings as contained in section 602(a)(2).

(d) Any and all such bonds, notes, or other obligations shall be issued pursuant to an act of the Council without the necessity of submitting the question of such issuance to the registered qualified electors of the District for approval or disapproval.

(2) identifying the Act authorizing such purpose;

(c) (1) Except acts of the Council which are submitted to the President in accordance with the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921 [31 U.S.C. 1 et seq.], any act which the Council determines according to section 412(a), should take effect immediately because of emergency circumstances, and acts proposing amendments to title IV of this Act, the Chairman of the Council shall transmit to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the President of the Senate a copy of each act passed by the Council and signed by the Mayor, or vetoed by the Mayor and re-passed by two-thirds of the Council present and voting (and with respect to which the President has not sustained the Mayor's veto), and every act passed by the Council and allowed to become effective by the Mayor without his signature. Except as provided in paragraph (2), no such act shall take effect until the end of the 30-day period (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, and any day on which either House is not in session) beginning on the day such act is transmitted by the Chairman to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate and then only if during such 30-day period both Houses of Congress do not adopt a concurrent resolution disapproving such act. The provisions of section 604, except subsections (d), (e), and (f) of such section, shall apply with respect to any concurrent resolution disapproving any act pursuant to this paragraph.

(2) In the case of any such act transmitted by the Chairman with respect to any Act codified in title 22, 23, or 24 of the District of Columbia Code, such act shall take effect at the end of the 30-day period beginning on the day such act is transmitted by the Chairman to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate only if during such 30-day period one House of Congress does not adopt a resolution disapproving such act. The provisions of section 604, relating to an expedited procedure for consideration of resolutions, shall apply to a simple resolution disapproving such act as specified in this paragraph.

BUDGET PROCESS; LIMITATIONS ON BORROWING AND SPENDING

SEC. 603. (a) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as making any change in existing law, regulation, or basic procedure and practice relating to the respective roles of the Congress, the President, the Federal Office of Management and Budget, and the Comptroller General of the United States in the preparation, review, submission, examination, authorization, and appropriation of the total budget of the District of Columbia government.

(b) (1) No general obligation bonds (other than bonds to refund outstanding indebtedness) or Treasury capital project loans shall be issued during any fiscal year in an amount which would cause the amount of principal and interest required to be paid both serially and into a sinking fund in any fiscal year on the aggregate amounts of all outstanding general obligation bonds and such Treasury loans, to exceed 14 per centum of the District revenues (less court fees, any fees or revenues directed to servicing revenue bonds, retirement contributions, revenues from retirement systems, and revenues derived from such Treasury loans and the sale of general obligation or revenue bonds) which the Mayor estimates, and the District of Columbia Auditor certifies, will be credited to the District during the fiscal year in which the bonds will be issued. Treasury capital project loans include all borrowings from the United States Treasury, except those funds advanced to the District by the Secretary of the Treasury under the provisions of section 2501, title 47 of the District of Columbia Code, as amended.

(2) Obligations incurred pursuant to the authority contained in the District of Columbia Stadium Act of 1957 (71 Stat. 619; D.C. Code title 2, chapter 17, subchapter II), and obligations incurred by the agencies transferred or established by sections 201 and 202, whether incurred before or after such transfer or establishment, shall not be included in determining the aggregate amount of all outstanding obligations subject to the limitation specified in the preceding subsection.

(3) The 14 per centum limitation specified in paragraph (1) shall be calculated in the following manner:

(A) Determine the dollar amount equivalent to 14 per cent of the District revenues (less court fees, any fees or revenues directed to servicing revenue bonds, retirement contributions, revenues from retirement systems, and revenues derived from such Treasury loans and the sale of general obligation or revenue bonds) which the Mayor estimates, and the District of Columbia Auditor certifies, will be credited to the District during the fiscal year for which the bonds will be issued.

(B) Determine the actual total amount of principal and interest to be paid in each fiscal year for all outstanding general obligation bonds and such Treasury loans.

(C) Determine the amount of principal and interest to be paid during each fiscal year over the term of the proposed general obligation bond or such Treasury loan to be issued.

(D) If in any one fiscal year the sum arrived at by adding subparagraphs (B) and (C) exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph (A), then the proposed general obligation bond or such Treasury loan in subparagraph (C) cannot be issued.

(c) The Council shall not approve any budget which would result in expenditures being made by the District Government, during any fiscal year, in excess of all resources which the Mayor estimates will be available from all funds available to the District for such fiscal year. The budget shall identify any tax increases which shall be required in order to balance the budget as submitted. The Council shall be required to adopt such tax increases to the extent its budget is approved. For the purposes of this section, the Council shall use a Federal payment amount not to exceed the amount authorized by Congress. In determining whether any such budget would result in expenditures so being made in excess of such resources, amounts included in the budget estimates of the District of Columbia courts in excess of the recommendations of the Council shall not be applicable.

(d) The Mayor shall not forward to the President for submission to Congress a budget which is not balanced according to the provision of subsection 603(c).

(e) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as affecting the applicability to the District government of the provisions of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (31 U.S.C. 665), the so-called Anti-Deficiency Act.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTION ON CERTAIN DISTRICT MATTERS

SEC. 604. (a) This section is enacted by Congress—

(1) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate and the House of Representatives, respectively, and as such these provisions are deemed a part of the rule of each House, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in that House in the case of resolutions described by this section; and they supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent therewith; and

(2) with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rule (so far as relating to the procedure of that House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.

(b) For the purpose of this section, "resolution" means only a concurrent resolution, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the _____ approves/disapproves of the action of the District of Columbia Council described as follows: _____.", the blank spaces therein being appropriately filled, and either approval or disapproval being appropriately indicated; but does not include a resolution which specifies more than one action.

(c) A resolution with respect to Council action shall be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia of the House of Representatives, or the Committee on the District of Columbia of the Senate, by the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as the case may be.

(d) If the committee to which a resolution has been referred has not reported it at the end of twenty calendar days after its introduction, it is in order to move to discharge the committee from further consideration of any other resolution with respect to the same Council action which has been referred to the committee.

(e) A motion to discharge may be made only by an individual favoring the resolution, is highly privileged (except that it may not be made after the committee has reported a resolution with respect to the same action), and debate thereon shall be limited to not more than one hour, to be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. An amendment to the motion is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to.

(f) If the motion to discharge is agreed to or disagreed to, the motion may not be renewed, nor may another motion to discharge the committee be made with respect to any other resolution with respect to the same action.

(g) When the committee has reported, or has been discharged from further consideration of, a resolution, it is at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) to move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution. The motion is highly privileged and is not debatable. An amendment to the motion is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to.

(h) Debate on the resolution shall be limited to not more than ten hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. A motion further to limit debate is not debatable. An amendment to, or motion to recommit, the resolution is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the resolution is agreed to or disagreed to.

(i) Motions to postpone made with respect to the discharge from committee or the consideration of a resolution, and motions to proceed to the consideration of other business, shall be decided without debate.

(j) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, to the procedure relating to a resolution shall be decided without debate.

(c) Nothing contained in this section shall affect the boundary line between the District of Columbia and the Commonwealth of Virginia as the same was established or may be subsequently established under the provisions of title I of the Act of October 31, 1945 (59 Stat. 552) [D.C. (8) Section 10(d) of such Act (D.C. Code, sec. 1-1110) is amended to read as follows:

"(d) In the event that any official, other than the Delegate, Mayor, member of the Council, member of the Board of Education, or a winner of a primary election for the office of Delegate, Mayor, or member of the Council, elected pursuant to this Act dies, resigns, or becomes unable to serve during his or her term of office leaving no person elected pursuant to this Act to serve the remainder of the unexpired term of office, the successor or successors to serve the remainder of such term shall be chosen pursuant to the rules of the duly authorized party committee, except that such successor shall have the qualifications required by this Act for such office. In the event that such a vacancy occurs in the office of a candidate for the office of Delegate, Mayor, or member of the Council who has been declared the winner in the preceding primary election of such office, the vacancy may be filled not later than fifteen days prior to the next general election for such office, by nomination by the party committee of the party which nominated his predecessor. In the event that such a vacancy occurs in the office of Delegate more than eight months before the expiration of its term of office, the Board shall call special elections to fill such vacancy for the remainder of its term of office."

(9) The first sentence of section 15 of such Act (D.C. Code, sec. 1-1115) is amended to read as follows: "No person shall be a candidate for more than one office on the Board of Education or the Council in any election for members of the Board of Education or Council, and no person shall be a candidate for more than one office on the Council in any primary election."

(10) Section 15 of such Act (D.C. Code, sec. 1-1115) is further amended (1) by designating the existing text of such section as subsection (a), and (2) by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) No person who is holding the office of Mayor, Delegate, Chairman or member of the Council, or member of the School Board shall, while holding such office, be eligible as a candidate for any other of such offices in any primary or general election, unless the term of the office which he so holds expires on or prior to the date on which he would be eligible, if elected in such primary or general election, to take the office with respect to which such election is held."

Chapter 1.—CREATION OF DISTRICT—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 1-101. Territorial area of District of Columbia.

(a) The District of Columbia is that portion of the territory of the United States ceded by the state of Maryland for the permanent seat of government of the United States, including the river Potomac in its course through the District, and the islands therein.

(b) All of the territory constituting the permanent seat of the Government of the United States shall continue to be designated as the District of Columbia. (R.S., D.C., § 1; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 102, ch. 180, § 1; Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VII, § 717(a), 87 Stat. 820.)

CODIFICATION

EFFECTIVE DATE OF SUBSEC. (b)

PRESENT FORM OF GOVERNMENT

The present form of government was provided by the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act, approved Dec. 24, 1973 (Pub. L. 93-198, 87 Stat. 774-836). See, generally, section 1-121 et seq. For complete classification of the Act to the Code, see the Parallel Reference Tables.

BOUNDARY LINE BETWEEN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AND THE COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

Section 717(c) of Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, 87 Stat. 820 provided: "Nothing contained in this section [§ 101(b)] shall affect the boundary line between the District of Columbia and the Commonwealth of Virginia as the same was established or may be subsequently established under the provisions of title I of the Act of October 31, 1945 (59 Stat. 552)."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Boundaries

Washington National Airport is within boundaries of Commonwealth of Virginia and not within those of District of Columbia; thus employer of pilot, whose base of operations was the airport, correctly reported pilot's wages to Virginia for unemployment compensation purposes and pilot is not entitled to unemployment benefits from the District of Columbia. J. L. Bryan v. District Unemployment Compensation Board (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 45).

District court for the District of Columbia lacked jurisdiction to hear and determine action by the United States to quiet title to fast and submerged lands situated within the territorial limits of the Commonwealth of Virginia. United States v. Herbert Bryant, Inc., et al. (1974, 386 F.Supp. 1287).

Term "said Act" as used in provision of 1945 Act, which governs boundary between the District of Columbia and the Commonwealth of Virginia, that nothing in the 1945 Act was to be construed as limiting right of the United States to establish its title to any of specified lands as provided by 1912 Act or jurisdiction of the courts of United States to hear and determine suits to establish title of the United States in all lands as described by said Act below the mean high-water mark of January 24, 1791, referred to the 1912 Act while the term "lands" referred to were those lands in the District of Columbia as specified by the 1912 Act. Id.

§ 1-102. District created body corporate for municipal purposes.

(a) The District is created a government by the name of the "District of Columbia," by which name it is constituted a body-corporate for municipal purposes, and may contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, have a seal, and exercise all other powers of a municipal corporation not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the United States and the provisions of this Code.

(b) The District of Columbia shall remain and continue a body corporate, as provided in subsection (a) of this section. Said Corporation shall continue to be charged with all the duties, obligations, responsibilities, and liabilities, and to be vested with all of the powers, rights, privileges, immunities, and assets, respectively, imposed upon and vested in said Corporation or the Commissioner. (R.S., D.C., § 2; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 102, ch. 180, § 1; Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VII, § 717(a), 87 Stat. 820.)

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

CODIFICATION

This section is a composite of the credits cited in the history line. Subsection (a) is based on R.S., D.C., § 1, and subsection (b) is based on the second and third sentences of section 717(a) of Act Dec. 24, 1973.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF SUBSEC. (b)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Civil Rights Act

In light of unique status of District of Columbia and absent any indication in either language, purposes or history of civil rights statute dealing only with those deprivations of rights which are accomplished under the color of the law of "any State or Territory" of a legislative intent to include the District within scope of its coverage, District of Columbia does not constitute a "State or Territory" within meaning of the statute; disapproving Sewell v. Pegelow, 291 F.2d 196 (CA4 1961), District of Columbia v. M. Carter (1973, 93 S. Ct. 602, 409 U.S. 418; rev'g 447 F. 2d 358, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 388).

Court costs

Length of delay in implementing retroactive payment order of Commissioner of Department of Human Resources justifies an assessment of costs in form of a $25 filing fee against administrative officers in their official capacity once petition in nature of mandamus to compel agency action was dismissed as moot after officers tardily performed requested action. B. Dillard et al. v. J. P. Yeldell et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A. 2d 578).

Injunction

Property owners who are financially able to repair broken water service pipes connecting District's main water pipe with their private plumbing systems have an adequate remedy against district in seeking money damages; hence preliminary injunction requiring the District to repair or replace the pipes was improvidently issued. District of Columbia et al. v. North Washington Neighbors, Inc., et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 336 A.2d 828).

Public works

In order to prevail on claim that District of Columbia had discriminated in provision of municipal services, plaintiffs had to show a substantial inequity in input of municipal services as among various groups and that some logical nexus might be discerned between these inequities and possible discrimination based on race or other suspect classification; such a nexus could be inferred from the linking of present policies to those followed during a prior history of overt racial discrimination. M. Burner et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1975, 399 F.Supp. 44.).

Respondent superior

District of Columbia, under common law theory of respondent superior, is liable for actions of police inspector who was operating within scope of his duties as senior police officer at scene of unlawful arrests of members of religious group who were conducting peaceful prayer vigil near White House. L. Tatum et al. v. R. C. B. Morton et al. (1974, 402 F.Supp. 719).

Sovereign immunity

District of Columbia may be sued for injuries resulting from defective playground equipment but proof of actual or constructive notice of defect which caused injury is a necessary predicate to its liability, and absent such proof directed verdict is proper. E. Miller et al. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 278).

The doctrine of sovereign immunity did not bar class action on behalf of tenants of rental units of the National Capital Housing Authority against the Commissioner of District of Columbia and the National Capital Housing Authority for injunctive and declaratory relief with respect to rental increases scheduled by the Authority. C. O. Thompson et al. v. W. Washington, Commissioner etc. (1973, 497 F. 2d 626, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Complaint which was brought by victim of shooting committed by police officer and which sought to hold police chief liable for negligence in hiring the officer and in failing to train and supervise him adequately and to hold the District of Columbia liable for negligence on the same grounds and vicariously liable for negligence of the police chief stated a cause of action against the District of Columbia and police chief on common-law grounds, notwithstanding fact that the officer was out of uniform at time of the alleged assault on plaintiff. D. S. Marusa v. District of Columbia et al. (1973, 484 F. 2d 828, 157 U.S. App D.C. 348).

Federal Tort Claims Act in no way controls existence or scope of local government's immunity from suit. Id.

Action against the mayor of the District of Columbia and others seeking relief with respect to racial discrimination against Negro employees in the department of licenses and inspections was not barred by doctrine of sovereign immunity; the courts have power under the Constitution to remedy racial discrimination by a public agency in any form. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F.Supp. 941; aff'd 505 F.2d 477, 164 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

District of Columbia is immune from suit for torts of agents under doctrine of municipal immunity only if act complained of was committed in exercise of discretionary function, and if act is committed in exercise of ministerial function, District must respond. C. Wade v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 857).

Municipal immunity of District of Columbia is matter of common-law theory of municipal governmental immunity as developed in case law of jurisdiction, and is not derived from sovereignty of United States or limited to same extent as that of Federal government under Federal Tort Claims Act. Id.

District of Columbia may be sued under common-law doctrine of respondent superior for intentional torts of its employees acting within scope of their employment. Id.

Suit which sought to recover damages for loss of property stored in a warehouse partially destroyed by rioting mobs and which was based on allegation of negligent failure to provide against such an occurrence failed to state a valid claim for relief against District of Columbia. D. Amos v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 309 A. 2d 305).

Absent legislation to contrary, District of Columbia is not liable for losses incurred by actions of riotous persons as a result of failure of District or its officers to maintain public order. Id.

(a) Subject to the retention by Congress of the ultimate legislative authority over the Nation's Capital granted by article I, section 8, of the Constitution, the intent of Congress is to delegate certain legislative powers to the government of the District of Columbia; authorize the election of certain local officials by the registered qualified electors in the District of Columbia; grant to the inhabitants of the District of Columbia powers of local self-government; to modernize, reorganize, and otherwise improve the governmental structure of the District of Columbia; and, to the greatest extent possible, consistent with the constitutional mandate, relieve Congress of the burden of legislating upon essentially local District matters.

§ 1-127. Congressional action on certain District matters.

(a) This section is enacted by Congress—

(1) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate and the House of Representatives, respectively, and as such these provisions are deemed a part of the rule of each House, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in that House in the case of resolutions described by this section; and they supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent therewith; and

(2) with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rule (so far as relating to the procedure of that House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.

(b) For the purpose of this section, "resolution" means only a concurrent resolution, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the _____ approves/disapproves of the action of the District of Columbia Council described as follows: _____", the blank spaces therein being appropriately filled, and either approval or disapproval being appropriately indicated; but does not include a resolution which specifies more than one action.

(c) A resolution with respect to Council action shall be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia of the House of Representatives, or the Committee on the District of Columbia of the Senate, by the President of the Senate or the Speaker of the House of Representatives, as the case may be.

(d) If the committee to which a resolution has been referred has not reported it at the end of twenty calendar days after its introduction, it is in order to move to discharge the committee from further consideration of any other resolution with respect to the same Council action which has been referred to the committee.

(e) A motion to discharge may be made only by an individual favoring the resolution, is highly privileged (except that it may not be made after the committee has reported a resolution with respect to the same action), and debate thereon shall be limited to not more than one hour, to be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. An amendment to the motion is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to.

(f) If the motion to discharge is agreed to or disagreed to, the motion may not be renewed, nor may another motion to discharge the committee be made with respect to any other resolution with respect to the same action.

(g) When the committee has reported, or has been discharged from further consideration of, a resolution, it is at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) to move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution. The motion is highly privileged and is not debatable. An amendment to the motion is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to.

(h) Debate on the resolution shall be limited to not more than ten hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. A motion further to limit debate is not debatable. An amendment to, or motion to recommit, the resolution is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the resolution is agreed to or disagreed to.

(i) Motions to postpone made with respect to the discharge from committee or the consideration of a resolution, and motions to proceed to the consideration of other business, shall be decided without debate.

(j) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, to the procedure relating to a resolution shall be decided without debate. (Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VI, § 604, 87 Stat. 816.)

(a) To the extent that any provisions of this Act are inconsistent with the provisions of any other laws the provisions of this Act shall prevail and shall be deemed to supersede the provisions of such laws.

(b) No law or regulation which is in force on January 2, 1975, shall be deemed amended or repealed by this Act except to the extent specifically provided herein or to the extent that such law or regulation is inconsistent with this Act, but any such law or regulation may be amended or repealed by act or resolution as authorized in this Act, or by Act of Congress, except that, notwithstanding the provisions of section 1-1105a, such authority to repeal shall not be construed as authorizing the Council to repeal or otherwise alter, by amendment or otherwise, any provision of subchapter III of chapter 73 of title 5, United States Code, in whole or in part. SUBCHAPTER III.—COUNCIL

SUBCHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This subchapter is referred to in section 1-122.

§ 1-141. Creation—Membership—Personnel—Vacancies.

(a) There is established a Council of the District of Columbia; and the members of the Council shall be elected by the registered qualified electors of the District.

(b) (1) The Council established under subsection (a) shall consist of thirteen members elected on a partisan basis. The Chairman and four members shall be elected at large in the District, and eight members shall be elected one each from the eight election wards established, from time to time, under chapter 11 of this title. The term of office of the members of the Council shall be four years, except as provided in paragraph (3), and shall begin at noon on January 2 of the year following their election.

(2) In the case of the first election held for the office of member of the Council after January 2, 1975, not more than two of the at-large members (excluding the Chairman) shall be nominated by the same political party. Thereafter, a political party may nominate a number of candidates for the office of at-large member of the Council equal to one less than the total number of at-large members (excluding the Chairman) to be elected in such election.

(3) To fill a vacancy in the Office of Chairman, the Board of Elections and Ethics shall hold a special election in the District on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs, unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise have been held under the provisions of this paragraph. The person elected Chairman to fill a vacancy in the Office of Chairman shall take office on the day in which the Board of Elections and Ethics certifies his election, and shall serve as Chairman only for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy occurred. When the Office of Chairman becomes vacant, the Council shall select one of the elected at-large members of the Council to serve as Chairman and one to serve as Chairman pro tempore until the election of a new Chairman.

(4) Of the members first elected after January 2, 1975, the Chairman and two members elected at-large and four of the members elected from election wards shall serve for four-year terms; and two of the at-large members and four of the members elected from election wards shall serve for two-year terms. The members to serve the four-year terms and the members to serve the two-year terms shall be determined by the Board of Elections and Ethics by lot, except that not more than one of the at-large members nominated by any political party shall serve for any such four-year term.

(c) The Council may establish and select such other officers and employees as it deems necessary and appropriate to carry out the functions of the Council.

(d) (1) In the event of a vacancy in the Council of a member elected from a ward, the Board of Elections and Ethics shall hold a special election in such ward to fill such vacancy on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs, unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise have been held under the provisions of this subsection. The person elected as a member to fill a vacancy on the Council shall take office on the day on which the Board of Elections and Ethics certifies his election, and shall serve as a member of the Council only for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy occurred.

(2) In the event of a vacancy in the office of Mayor, and if the Chairman becomes a candidate for the office of Mayor to fill such vacancy, the office of Chairman shall be deemed vacant as of the date of the filing of his candidacy. In the event of a vacancy in the Council of a member elected at large, other than a vacancy in the office of Chairman, who is affiliated with a political party, the central committee of such political party shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, until the Board of Elections and Ethics can hold a special election to fill such vacancy, and such special election shall be held on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise be held under the provision of this subsection. The person appointed to fill such vacancy shall take office on the date of his appointment and shall serve as a member of the Council until the day on which the Board certifies the election of the member elected to fill such vacancy in either a special election or a general election. The person elected as a member to fill such a vacancy on the Council shall take office on the day on which the Board of Elections and Ethics certifies his election, and shall serve as a member of the Council only for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy occurred. With respect to a vacancy on the Council of a member elected at large who is not affiliated with any political party, the Council shall appoint a similarly non-affiliated person to fill such vacancy until such vacancy can be filled in a special election in the manner prescribed in this paragraph. Such person appointed by the Council shall take office and serve as a member at the same time and for the same term as a member appointed by a central committee of a political party.

(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, at no time shall there be more than three members (including the Chairman) serving at large on the Council who are affiliated with the same political party. (Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title IV, § 401, 87 Stat. 785; Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title III, § 306(a), 88 Stat. 458; Aug. 29, 1974, Pub. L. 93-395, § 1(2), 88 Stat. 793.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Complaint by qualified voters seeking judgment declaring unconstitutional sections of District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act passed by Congress and approved by President and voters of District and an injunction ordering placing on general election ballot Democratic candidates for at-large membership on District of Columbia Council who finished third or fourth in primary and the Republican candidate who finished third in primary with instructions that voters could vote for any four candidates would be dismissed in light of imminence of November election, absence of any demonstration of constitutional invalidity of section and the desire to give Congress opportunity to reform its legislation. E. Dulcan et al. v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1974, 64 F.R.D. 327).

§ 1-142. Qualifications for holding office.

No person shall hold the office of member of the Council, including the office of Chairman, unless he (a) is a qualified elector, (b) is domiciled in the District and if he is nominated for election from a particular ward, resides in the ward from which he is nominated, (c) has resided and been domiciled in the District for one year immediately preceding the day on which the general or special election for such office is to be held, and (d) holds no public office (other than his employment in and position as a member of the Council), for which he is compensated in an amount in excess of his actual expenses in connection therewith, except that nothing in this clause shall prohibit any such person, while a member of the Council, from serving as a delegate or alternate delegate to a convention of a political party nominating candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, or from holding an appointment in a Reserve component of an armed force of the United States other than a member serving on active duty under a call for more than thirty days. A member of the Council shall forfeit his office upon failure to maintain the qualifications required by this section, and, in the case of the Chairman, section 1-143(c). (Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title IV, § 402, 87 Stat. 786.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

§ 1-143. Compensation.

(a) Each member of the Council shall receive compensation, payable in periodic installments, at a rate equal to the maximum rate as may be established from time to time for grade 12 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5 of the United States Code. On and after the end of the two-year period beginning on the day the members of the Council first elected under this Act take office, the Council may, by act, increase or decrease such rate of compensation. Such change in compensation, upon enactment by the Council in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, shall apply with respect to the term of members of the Council beginning after the date of enactment of such change.

(b) All members of the Council shall receive additional allowances for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties of office as may be approved by the Council.

(c) The Chairman shall receive, in addition to the compensation to which he is entitled as a member of the Council, $10,000 per annum, payable in equal installments, for each year he serves as Chairman, but the Chairman shall not engage in any employment (whether as an employee or as a self-employed individual) or hold any position (other than his position as Chairman), for which he is compensated in an amount in excess of his actual expenses in connection therewith. (a) There is established the Office of Mayor of the District of Columbia; and the Mayor shall be elected by the registered qualified electors of the District.

(b) The Mayor established by subsection (a) shall be elected, on a partisan basis, for a term of four years beginning at noon on January 2 of the year following his election.

(c) (1) No person shall hold the Office of Mayor unless he (A) is a qualified elector, (B) has resided and been domiciled in the District for one year immediately preceding the day on which the general or special election for Mayor is to be held, and (C) is not engaged in any employment (whether as an employee or as a self-employed individual) and holds no public office or position (other than his employment in and position as Mayor), for which he is compensated in an amount in excess of his actual expenses in connection therewith, except that nothing in this clause shall be construed as prohibiting such person, while holding the Office of Mayor, from serving as a delegate or alternate delegate to a convention of a political party nominating candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, or from holding an appointment in a reserve component of an armed force of the United States other than a member serving on active duty under a call for more than thirty days. The Mayor shall forfeit his office upon failure to maintain the qualifications required by this paragraph.

(2) To fill a vacancy in the Office of Mayor, the Board of Elections and Ethics shall hold a special election in the District on the first Tuesday occurring more than one hundred and fourteen days after the date on which such vacancy occurs, unless the Board of Elections and Ethics determines that such vacancy could be more practicably filled in a special election held on the same day as the next general election to be held in the District occurring within sixty days of the date on which a special election would otherwise have been held under the provisions of this paragraph. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Imprisonment for nonpayment of fine

In view of rule that where defendant is indigent, jail sentence imposed as alternative to payment of fine should not exceed maximum prescribed for offense, indigent defendant who was convicted of tampering with an automobile would be remanded for resentencing, with alternative sentence in default of payment of $100 fine not to exceed ten days. *G. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Civil rights

Portion of order of the Commission on Human Rights which awarded to black complainant, who had been denied an apartment because of her race, damages in the amount of $950 as compensation for humiliation and mental anguish and for out-of-pocket expenses was unauthorized by regulation authorizing the Commission "to take such affirmative action as will effectuate the purposes of this Article," despite contention that the monetary award was mere incidental relief. Mendota Apartments et al. v. District of Columbia Commission on Human Rights (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 832).

Insurance

Fact that no previous cases upheld the municipality's exercise of police power to regulate insurance did not compel conclusion that the District Council was without such power. Firemen's Insurance Company of Washington, D.C. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 483 F. 2d 1323, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 320).

Regulation prohibiting auto, fire or casualty insurer from considering geographical location in determining whether to insure or continue to insure a risk in the District of Columbia except in cases of overconcentration of liability in a single high risk area and regulation prohibiting cancellation of auto, fire and casualty policies only for specified reasons are within the police power accorded to the District of Columbia by congressional enactment. Id.

District of Columbia regulation generally precluding the insurance company from considering geographic location in determining whether to insure or continue to insure auto, fire and casualty risks in district and prohibiting cancellation of those policies for other than specified conditions do not conflict with specific provisions of the District of Columbia Insurance Code or the Automobile Insurance Plan and were not preempted thereby; with respect to basic property insurance regulation prohibiting geographic discrimination did conflict with and was preempted by the District of Columbia Insurance Placement Act. Id.

Nature of power

Congress in legislating for District of Columbia has all the powers of a state legislature and may delegate to district government that full legislative power subject to constitutional limitations to which all lawmaking is subservient and subject to the power of Congress at any time to revise, alter, or revoke authority granted. Firemen's Insurance Company of Washington, D.C. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 483 F. 2d 1323, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 320).

District of Columbia City Council, while possessing no inherent legislative authority, does have broad delegation of police power from Congress. Id.

Tampering with automobiles

Police regulation making it a violation to tamper with an automobile is clearly authorized under this section which empowers the District of Columbia to make and enforce police regulations for protection of all property within the District of Columbia. G. A. Batres v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 585).

§ 1-226a. Expenditures for emergencies.

When required by the public exigencies to meet conditions caused by emergencies such as riot, pestilence, public insanitary conditions, flood, fire, storm, and similar disasters, the Mayor of the District of Columbia, pursuant to regulations prescribed by the Council of the District of Columbia, is authorized to expend such amounts as may be necessary without regard to advertising provisions of section 1-808. CODIFICATION

The exception from "the Classification Act of 1923, as amended" has been omitted as obsolete. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 972, 973) repealed the 1923 Act and all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. While § 1106(a) of the 1949 Act provided that references in other laws to the 1923 Act should be held and considered to mean the 1949 Act, it did not have the effect of continuing the exception contained in this section because of § 1106(b) that provided that the application of the 1949 Act to any position, officer, or employee shall not be affected by § 1106(a). The Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by Act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632 (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law). Section 5102 of title 5, U.S.C., now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act.

§ 1-262a. Official expenses.

The Mayor of the District of Columbia and the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized to provide for the expenditure, within the limits of specified annual appropriations, of funds for appropriate purposes related to their official capacity as they may respectively deem necessary. Their determination thereof shall be final and conclusive, and their certificate shall be sufficient voucher for the expenditure of appropriations made pursuant to this section. (Oct. 26, 1973, Pub. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Class actions

Regardless of whether plaintiff could have qualified to maintain as a class action his complaint of racial discrimination against District of Columbia employees had it been filed in district court ab initio, class action was proper where administrative proceedings had been maintained on class basis, administrative findings and proposed remedies had dealt with all aspects of the complaint, and mayor's action complained of was predicated on grounds generally applicable to the class. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 941; aff'd 505 F.2d 477, 164 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

Injunctions

Refusal to issue an injunction against racial discrimination within Housing Division of Department of Licenses and Inspections and to retain jurisdiction until all steps had been taken to eliminate effects of past discrimination and to insure nondiscrimination in future was manifestly unjust, notwithstanding that a new director had taken steps to insure equal employment opportunity, where period of nondiscrimination was very brief compared to long record of discrimination demonstrated in case and task of eliminating ingrained discriminatory practices was a difficult one deserving of active judicial support. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et al. (1972, 472 F.2d 1373, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Racial discrimination

Positive relationship between test of verbal skill administered applicants for employment as police officers to training course performance is sufficient to validate the test, wholly aside from its possible relationship to actual performance as a police officer. W. E. Washington, etc., et al. v. A. E. Davis et al. (1976, 96 S. Ct. 2040, 426 U.S. —; rev'g 512 F.2d 956, 168 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

The disproportionate impact on Negroes of written test of verbal skill administered to applicants for employment as police officers does not warrant the conclusion that the test, which is neutral on its face, is a purposely discriminatory device. Id.

The affirmative efforts of Police Department to recruit black officers, the changing racial composition of the recruit classes and of the force in general, and the relationship of written test of verbal skill to the training program negates any inference that the Department discriminated on the basis of race notwithstanding the disproportionate impact of the test on Negro applicants. Id.

Where District of Columbia employee who was victim of racial discrimination in employment and personnel policies had been promoted to first vacant GS-12 position as recommended by hearing committee appointed by district court, and had received all back pay for time during which he was discriminated against, he had received all relief to which he was entitled under original action, and he was not entitled to determination that promotion should be retroactive to time he filed his original action and award of back pay from that date. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington, Mayor, et al. (1975, 511 F.2d 404, 167 U.S. App. D.C. 166; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 61, 423 U.S. 835).

Upon findings of hearing committee and equal employment opportunity officer of racial discrimination in the District of Columbia department of licenses and inspections, mayor had discretion in framing an appropriate remedy, but where a definite and persistent pattern of unconstitutional racial discrimination was demonstrated, it was not sufficient to express the hope that discrimination would disappear and to exhort those involved to a better performance; mayor was obliged to take affirmative steps to reinforce his expectations. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 941; aff'd 505 F.2d 477, 164 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

Where there had been racial discrimination against Negro employees of the District of Columbia department of licenses and inspections, district court would not disturb mayor's determination that no disciplinary action would be taken nor direct promotion of particular individuals to specific jobs, but would direct, inter alia, payment of back pay, would enjoin further discrimination, and would order the establishment of certain procedures with respect to hiring and promotion. Id.

Sovereign immunity

Action against the mayor of the District of Columbia and others seeking relief with respect to racial discrimination against Negro employees in the department of licenses and inspections was not barred by doctrine of sovereign immunity; the courts have power under the Constitution to remedy racial discrimination by a public agency in any form. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 941; aff'd 505 F.2d 477, 164 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

§ 1-322. Assistance of Civil Service Commission in development of District merit system.

The costs of any specific services furnished by the Civil Service Commission may be compensated for under the provisions of section 1-826. (Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. § 1-605. Surveyor's office to be legal office of record of plats and subdivisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Purpose of filing plat

Principal purpose of filing plat in office of surveyor is to establish areas and boundaries of lots in the subdivision. H. Case v. A. E. Morrisette (1973, 475 F.2d 1300, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Servitudes

Although subdivision plats must be duly recorded in office of surveyor, once that requirement has been met, District of Columbia statutes do not prohibit an owner from incorporating a revised copy of the same plat in another recordable instrument in order to impress, through a suitable endorsement on the plat, a servitude upon a single lot in the original subdivision and, in such circumstances, the revised plat is being used only as method of imposing a servitude, and not to establish the areas and boundaries of lots in the subdivision. H. Case v. A. E. Morrisette (1973, 475 F.2d 1300, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Equitable servitudes can be created by inscriptions on subdivision plats filed with surveyor, but they also may be created by deeds, with or without plats attached. Id.

Where deed described parcel as lot on subdivision plat recorded in office of surveyor and referred to it as area for parking as shown on revised plat recorded with declaration of covenants, purchaser was placed on notice of inscription affecting lot and either such constructive notice or purchaser's actual knowledge was sufficient to require enforcement of equitable servitude against purchaser and it was immaterial that copy of revised plat bearing inscription was recorded in office of recorder of deeds rather than with surveyor. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Filing

Where landscape architect and city planner who performed services for municipality pursuant to oral contract with acting director of agency submitted itemized statement which was initialed by acting director and which complied with requirement of writing, failure to file same as required by law did not rest with landscape architect and city planner. L. E. Coffin, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 301).

Oral contract

Where applicable regulations prohibited municipal contracting officers from entering into contracts for personal services in excess of $2,500 and required such contracts to be in writing and entered into by municipal procurement officer, landscape architect and city planner who provided services for municipality pursuant to oral agreement with acting director of agency and whose itemized statement for services in the amount of $3,270 had been initialed by acting director and submitted for processing and payment could not recover full amount of bill but was entitled to recover sum of $2,500. L. E. Coffin, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 301).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Where plaintiff complained against District of Columbia for false arrest, false imprisonment, unlawful search and assault, District's pretrial statement demonstrated that it would not be surprised by testimony on causes other than false arrest and there was no indication that plaintiff had intended to abandon other causes, trial court abused its discretion in refusing to permit plaintiff to amend pretrial order to include other claims on basis that only issue of false arrest had been spelled out in pretrial order. C. L. Clarke v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A. 2d 508).

Civil Rights Act

In light of unique status of District of Columbia and absent any indication in either language, purposes or history of civil rights statute dealing only with those deprivations of rights which are accomplished under the color of the law of "any State or Territory" of a legislative intent to include the District within scope of its coverage, District of Columbia does not constitute a "State or Territory" within meaning of the statute; disapproving Sewell v. Pegelow, 291 F.2d 196 (CA4 1961). District of Columbia v. M. Carter (1973, 93 S. Ct. 602, 409 U.S. 418; rev'g 447 F. 2d 358, 144 U.S. App. D.C. 388).

False arrest

Allegation that plaintiff was arrested and imprisoned without process raised the presumption of unlawful restraint and shifts to defendant burden of justifying the restraint as lawful. C. L. Clarke v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A. 2d 508).

Absence of probable cause for arrest was not an essential element of plaintiff's proof in action for false arrest, but was simply a matter of defense to allegations of complaint; thus, failure of plaintiff to establish such would not preclude her from recovering. Id.

Sovereign immunity

Complaint which was brought by victim of shooting committed by police officer and which sought to hold police chief liable for negligence in hiring the officer and in failing to train and supervise him adequately and to hold the District of Columbia liable for negligence on the same grounds and vicariously liable for negligence of the police chief stated a cause of action against the District of Columbia and police chief on common-law grounds, notwithstanding fact that the officer was out of uniform at time of the alleged assault on plaintiff. D. S. Marusa v. District of Columbia et al. (1973, 484 F. 2d 828, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 348).

Federal Tort Claims Act in no way controls existence or scope of local government's immunity from suit. Id.

Action against the mayor of the District of Columbia and others seeking relief with respect to racial discrimination against Negro employees in the department of licenses and inspections was not barred by doctrine of sovereign immunity; the courts have power under the Constitution to remedy racial discrimination by a public agency in any form. J. T. Watkins et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 941; aff'd 505 F.2d 477, 164 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

District of Columbia is immune from suit for torts of agents under doctrine of municipal immunity only if act complained of was committed in exercise of discretionary function, and if act is committed in exercise of ministerial function, District must respond. C. Wade v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 857).

Municipal immunity of District of Columbia is matter of common-law theory of municipal governmental immunity as developed in case law of jurisdiction, and is not derived from sovereignty of United States or limited to same extent as that of Federal government under Federal Tort Claims Act. Id.

District of Columbia may be sued under common-law doctrine of respondent superior for intentional torts of its employees acting within scope of their employment. Id.

Suit which sought to recover damages for loss of property stored in a warehouse partially destroyed by rioting mobs and which was based on allegation of negligent failure to provide against such an occurrence failed to state a valid claim for relief against District of Columbia. D. Amos v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 309 A.2d 305).

Absent legislation to contrary, District of Columbia is not liable for losses incurred by actions of riotous persons as a result of failure of District or its officers to maintain public order. Id.

§ 1-903. Refund of taxes when similar assessments have been held void by court decisions—Limitations.

CHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 1-1002. The Commission—Composition—Functions.

(a) (1) The National Capital Planning Commission (hereinafter referred to as the "Commission") is created as the central Federal planning agency for the Federal Government in the National Capital, and to preserve the important historical and natural features thereof, except with respect to the United States Capitol buildings and grounds as defined in sections 9-118 and 9-132, and to any extension thereof or additions thereto, or to buildings and grounds under the care of the Architect of the Capitol.

(2) The Mayor of the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as the "Mayor") shall be the central planning agency for the government of the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as the "District") in the National Capital. The Mayor shall be responsible for coordinating the planning activities of the District government and for preparing and implementing the District elements of the comprehensive plan for the National Capital, which may include land use elements, urban renewal and redevelopment elements, a multi-year program of public works for the District, and physical, social, economic, transportation, and population elements. In carrying out his responsibility under this section, the Mayor shall establish procedures for citizen participation in the planning process, and for appropriate meaningful consultation with any State or local government or planning agency in the National Capital region affected by any aspect of a comprehensive plan (including amendments thereto) affecting or relating to the District.

(3) The Mayor shall submit each District element of the comprehensive plan and any amendment thereto, to the Council for revision or modification, and adoption, by act, following public hearings. Following adoption and prior to implementation, the Council shall submit each such element or amendment to the Commission for review and comment with regard to the impact of such element or amendment on the interests or functions of the Federal Establishment in the National Capital.

(4) (A) The Commission shall, within sixty days after receipt of such a District element of the comprehensive plan, or amendment thereto, from the Council, certify to the Council whether such element or amendment has a negative impact on the interests or functions of the Federal Establishment in the National Capital. If within such sixty days the Commission takes no action with respect to such element or amendment, such element or amendment shall be deemed to have no such negative impact, and such element or amendment shall be incorporated into the comprehensive plan for the National Capital and shall be implemented.

(B) If the Commission finds, within such sixty days, such negative impact, it shall certify its findings and recommendations with respect to such negative impact to the Council. Upon receipt of the Commission's findings and recommendations, the Council may—

(i) reject such findings and recommendations and resubmit such element or amendment, in a modified form, to the Commission for reconsideration; or

(ii) accept such findings and recommendations and modify such element or amendment accordingly.

If the Council accepts such findings and recommendations and modifies such element or amendment under clause (ii), the Council shall submit such element or amendment to the Commission for it to determine whether such modification has been made in accordance with the Commission's findings and recommendations. If within such thirty days, the Commission again determines such element or amendment to have a negative impact on the functions or interests of the Federal Establishment in the National Capital such element or amendment shall not be implemented.

(C) If the Council rejects the findings and recommendations of the Commission and resubmits a modified element or amendment to it under clause (i), the Commission shall, within sixty days after receipt of such modified element or amendment from the Council, determine whether such modified element or amendment has a negative impact on the interests or functions of the Federal Establishment within the National Capital. If the Commission finds such negative impact it shall certify its findings (in sufficient detail that the Council can understand the basis of the objection of the Commission) and recommendations to the Council, and such element or amendment shall not be implemented. If the Commission takes no action with respect to such modified element or amendment within such sixty days, such modified element or amendment shall be deemed to have no such negative impact and shall be incorporated into the comprehensive plan and it shall be implemented. Any element or amendment which the Commission has determined to have a negative impact on the Federal Establishment in the National Capital, and which is submitted again in a modified form not less than one year from the day it was last rejected by the Commission shall be deemed to be a new element or amendment for purposes of the review procedure specified in this section.

(D) The Commission and the Mayor shall jointly publish, from time to time as appropriate, a comprehensive plan for the National Capital, consisting of the elements of the comprehensive plan for the Federal activities in the National Capital developed by the Commission, and the District elements developed by the Mayor and the Council in accordance with the provisions of this section.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Environmental impact

Although the District of Columbia Zoning Commission and the National Capital Planning Commission are not required to prepare an environmental impact statement in connection with applications under the District's zoning regulations for planned unit development or for amendment of zoning maps and zoning regulations, the environmental policies delineated in the National Environmental Policy Act should find expression in the planning and zoning process in the District; proper avenue for implementation of the purposes of the NEPA is in the planning operations of the National Capital Planning Commission, particularly in formulation of the Comprehensive Plan. McLean Gardens Residents Association, Inc., et al. v. National Capital Planning Commission et al. (1974, 390 F. Supp. 165).

§ 1-1005. Proposed Federal and District developments and projects.

(c) The provisions of section 5-428, are extended to include public buildings erected by any agency of the Government of the District of Columbia within the boundaries of the central area of the District, as such central area may be defined and from time to time redefined by concurrent action of the Commission and the Council, except that the Commission shall transmit its approval or disapproval respecting any such building within thirty days after the day it was submitted to the Commission.

(e) It is the intent of this section to obtain cooperation and correlation of effort between the various agencies of the Federal Government which are responsible for public developments and projects, including the acquisition of land. These agencies, therefore, shall look to the Commission and utilize it as the central planning agency for the Federal activities in the National Capital region. To aid the Commission in carrying out this function, plans, data, and records, or copies thereof, necessary to the Commission shall be furnished upon its request by such Federal and District governmental agencies; and the Commission shall likewise furnish related plans, data, and records, or copies thereof, to Federal and District of Columbia governmental agencies upon request. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Without finding abuse of district court's discretion in denying preliminary injunction against continued construction of Washington Bulk Mail Center, case would be remanded so that reconsideration could be given oil and water runoff problem and to whether an impact statement was required, and also to the possibility, taking into account the advanced stage of project construction, the district court might conjoin any continued denial of injunctive relief with equitable conditions more protective of the environment than those already provided. Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission v. U.S. Postal Service (1973, 487 F. 2d 1029, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 158; remanding 349 F. Supp. 1212).

Preliminary injunction restraining further construction of bulk mail center on 63-acre tract forming part of 800-acre industrial area would not issue where determination that facility would not significantly affect environment and that environmental impact statement was not required was not arbitrary, capricious or abuse of discretion, plaintiff, a park planning commission, failed to establish likelihood of success on the merits, failed to establish irreparable injury and that defendant failed to comply with governing executive order and construction had commenced and cost of delay in continuing construction was not insignificant. Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission v. U.S. Postal Service (1972, 349 F. Supp. 1212; rem'd 487 F.2d 1029, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 159).

(b) The Mayor shall submit to the commission, by February 1 of each year, a copy of the multiyear capital improvements plan for the District developed by him under section 47-223. The Commission shall have thirty days within which to comment upon such plan but shall have no authority to change or disapprove of such plan. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judicial review

In reviewing refusal by Zoning Commission to enact interim amendment to zoning ordinance preventing major construction not in conformance with National Capital Planning Commission's comprehensive recommendations as to development of waterfront area until completion of pending area study, Court of Appeals would consider only whether Commission acted arbitrarily and capriciously, i.e., whether its decision had no substantial relationship to the general welfare. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F.2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Actions of Zoning Commission are entitled to presumption of validity; however, the Commission must put forward or the court must be otherwise able to discern some basis in fact and law to justify Commission's action as consistent with reasonableness. Id.

Recommendation to Zoning Commission

The Zoning Commission, in determining whether to adopt interim amendment to zoning ordinance preventing major construction in waterfront area until completion of study looking toward implementation of National Capital Planning Commission's comprehensive land use plan, was not bound to follow NCPC's recommendation to adopt interim amendment; Zoning Commission was not required to show a compelling public interest before it could override recommendation. *Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutional questions

Even though the constitutional questions regarding challenge of the Socialist Workers' party to the District of Columbia Campaign Finance Reform and Conflict of Interest Act (§§ 1-1121 et seq.) based on ground that the application of Act to it would subject members whose names must be disclosed to harassment must be ruled on directly, it was within three-judge district court's power to direct the Board of Elections and Ethics to provide a suitable forum for plaintiffs' claims and, should the claims be proved, to provide an appropriate remedy. J. Doe et al. v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1975, 404 F. Supp. 753).

Write-in votes

The Board of Elections should exercise its rule-making power to facilitate write-in votes in the future for candidates for president and vice president. L. R. Kamins v. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 187).

(h) (1) (A) The Delegate, Mayor, Chairman of the District Council and the four at-large members of the Council shall be elected by the registered qualified electors of the District of Columbia in a general election. Each candidate for the office of Delegate, Mayor, Chairman of the District Council, and at-large members of the Council in any general election shall, except as otherwise provided in subsection (j) of this section and section 1-1110(d), have been elected by the registered qualified electors of the District as such candidate by the next preceding primary election.

(B) (i) A member of the office of Council (other than the Chairman and any member elected at large) shall be elected in a general election by the registered qualified electors of the respective ward of the District from which the individual seeking such office was elected as a candidate for such office as provided in clause (ii) of this paragraph.

(ii) Each candidate for the office of member of the Council (other than Chairman and at-large members) shall, except as otherwise provided in subsection (j) of this section and section 1-1110(d), have been elected as such a candidate, by the registered qualified electors of the ward of the District from which such individual was nominated, at the next preceding primary election to fill such office within that ward.

(2) The nomination and election of any individual to the office of Delegate, Mayor, Chairman of the Council and member of the Council shall be governed by the provisions of this chapter. No political party shall be qualified to hold a primary election to select candidates for election to any such office in a general election unless, in the next preceding election year, at least seven thousand five hundred votes were cast in the general election for a candidate of such party for any such office or for its candidates for electors of President and Vice President.

(i) (1) Each individual in a primary election for candidate for the office of Delegate, Mayor, Chairman of the Council, or at-large member of the Council shall be nominated for any such office by a petition (A) filed with the Board not later than sixty days before the date of such primary election, and (B) signed by at least two thousand registered qualified electors of the same political party as the nominee, or by 1 per centum of the duly registered members of such political party, whichever is less, as shown by the records of the Board of Elections and Ethics as of the one hundred fourteenth day before the date of such election.

(2) Each individual in a primary election for candidate for the office of member of the Council (other than the Chairman and at-large members) shall be nominated for such office by a petition (A) filed with the Board not later than sixty days before the date of such primary election, and (B) signed by at least two hundred and fifty persons in the ward from which such individual seeks election who are duly registered in such ward under section 1-1107, and who are of the same political party as the nominee.

(3) A nominating petition for a candidate in a primary election for any such office may not be circulated for signature before the one hundred fourteenth day preceding the date of such election and may not be filed with the Board before the eighty-fifth day preceding such date. The Board may prescribe rules with respect to the preparation and presentation of nominating petitions. The Board shall arrange the ballot of each political party in each such primary election as to enable a voter of such party to vote for nominated candidates of that party.

(j) (1) A duly qualified candidate for the office of Delegate, Mayor, Chairman of the Council, or member of the Council, may subject to the provisions of this subsection, be nominated directly as such a candidate for election for such office (including any such election to be held to fill a vacancy). Such person shall be nominated by petition (A) filed with the Board not less than sixty days before the date of such general election, and (B) in the case of a person who is a candidate for the office of member of the Council (other than the Chairman or an at-large member), signed by five hundred voters who are duly registered under section 1-1107 in the ward from which the candidate seeks election; and in the case of a person who is a candidate for the office of Delegate, Mayor, Chairman of the Council, or at-large member of the Council, signed by duly registered voters equal in number to $1\frac{1}{2}$ per centum of the total number of registered voters in the District, as shown by the records of the Board as of one hundred fourteen days before the date of such election, or by three thousand persons duly registered under section 1-1107, whichever is less. No signatures on such a petition may be counted which have been made on such petition more than one hundred fourteen days before the date of such election.

(2) Nominations under this subsection for candidates for election in a general election to any office referred to in paragraph (1) shall be of no force and effect with respect to any person whose name has appeared on the ballot of a primary election for that office held within eight months before the date of such general election.

(k) (1) In each general election for the office of member of the Council (other than the office of the Chairman or an at-large member) the Board shall arrange the ballots in each ward to enable a voter registered in that ward to vote for any one candidate who (A) has been duly elected by any political party in the next preceding primary election for such office from such ward, (B) has been duly nominated to fill a vacancy in such office in such ward pursuant to section 1-1110(d), or (C) has been nominated directly as a candidate for such office in such ward under subsection (j) of this section.

(2) In each general election for the office of Chairman and member of the Council at large, the Board shall arrange the ballots to enable a registered qualified elector to vote for as many candidates for election as members at large as there are members at large to be elected in such election, including the Chairman. Such candidates shall be only those persons who (A) have been duly elected by any political party in the next preceding primary election for such office, (B) have been duly nominated to fill vacancies in such office pursuant to section 1-1110(d), or (C) have been nominated directly as a candidate under subsection (j) of this section.

(3) In each general election for the office of Delegate and Mayor, the Board shall arrange the ballots to enable a registered qualified elector to vote for any one of the candidates for any such office who (A) has been duly elected by any political party in the next preceding primary election for such office, (B) has been duly nominated to fill a vacancy in such office pursuant to section 1-1110(d), or (C) has been nominated directly as a candidate under subsection (j) of this section.

(m) (1) Designation of offices of local party committees to be filled by election pursuant to clause (4) of section 1-1101 shall be effected, in accordance with the provision of this subsection, by written communication signed by the chairman of such committee and filed with the Board not later than ninety days before the date of such election.

(2) Such designation shall specify separately (A) the titles of the offices and the total number of members to be elected at large, if any, and (B) the title of the offices and the total number of members to be elected by ward, if any.

(3) In the event that a party committee designates members to be elected by ward pursuant to clause (B) of paragraph (2) this subsection, the number of such officials to be elected from each of the wards shall be based on the relative numerical strength of such party in such ward, as compared with the total numerical strength of such party in the District, in each case as measured by the total number of registered voters of such party residing in each ward (as shown by the records of the Board as of one hundred twenty days before such election), based on the method known as the method of equal proportions, with no ward to elect less than one member.

(o) Each candidate in a general election for member of the Board of Education shall be nominated for such office by a nominating petition (A) filed with the Board not later than the sixtieth calendar day before the date of such general election; and (B) signed by at least two hundred qualified electors who are duly registered under section 1-1107, who reside in the ward from which the candidate seeks election, or in the case of a candidate running at large, signed by at least one thousand of the qualified electors in the District of Columbia registered under such section 1-1107. A nominating petition for a candidate in a general election for member of the Board of Education may not be circulated for signatures before the one hundred fourteenth day preceding the date of such election and may not be filed with the Board before the eighty-fifth day preceding such date. In a general election for members of the Board of Education, the Board shall arrange the ballot for each ward to enable a voter registered in that ward to vote for any one candidate duly nominated to be elected to such office from such ward, and to vote for as many candidates duly nominated for election at large to such office as there are Board of Education members to be elected at large in such election.

(p) (1) The Board is authorized to accept any nominating petition for a candidate for any office as bona fide with respect to the qualifications of the signatories thereto if the original or facsimile thereof has been posted in a suitable public place for the ten-day period beginning on the third day after the filing deadline for nominating petitions for such office. Any qualified elector may within such ten-day period challenge the validity of any petition by a written statement duly signed by the challenger and filed with the Board and specifying concisely the alleged defects in such petition. Copy of such challenge shall be sent by the Board promptly to the person designated for the purpose in the nominating petition.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 1-1105, 1-1109.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Application for review

Application for review which appealed order of District of Columbia Board of Elections' determination that ward candidate's nominating petition challenged by elector satisfied code requirements and which was filed on Wednesday following receipt by the elector of the order on the preceding Saturday was not filed within three-day period prescribed by Congress for review of determinations of the board of elections and therefore the District of Columbia Court of Appeals was without jurisdiction. G. C. Moore v. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 325 A.2d 452).

Challenge

Written challenge, which was filed with the District of Columbia Board of Elections by the Board's executive secretary who did not present his challenge as a "qualified elector" and which challenged the validity of several nominating petitions for the office of at-large council member, was invalid because not filed by a "qualified elector." C. L. Crawford v. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 325 A.2d 451).

Presidential candidates

Statutory provisions for nominating candidates for presidential electors by executive committees of major parties or by petition signed by at least 5% of the voters are the exclusive means through which presidential and vice presidential candidates may have their names printed on the ballot, but do not restrict the right of citizens, by write-in votes, to vote for candidates for whom qualified electors have been appointed but whose names are not printed on the ballot. L. R. Kamins v. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 187).

Standing

Alleged injuries to the public at large from the Board of Elections' refusal to check nominating petitions in the manner suggested by plaintiffs, the party political committee and its chairman, did not give plaintiffs standing to maintain action for preliminary injunction in absence of allegation of any injury in fact to plaintiffs. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia et al. v. Democratic Central Committee et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A. 2d 725).

Validity of petition

The presence of some invalid signatures on nominating petition does not necessarily make a petition deficient if petition contains the required numbers of valid signatures. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia et al. v. Democratic Central Committee et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A. 2d 725).

In view of statute setting forth duty of Board of Elections with respect to certification of nominating petitions and proper procedure to be utilized by an elector to challenge the validity of the petition, court would not attempt to judicially legislate a different procedure. Id.

Validity of signatures

In view of statutory provisions for determining validity of nominating petitions and for review of decisions of Board of Elections regarding challenges to such petitions, plaintiffs, the central committee of political party and its chairman, lacked standing to bring action for injunctive relief against board's refusal to check validity of signatures on nominating petitions in the manner desired by plaintiffs. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia et al. v. Democratic Central Committee et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A. 2d 725).

§ 1-1109. Method of voting—Place—Watchers—Challenging of votes—Appeal from challenged ballots—Handicapped and absent voters—Voting in party elections—Election of unopposed candidates—Availability of regulations.

(d) If the official in charge of the polling place, after hearing both parties to any such challenge or acting on his own initiative with respect to a prospective voter, reasonably believes the prospective voter is unqualified to vote, he shall allow the voter to cast a paper ballot marked "challenged", and shall provide the prospective voter with written notification of his rights of appeal as provided in subsection (e) of this section. Ballots so cast shall be segregated, and no such ballot shall be counted until the challenge has been removed as provided in subsection (e).

(e) Within 3 days after the date of any election held under this chapter, any person who was permitted to vote in that election with a ballot marked "challenged" may petition the Board to have such designation removed and have such ballot counted in the same manner as all other ballots cast in that election. The Board shall hold a hearing with respect to such petition within seven days after receipt of such petition. At such hearing, the petitioner may appear and give testimony on the question of the challenge. The Board shall make a determination regarding the challenge within 2 days after the date of such hearing. Any aggrieved party may appeal the decision of the Board to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia within three days after the date of the Board's decision. The decision of the Court in any such case shall be final and not appealable.

(As amended Aug. 14, 1973, Pub. L. 93-92, § 1(15), 87 Stat. 313; Dec. 16, 1975, D.C. Law 1-37, § 2(6), (7), 22 DCR 3430.)

AMENDMENTS

1975—Subsec. (d). Section 2(6) of act Dec. 16, 1975, D.C. Law 1-37, inserted ", and shall provide the prospective voter with written notification of his rights of appeal as provided in subsection (e) of this section" at the end of the first sentence.

Subsec. (e). Section 2(7) of such act amended subsec. (e) generally.

See note under § 1-1102.

§ 1-1110. Dates for holding elections—Votes cast for President and Vice President to be counted as votes for presidential electors—Voting hours—Method of deciding tie votes—Naming successor to official who dies, resigns, or is unable to serve—Filling vacancies on Board of Education.

(a) (1) The elections of the officials referred to in clause (1), (2), and (3) of section 1-1101, and of officials designated pursuant to clause (4) of such section, and the primary under section 1-1105(b) shall be held on the first Tuesday in May of each presidential election year.

(3) (A) Except as otherwise provided in the case of special elections under this chapter or section 206(a) of the District of Columbia Delegate Act, primary elections of each political party for the office of Delegate to the House of Representatives shall be held on the first Tuesday in May of each even-numbered year; and general elections for such office shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November of each even-numbered year.

(B) Except as otherwise provided in the case of special elections under this chapter primary elections of each political party for the office of member of the Council shall be held on the first Tuesday after the second Monday in September in 1974, and every second year thereafter, and general election for such offices shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in 1974 and every second year thereafter.

(C) Except as otherwise provided in the case of a special election under this chapter, primary elections of each political party for the office of Mayor and Chairman shall be held on the first Tuesday after the second Monday in September of every fourth year, commencing with calendar year 1974, and the general election for such office shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in 1974 and every fourth year thereafter.

(4) With respect to special elections required or authorized by this chapter, the Board may establish the dates on which such special elections are to be held and prescribe such other terms and conditions as may, in the Board's opinion, be necessary or appropriate for the conduct of such elections in a manner comparable to that prescribed for other elections held pursuant to this chapter.

(5) General elections for members of the Board of Education shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of each odd-numbered calendar year.

(6)-(9) Repealed. Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VII, § 751(5), 87 Stat. 835.

(b) All elections prescribed by this chapter shall be conducted by the Board in conformity with the provisions of this chapter. In all elections held pursuant to this chapter the polls shall be open from 7 o'clock antemeridian to 8 o'clock postmeridian. Candidates receiving the highest number of votes in elections held pursuant to this chapter shall be declared the winners.

(c) In the case of a tie vote, the resolution of which will affect the outcome of any election, the candidates receiving the tie vote shall cast lots before the Board, at 12 o'clock noon on a date to be set by the Board, but not sooner than ten days following determination by the Board of the results of the election which require the resolution of such tie, and the one to whom the lot shall fall shall be declared the winner. If any candidate or candidates, receiving a tie vote, fail to appear before 12 o'clock noon on said day, the Board shall cast lots for him or them. For the purpose of casting lots any candidate may appear in person, or by proxy appointed in writing.

(d) In the event that any official, other than the Delegate, Mayor, member of the Council, member of the Board of Education, or a winner of a primary election for the office of Delegate, Mayor, or member of the Council, elected pursuant to this chapter dies, resigns, or becomes unable to serve during his or her term of office leaving no person elected pursuant to this chapter to serve the remainder of the unexpired term of office, the successor or successors to serve the remainder of such term shall be chosen pursuant to the rules of the duly authorized party committee, except that such successor shall have the qualifications required by this chapter for such office. In the event that such a vacancy occurs in the office of a candidate for the office of Delegate, Mayor, or member of the Council who has been declared the winner in the preceding primary election of such office, the vacancy may be filled not later than fifteen days prior to the next general election for such office, by nomination by the party committee of the party which nominated his predecessor. In the event that such a vacancy occurs in the office of Delegate more than eight months before the expiration of its term of office, the Board shall call special elections to fill such vacancy for the remainder of its term of office.

(e) Whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of member of the Board of Education, such vacancy shall be filled at the next general election which occurs more than one hundred fourteen days after such vacancy occurs. However, the Board of Education shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy until the unexpired term of the vacant office ends or until the fourth Monday in January next following the date of the election of a person to serve the remainder of such unexpired term, whichever occurs first. A person elected to fill a vacancy shall hold office for the duration of the unexpired term of office to which he was elected. Any person appointed under this subsection shall have the same qualifications for holding such office as were required of his immediate predecessor. (As amended Aug. 14, 1973, Pub. L. 93-92, § 1(16)-(19), 87 Stat. 313; Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VII, § 751(4)-(8), 87 Stat. 834, 835; Aug. 29, 1974, Pub. L. 93-395, § 3(a), 88 Stat. 794.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Write-in votes

Statute providing that "Each vote cast for a candidate * * * whose name appears on the general election ballot shall be counted as a vote cast for the candidates for presidential electors" of that candidate's party means that the Board of Elections need not count votes for candidates for whom no slate of electors has been filed but does not preclude counting write-in votes in favor of candidates for whom a slate of electors has been filed, despite contention that the names of such write-in candidates do not "appear" on the ballot. L. R. Kamins v. Board of Elections for the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 187).

There is nothing in statute regulating elections in the District of Columbia which precluded the counting of write-in and sticker votes in a presidential election where such votes were cast for candidates for whom a valid slate of elections had been filed, and such votes should have been counted. Id.

§ 1-1111. Petition for recount by candidate—Procedure—Expenses—Petition for recount by voter to District of Columbia Court of Appeals—Grounds for voiding election.

(a) If, within seven days after the Board certifies the results of an election, any qualified candidate at such election petitions the Board to have the votes cast at such election recounted in one or more voting precincts, the Board shall order such recount. In each such case, the petitioner shall deposit a fee of $20 for each precinct petitioned to be recounted. If the cost of the recount is less than $20 per precinct, the difference shall be refunded. If the result of the election is changed as a result of the recount, the entire amount deposited by the petitioner shall be refunded. In no case, however, shall the petitioner be required to pay the cost of any recount in any such election if the difference in the number of votes received by the petitioner in connection with any office and the number of votes received by the person certified as having been elected to that office, in the case of an election from a ward, is less than 1 per centum or fifty votes, whichever is less, or in the case of an election at large, is less than 1 per centum or three hundred and fifty votes, whichever is less.

AMENDMENT

1973—Subsec. (a). Section 1(20) of Act Aug. 14, 1973, Pub. L. 93-92, amended subsec. (a) by striking out "Such recounts shall be conducted in the manner prescribed by the Board by regulation."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judicial review

Unsworn allegations in petition that winning candidate in primary for particular ward made unfair and illegal use of certain facilities of a nonprofit organization, including the use of mailing privileges of a church and the use of nursery van of the church in connection with mobile campaigning and that the Board of Elections should have removed the name or indicated the withdrawal of a particular person as a candidate was not sufficient to enable court to utilize its review powers over the election procedure. J. K. Morgan v. R. E. Martin, Chairman, etc. (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 827).

Voiding of election

Even though it was a matter of common knowledge that there had been problems with election machinery in primary election, unsworn allegations that the election procedures in one ward constituted an election fiasco, that some ballot boxes could have been altered or misplaced, that ballots were mixed together, that the computerized results were a fiasco, that supervision was lacking, that a voting circular violated fair campaign practices, and that one precinct was located in a physically inadequate room were insufficient to warrant voiding of the election in the ward or to warrant the institution by the court of an ad hoc fact finding process. J. K. Morgan v. R. E. Martin, Chairman, etc. (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 827).

Where Board of Elections submitted sworn statements that no ballots were lost or destroyed and that all valid ballots were counted, petition which alleged that candidate for Council in the ward was present at recount which decided winning candidate but was not present during the entire duration of a previous recount, and that Board of Elections failed to assure that program and equipment to count the votes by machine were in working order, failed to maintain adequate security of the ballots, erroneously held recounts, and failed to notify candidate of the first recount did not warrant setting aside the certified results of the election. Id.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality—Determination by Board of Elections

Even though the constitutional questions regarding challenge of the Socialist Workers' party to the provisions of this chapter based on ground that the application of the provisions to it would subject members whose names must be disclosed to harassment must be ruled on directly, it was within three-judge district court's power to direct the Board of Elections and Ethics to provide a suitable forum for plaintiffs' claims and, should the claims be proved, to provide an appropriate remedy. J. Doe et ano. v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1975, 404 F.Supp. 753).

— General

Campaign contribution disclosure statute [this chapter] serves too important an interest to subject it to excisions on allegations of a subjective "chill" based on real or perceived controversial character of candidate; such allegations are not an adequate substitute for claim of specific present objective harm. J. Doe et ano. v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1975, 404 F.Supp. 753).

— Proper party to challenge

Socialist Workers' party could properly assert claim regarding fear of harassment and reprisal to members of party by campaign contribution disclosure law [this chapter] on behalf of its members since to require that party members assert the claim would result in nullification of right at very moment of its assertion. J. Doe et ano v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1975, 404 F.Supp. 753).

SUBCHAPTER II.—FINANCIAL DISCLOSURES

§ 1-1131. Organization of political committees.

(a) Every political committee shall have a chairman and a treasurer. No contribution and no expenditure shall be accepted or made by or on behalf of a political committee at a time when there is a vacancy in the office of treasurer thereof and no other person has been designated and has agreed to perform the functions of treasurer. No expenditure shall be made for or on behalf of a political committee without the authorization of its chairman or treasurer, or their designated agents.

(b) Every person who receives a contribution of $10 or more for or on behalf of a political committee shall, on demand of the treasurer, and in any event within five days after receipt of such contribution, submit to the treasurer of such committee a detailed account thereof, including the amount, the name and address (including the occupation and the principal place of business, if any) of the person making such contribution, and the date on which such contribution was received. All funds of a political committee shall be segregated from, and may not be commingled with, any personal funds of officers, members, or associates of such committee.

(c) Except for accounts of expenditures made out of the petty cash fund provided for under section 1-1131(b),¹ the treasurer of a political committee, and each candidate, shall keep a detailed and exact account of—

(1) all contributions made to or for such political committee or candidate;

¹ So in original. Probably should be section "1-1133(b)".

(2) the full name and mailing address (including the occupation and the principal place of business, if any) of every person making a contribution of $10 or more, and the date and amount thereof;

(3) all expenditures made by or on behalf of such committee or candidate; and

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 1-1139.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Disclosure of records

Requirement of statute regarding the keeping of records for each contribution of $10 or more to political party has an implicit provision against disclosure of those records except for that which is inextricably and unavoidably involved in the process of verification and audit. J. Doe et ano. v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1975, 404 F. Supp. 753).

§ 1-1132. Principal campaign committee.

(a) Each candidate for office shall designate in writing one political committee as his principal campaign committee. The principal campaign committee shall receive all reports made by any other political committee accepting contributions or making expenditures for the purpose of influencing the nomination for election, or election, of the candidate who designated it as his principal campaign committee. The principal committee may require additional reports to be made to it by any such political committee and may designate the time and number of all reports. No political committee may be designated as the principal campaign committee of more than one candidate, except a principal campaign committee supporting the nomination or election of a candidate as an official of a political party may support the nomination or election of more than one such candidate, but may not support the nomination or election of a candidate for any public office.

(b) Each statement (including the statement of organization required under section 1-1134) or report that a political committee is required to file with or furnish to the Director under the provisions of this chapter shall also be furnished, if that political committee is not a principal campaign committee, to the campaign committee for the candidate on whose behalf that political committee is accepting or making, or intends to accept or make, contributions or expenditures.

(c) The treasurer of each political committee which is a principal campaign committee, and each candidate, shall receive all reports and statements filed with or furnished to it or him by other political committees, consolidate, and furnish the reports and statements to the Director, together with the reports and statements of the principal campaign committee of which he is treasurer or which was designated by him, in accordance with the provisions of this title and regulations prescribed by the Board. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title II, § 202, 88 Stat. 450.)

§ 1-1133. Designation of campaign depository.

(a) Each political committee, and each candidate accepting contributions or making expenditures, shall designate, in the registration statement required under section 1-1134 or 1-1135, one national bank located in the District of Columbia as the campaign depository of that political committee or candidate. Each such committee or candidate shall maintain a checking account at such depository and shall deposit any contributions received by the committee or candidate into that account. No expenditures may be made by such committee or candidate except by check drawn payable to the person to whom the expenditure is being made on that account, other than petty cash expenditures as provided in subsection (b).

(b) A political committee or candidate may maintain a petty cash fund out of which may be made expenditures not in excess of $50 to any person in connection with a single purchase or transaction. A record of petty cash receipts and disbursements shall be kept in accordance with requirements established by the Board and such statements and reports thereof shall be furnished to the Director as it may require. Payments may be made into the petty cash fund only by check drawn on the checking account maintained at the campaign depository of such political committee or candidate. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title II, § 203, 88 Stat. 451.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 1-1131.

§ 1-1134. Registration of political committees—Statements.

(6) the name, address, office sought, and party affiliation of (A) each candidate whom the committee is supporting, and (B) any other individual, if any, whom the committee is supporting for nomination for election or election, to any public office whatever; or, if the committee is supporting the entire ticket of any party, the name of the party;

(7) a statement whether the political committee is a continuing one;

(8) the disposition of residual funds which will be made in the event of dissolution;

(10) such other information as shall be required by the Director.

(c) Any change in information previously submitted in a statement of organization shall be reported to the Director within the ten-day period following the change.

(d) Any political committee which, after having filed one or more statements of organization, disbands or determines it will no longer receive contributions or make expenditures during the calendar year shall so notify the Director. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title II, § 204, 88 Stat. 451.)

In addition such reports shall be filed on the 31st day of July of each year in which there is no such election. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title III, § 304, 88 Stat. 456.)

§ 1-1155. Nominating committee.

(a) Effective January 2, 1975, there is established within the Government of the District of Columbia a committee to be known as the "District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics Nominating Committee" (hereinafter in this chapter referred to as the "Committee"). The Committee shall have the function of nominating individuals for appointment as members of the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics for any and all vacancies occurring on such Board on or after the date on which a majority of the members first appointed pursuant to this section hold their first meeting as members of the Committee. Such nominations shall be made by the Committee in accordance with the provisions of this section. The Committee shall consist of five members. Within ten days following the date on which a majority of the members are first appointed pursuant to this section, such members so appointed shall hold their first meeting as members of the Committee.

(b)(1) Two members of the Committee shall be appointed by the Mayor, at least one of whom shall be a lawyer.

(2) Three members of the Committee shall be appointed by the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, with the approval of the Council.

(c) Members of the Committee shall serve for terms of five years, except that of the members first appointed pursuant to subsection (b)(1), one shall serve for one year and one for five years, as designated at the time of appointment, and members appointed pursuant to subsection (b)(2), one shall serve for two years, one for three years, and one for four years, as designated at the time of appointment.

(d)(1) No individual may be appointed as a member of the Committee unless he or she—

(C) is not a member of the Council of the District of Columbia or an officer or employee of the Government of the District of Columbia (including the judicial branch).

(2) Any vacancy in the membership of the Committee shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made. Any individual appointed to fill a vacancy, occurring other than upon the expiration of a term, shall serve only for the remainder of the term of such individual's predecessor.

(e) Members of the Committee shall be paid for each day spent performing their duties as members of the Committee at a rate which is equal to the daily equivalent of the rate provided by step 1 of grade 17 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code.

(f)(1) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (a) of this section, the Committee shall act only at meetings called by the Chairman or a majority of the members thereof and only after notice has been given of such meeting to all members of the Committee.

(2) The Committee shall choose annually from among its members a Chairman and such other officers as it deems necessary. The Committee may adopt such rules of procedure as may be necessary to govern the business of the Committee.

(3) Each agency of the government of the District of Columbia shall furnish to the Committee, upon request, such records, information, services, and such other assistance and facilities as may be necessary to enable the Committee to perform its function properly. Any information furnished to the Committee designated "confidential" by the person furnishing it to the Committee shall be treated by the Committee as privileged and confidential.

(g)(1) In the event of any such vacancy in the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics, the Committee shall, within thirty days after such vacancy occurs, submit a list of three persons as nominees for appointment by the Mayor to fill the vacancy. If more than one such vacancy exists at the same time, the Committee shall submit a separate list of nominees for appointment to fill each such vacancy, and no individual's name shall appear on more than one such list. In filling such vacancy, the Mayor may appoint more than one individual from any list currently before the Mayor. In any case in which, after the expiration of the thirty-day period following the date on which a majority of the members of the Committee first meet as provided in subsection (a), a vacancy is scheduled to occur, by reason of the expiration of a term of office, the Committee's list of nominees for appointment to fill that vacancy shall be submitted to the Mayor not less than thirty days prior to the expiration of that term.

(2) If the Mayor fails to submit for Council approval the name of one of the individuals on a list submitted to the Mayor under this section within thirty days after receiving such list, the Committee shall appoint, with the approval of the Council, an individual named on the list to fill the vacancy for which such list of nominees was prepared.

(3) Any individual whose name is submitted by the Committee as a nominee for appointment to the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics may request that the nomination of such individual be withdrawn. If any such individual requests that his or her nomination be withdrawn, dies, or becomes disqualified to serve as a member of the Board, the Committee shall promptly nominate an individual to replace the individual originally nominated on the list submitted to the Mayor.

(h) Members of the Committee shall be appointed as soon as practicable, but in no event later than June 30, 1975. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title III, § 305, 88 Stat. 456.)

(a) On and after August 14, 1974, the Board of Elections of the District of Columbia established under chapter 11 of this title, shall be known as the "District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics" and shall have the powers, duties, and functions as provided in such chapter, in any other law in effect on the date immediately preceding August 14, 1974, and in this chapter. Any reference in any law or regulation to the Board of Elections for the District of Columbia or the District of Columbia Board of Elections shall, on and after August 14, 1974, be held and considered to refer to the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics.

(b) (1) Any person who violates any provision of this chapter or of chapter 11 of this title may be assessed a civil penalty by the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics under paragraph (2) of this subsection of not more than $50 for each such violation. Each occurrence of a violation of this chapter and each day of noncompliance with a disclosure requirement of this chapter or an order of the Board shall constitute a separate offense.

(2) A civil penalty shall be assessed by the Board by order only after the person charged with a violation has been given an opportunity for a hearing, and the Board has determined, by decision incorporating its findings of facts therein, that a violation did occur, and the amount of the penalty. Any hearing under this section shall be of record and shall be held in accordance with the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, sec. 1-1501 et seq.).

(3) If the person against whom a civil penalty is assessed fails to pay the penalty, the Board shall file a petition for enforcement of its order assessing the penalty in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. The petition shall designate the person against whom the order is sought to be enforced as the respondent. A copy of the petition shall be forthwith sent by registered or certified mail to the respondent and his attorney of record, and if the respondent is a political committee, to the Chairman thereof, and thereupon the Board shall certify and file in such court the record upon which such order sought to be enforced was issued. The court shall have jurisdiction to enter a judgment enforcing, modifying, and enforcing as so modified, or setting aside in whole or in part the order and the decision of the Board or it may remand the proceedings to the Board for such further action as it may direct. The court may determine de novo all issues of law but the Board's findings of fact, if supported by substantial evidence, shall be conclusive.

(c) Upon application made by any individual holding public office, any candidate, or any political committee, the Board, through its General Counsel, shall provide within a reasonable period of time an advisory opinion, with respect to any specific transaction or activity inquired of, as to whether such transaction or activity would constitute a violation of any provision of this chapter or of any provision of chapter 11 of this title over which the Board has primary jurisdiction. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title III, § 306, 88 Stat. 458; Jan. 3, 1975, Pub. L. 93-635, § 14(a), 88 Stat. 2178.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutional questions

Even though the constitutional questions regarding challenge of the Socialist Workers' party to the provisions of this chapter based on ground that the application of the provisions to it would subject members whose names must be disclosed to harassment must be ruled on directly, it was within three-judge district court's power to direct the Board of Elections and Ethics to provide a suitable forum for plaintiffs' claims and, should the claims be proved, to provide an appropriate remedy. J. Doe et al. v. R. Martin, Chairman, et al. (1975, 404 F. Supp. 753).

SUBCHAPTER IV.—FINANCE LIMITATIONS

§ 1-1161. General limitations.

(a) No individual shall make any contribution which, and no person shall receive any contribution from any individual which when aggregated with all other contributions received from that individual, relating to a campaign for nomination as a candidate for election to public office, including both the primary and general or special elections, exceeds—

(5) in the case of a contribution in support of a candidate for member of the Board of Education elected from a ward or for official of a political party, $200, and in the case of a runoff election, an additional $200; and

(6) in the case of a contribution in support of a candidate for a member of an Advisory Neighborhood Commission, $25.

For the purposes of this subsection, the term "person" shall include a candidate making contributions relating to his candidacy for nomination for election, or election, to office. Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection, a candidate for member of the Council elected from a ward may contribute $1,000 to his own campaign, and a candidate for member of an Advisory Neighborhood Commission may contribute $50 to his own campaign. The provisions of this subsection to the extent that such provisions are applicable to corporations and unions shall, to that extent, expire as of July 1, 1976, unless the Council of the District of Columbia on or before such date enacts legislation repealing or modifying such provisions or extending such provisions as to corporations and unions on and after that date. In the event that the Council fails to so repeal, modify, or extend such provisions as to corporations and labor unions, the Council shall report its reasons therefor to the Committees on the District of Columbia of the Senate and the House of Representatives prior to August 1, 1975.

(c) No individual shall make any contribution in any one election which when aggregated with all other contributions made by that individual in that election exceeds $2,000.

(d) (1) Any expenditure made by any person advocating the election or defeat of any candidate for office which is not made at the request or suggestion of the candidate, any agent of the candidate, or any political committee authorized by the candidate to make expenditures or to receive contributions for the candidate is not considered a contribution to or an expenditure by or on behalf of the candidate for the purposes of the limitations specified in this chapter.

(2) No person may make any unauthorized expenditure advocating the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate during a calendar year which, when added to all other unauthorized expenditures made by that person during the year advocating the election or defeat of that candidate, exceeds $1,000.

(ii) a photograph or drawing of the candidate appears, or

(iii) the identity of the candidate is apparent by unambiguous reference,

(B) "person" does not include the central committee of a political party, and

(C) "expenditure" does not include any payment made or incurred by a corporation or labor organization which, under the provisions of section 610 of title 18 of the United States Code would not constitute an expenditure by that corporation or labor organization.

(4) Every candidate shall file a statement with the Board, in such manner and form and at such times as the Board may prescribe, authorizing any person or any political committee organized primarily to support the candidacy of such candidate to either directly or indirectly, receive contributions, or make expenditures in behalf of, such candidate. No person and no committee organized primarily to support a single candidate may, either directly or indirectly, receive contributions or make expenditures in behalf of, such candidate without the written authorization of such candidate as required by this paragraph.

(e) In no case shall any person receive or make any contribution in legal tender in an amount of $50 or more.

(f) No person shall make a contribution in the name of another person, and no person shall knowingly accept a contribution made by one person in the name of another person.

(g) For purposes of the limitations contained in this section all contributions made by any person directly or indirectly to or for the benefit of a particular candidate, including contributions which are in any way earmarked, encumbered, or otherwise directed through an intermediary or conduit to that candidate, shall be treated as contributions from that person to that candidate.

(h) (1) No candidate or member of the immediate family of a candidate may make a loan or advance from his personal funds for use in connection with a campaign of that candidate for nomination for election, or for election, to public office unless that loan or advance is evidenced by a written instrument fully disclosing the terms, conditions, and parts to the loan or advance. The amount of any such loan or advance shall be included in computing and applying the limitations contained in this section only to extent of the balance of the loan or advance which is unpaid at the time of determination.

(2) For purposes of this subsection, the term "immediate family" means the candidate's spouse and any parent, brother, or sister, or child of the candidate, and the spouse of any such parent, brother, sister, or child. (Aug. 14, 1974, Pub. L. 93-376, title IV, § 401, 88 Stat. 459; Sept. 23, 1975, D.C. Law 1-16, § 2, 22 DCR 1987; Oct. 10, 1975, D.C. Law 1-21, § 7(a), 22 DCR 2069; Oct. 30, 1975, D.C. Law 1-27, § 3(a), (b), 22 DCR 2471.)

(c) No person shall offer or give to a public official or a member of a public official's household, and no public official shall solicit or receive anything of value, including a gift, favor, service, loan, gratuity, discount, hospitality, political contribution, or promise of future employment, based on any understanding that such public official's official actions or judgment or vote would be influenced thereby, or where it could reasonably be inferred that the thing of value would influence the public official in the discharge of his duties, or as a reward, or which would cause the total value of such things received from the same person not a member of such public official's household to exceed $100 during any single calendar year, except for political contributions publicly reported pursuant to section 1-1136 and transactions made in the ordinary course of business of the person offering or giving the thing of value.

the public official in his official capacity, for advice or assistance given in the course of the public official's employment or relating to his employment.

(g) Any public official who, in the discharge of his official duties, would be required to take an action or make a decision that would affect directly or indirectly his financial interests or those of a member of his household, or a business with which he is associated, or must take an official action on a matter as to which he has a conflict situation created by a personal, family, or client interest, shall—

(1) prepare a written statement describing the matter requiring action or decision, and the nature of his potential conflict of interest with respect to such action or decision;

(2) cause copies of such statement to be delivered to the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics (referred to in this subchapter as the "Board"), and to his immediate superior, if any;

(3) if he is a member of the Council of the District of Columbia or member of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia, or employee of either, deliver a copy of such statement to the Chairman thereof, who shall cause such statement to be printed in the record of proceedings, and, upon request of said member or employee, shall excuse the member from votes, deliberations, and other action on the matter on which a potential conflict exists;

(4) if he is not a member of the Council of the District of Columbia, his superior, if any, shall assign the matter to another employee who does not have a potential conflict of interest, or, if he has no immediate superior, he shall take such steps as the Board prescribes through rules and regulations to remove himself from influence over actions and decisions on the matter on which potential conflict exists; and

(5) during a period when a charge of conflict of interest is under investigation by the Board, if he is not a member of the Council of the District of Columbia or a member of the Board of Education, his superior, if any, shall have the arbitrary power to assign the matter to another employee who does not have a potential conflict of interest, or if he has no immediate superior, he shall take such steps as the Board shall prescribe through rules and regulations to remove himself from influence over actions and decisions on the matter on which there is a conflict of interest.

(h) Neither the Mayor nor any member of the Council of the District of Columbia may represent another person before any regulatory agency or court of the District of Columbia while serving in such office. The preceding sentence does not apply to an appearance by such an official before any such agency or court in his official capacity.

SUBCHAPTER II.—COMPACT FOR MASS TRANSPORTATION

§ 1-1410. Consent of Congress given for Virginia, Maryland and District of Columbia to enter into compact for regulation of mass transportation in Washington metropolitan area.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Considerations in making fare adjustments

Transit Commission in exercising its rate-making function was under obligation to take into account any economy that transit company could effect, and any that were probable from decreased ridership. Democratic Central Committee et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 847, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

—Appreciation

Where in-service appreciation of transit company's below-the-line lands was not depleted by disposition in another rate case, Transit Commission was required to consider appreciation-allocation when it undertook to revise fares and failure to do so rendered order establishing fares fatally defective. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Capital gains realized on disposition of depreciable assets while in service do not automatically flow to transit company's investors, although extraordinary circumstances may enable them to share therein, and transit company's farepayers have protectible interest in such gains which extends to amount of depreciation which has been charged to farepayers and may extend beyond. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 786, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 7; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Where risk of loss of value of lands was unlikely, farepayers had shouldered significant financial onus with respect to such lands, and transit company investors benefited uniquely in their ownership of lands, farepayers were entitled to all appreciations in value of properties which transit company transferred from operating to nonoperating status and which had appreciated in value while in service. Id.

—Economical transit

In appraising whether transit operation is economical, account must also be taken of relationship between level of fares and worth of services rendered to riders. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Transit service is not economical simply because it is honest, mechanically efficient, and as thrifty as it can be under circumstances. Id.

Transit system is not economical if charge for service must be set at inordinately high levels in order for transit company to obtain profit. Id.

—Efficiency of management

Transit Commission, in rate-fixing proceeding, was under affirmative duty to give due consideration to efficiency of transit company's management and could not fail to investigate such management because of failure of formal parties to produce evidence of bad management. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

—Impact of higher fares

In considering bus company's application for rate increase, it was the Transit Commission's responsibility to minimize the impact of higher fares on bus company's patrons. D. K. Powell v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 1080, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

—Increased labor costs

Possible increased labor costs attributable to changes in cost-of-living index are properly to be taken into account in establishing bus fares whenever they can be predicted with reasonable accuracy. D.C. Transit System, Inc. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 881, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 102).

—Profitability

Evidence in rate-fixing proceeding for transit company was sufficient to indicate to Transit Commission that it should investigate extent that company would have been able to make profit if there were no regulation at all and extent to which company could earn sufficient return to make it attractive investment at any level of fares which could have been deemed reasonable. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

— Rate of return

Rate of return on equity of 5.33% allowed to bus company in connection with approved rate increases was not immodest. D. K. Powell v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 1080, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

Bus company's debt-equity ratio was a factor to be taken into account in ascertaining a fair return, in connection with application for rate increases. Id.

One of the factors which may be taken into consideration in calculating the rate of return to a public utility is the degree of risk to which its capital is put. Id.

Interim rate increase

Under the circumstances, Transit Commission which found that existing fares were unjust and which heard conflicting testimony as to whether decrease in passengers resulting from fare increase would result in cost savings, acted properly in ordering temporary fare increase without delving deeper into cost savings. Democratic Central Committee et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 847, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

In fashioning interim fare orders, Transit Commission was not required to make full and complete findings that must accompany exercise of its authority to prescribe permanent rates. Id.

Notwithstanding likelihood that transit company would be obligated to make substantial refunds under decisions affecting other fare orders, Transit Commission which found that existing fares were unjust properly granted temporary increase in fares to enable transit company to operate at break-even point. Id.

Judicial review

Where petitioner who sought review of Transit Commission order authorizing bus company to increase its fares did not raise any question, in her application to the Commission for reconsideration, as to the propriety of recognizing bus company's position as a component of a corporate conglomerate in connection with analyzing risk factor, such issue could not be litigated in court in review proceedings. D. K. Powell v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 1080, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

For purpose of judicial review, request that Transit Commission postpone further consideration of fare increase until final determination by court, in another case, of credit properly to be allowed bus riders for appreciation in value of transit company's land withdrawn from public use adequately presented claim that Commission, in rate-fixing case, should have considered appreciation in value of certain of transit company's landholdings occurring while lands were in service and prior to their transfer from operating to nonoperating status. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Where issue of failure of Transit Commission to include income from transit company subsidiaries in its computation of new fares was not presented to Transit Commission in proceeding for establishment of fares, court, on petition to review Commission's order, would not consider claims relating thereto. Id.

Reasonable fare

It cannot be said that any transit fare is reasonable no matter how high it was or how few riders were able to pay fare, so long as transit company was able to show technical excess of gross income over expenses. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Reasonableness of fare entails consideration of value of service to riders, numbers who can use service at fare set, and burden of those fares on riding public or important segments of it. Id.

Remedial orders

In view of defects in rate orders issued by Transit Commission, and fact that there had been public takeover of transit company's transportation assets and operations, restitution was appropriate avenue of relief. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Where prior decision in rate case directed that transit company restore all amounts collected as result of illegal fare increase and monies transferred to transit company from court-ordered reserve, and protestants had conceded certain dollar figures for gross revenues sufficient to provide transit with return on its equity capital after allowing for operating expenses and interest on company's debt, Commission in determining conceded return should have multiplied dollar amounts by number of years without substituting for test-year estimates of interest and equity the actual figures which the company logged during each year in question. L. N. Bebbichick et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 858, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 79).

Where court declared Transit Commission's rate-making order invalid, restitution was proper remedy. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 786, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 7; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Procedure to be followed by Transit Commission to assist court in determining amount of restitution to be paid by transit company as a result of declaration of invalidity of rate-fixing order set forth. Id.

Transfer of transit company from private to public company did not affect private company's obligation to make refund under invalid rate-fixing order. Id.

Requirements of Commission

In dealing with bus company's application for leave to elevate its fares, Transit Commission was called upon to balance the interest of both company and the public. D. K. Powell v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 1080, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

Transit Commission, in rate-fixing proceeding, was not at liberty to sit back and place responsibility for initiating or carrying through essential inquiries on private parties. Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission (1973, 485 F. 2d 886, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 107; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1451, 415 U.S. 935).

Bus drivers who were engaged in interstate commerce and who regularly spent more than 50% of their work week in District of Columbia were entitled to benefits of District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act [§ 46-301 et seq.]. *K. SUBCHAPTER III.—RAIL RAPID TRANSIT

SUBCHAPTER REFERRED TO IN U.S. CODE

§ 1-1421. Statement of findings and purpose.

To further the objectives of subchapter I of this chapter, the Congress hereby finds and declares that—

* * * * *

(c) Various steps have already been taken to bring such a system into being, including the preparation by the National Capital Transportation Agency (hereinafter referred to as the "Agency") of a Transit Development Program for the National Capital region, and authorization of the negotiation by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, the State of Maryland and the Commonwealth of Virginia of an interstate compact to establish a regional transportation organization under the terms of sections 1-1408 and 1-1409, and approval by the Congress of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Regulation Compact (sections 1-1410 and 1-1410a). Nothing in this subchapter shall be construed as altering or amending the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Regulation Compact.

(d) While the negotiation of an interstate compact to establish a regional transportation organization has not been completed, and plans for the development of improved mass transit facilities throughout the National Capital region are still being developed, the Agency has prepared a satisfactory Transit Development Program for the establishment, principally within the District of Columbia, of a system of rail rapid transit lines and related facilities which are capable of being extended to serve other parts of the region, and the design and construction of such facilities should now proceed as contemplated by subchapter I of this chapter.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Administrative Procedure Act

Administrative Procedure Act does not apply to Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority inasmuch as Authority is not a federal agency. R. Birnberg et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (1975, 389 F. Supp. 340).

Condemnation

Whether or not Congress explicitly or implicitly authorized the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority to condemn cemetery property, the Authority could condemn a property interest in the cemetery for the limited purpose of making eight test borings to determine feasibility of tunnel under the cemetery where, inter alia, taking would be limited to 30 days, borings would be made in roadway so that no grave would be physically disturbed, and access to all graves would be maintained at all times. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority v. One Parcel of Land, etc., et al. (1975, 514 F. 2d 1350, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Decisions of Transit Authority

Transit Authority board of directors is not required to make statement of findings or reasons to support its decisions, since board is a quasi-legislative body engaged in planning and construction of rapid rail transit system and, as such, its decisions are not subject to any constitutional or statutory due process requirement mandating findings or reasons. R. Birnberg et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (1975, 389 F. Supp. 340).

Environmental impact

In absence of showing that Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority had become a federal agency, there was no requirement for an environmental impact statement in connection with construction of subway route. J. J. Saunders v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (1973, 359 F. Supp. 457; rem'd 486 F.2d 1315, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 55).

Public hearing

It is not necessary that quorum of board of directors of Transit Authority be present at public hearings on transit system alignment nor that members of board of directors who attend public hearings on transit system alignment be same board members who ultimately vote to adopt alignment discussed at public hearings. R. Birnberg et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (1975, 389 F. Supp. 340).

In action to enjoin construction subway segment area in which plaintiffs were residents on ground that hearing held by Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority was too broad to suffice as public hearing required by law, evidence established that, with exception of question of design and location of vent shafts, all aspects of segment had been previously accorded due consideration and opportunity for public comments and that there was no likelihood that those other aspects could be so affected by public hearing on location and design of vent shafts as to warrant a full hearing de novo on all aspects of the segment. J. J. Saunders v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (1973, 359 F. Supp. 457; rem'd 486 F. 2d 1315, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 55).

There is no need for public hearing on each minor detail of plan for construction of subway by Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, but only on major elements, such as stations, routes, station access points and planned vent shafts, but word "major" is not to be defined by arguments over semantics, cost of construction or size of facility, and real public interest in opportunity to be heard should be measured by impact of facility on people affected, whether by actual displacement, taking of property, removal of trees or altering character of neighborhood. Id.

Residents had no absolute right to block subway through their area or its vent shafts but had right to be heard on design and location of those facilities. Id.

Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority had burden, in connection with public hearings to be held concerning construction of subway facilities, to provide adequate notice concerning items which were likely to be focus of interest on part of persons affected. Id.

Review

Decision of board of directors of Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority to build segment of rapid rail transit system under certain street was not arbitrary, capricious, or irrational. R. Birnberg et al. v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (1975, 389 F. Supp. 340).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applicability to Joint Committee on Landmarks

Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital as an intergovernmental agency is not an agency of the District of Columbia, and the Court of Appeals lacks jurisdiction to entertain petition for review of its action under this chapter. J. W. Latimer, Jr., et al. v. The Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 484).

Applicability to National Capital Housing Authority

The National Capital Housing Authority is not an "agency of the District of Columbia" within this chapter which establishes procedures to be observed by the commissioner, the council, and agencies of the District government. R. L. Coleman et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A.2d 496).

Applicability to Public Service Commission

Provision of section 11-722 that Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to review orders and decisions of any agency of the District in accordance with Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), and may review orders or decision of the Public Service Commission in accordance with Commission's organic act (chapters 1-10 of title 43), carves out only a limited area in which Administrative Procedure Act is inapplicable to the Commission, that being in the area of standard and scope of review, rather than a wholesale exemption from Administrative Procedure Act coverage. Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. v. Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 710).

Applicability to Zoning Commission proceedings

Proceedings before District of Columbia Zoning Commission are quasi-legislative in character, not adjudicative in nature, and strictures of this chapter and full range of due process protections necessary to an adversary adjudication are not applicable. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 686).

Construction

Decision of Public Service Commission in telephone rate proceeding to furnish transcripts to intervenors at telephone company's expense does not constitute a proper exercise of Commission's delegated powers to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings of public utilities and other parties before it, since any procedure established by the Commission must conform with the minimum requirements set forth in Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), and since Commissions rule that transcripts be furnished to intervenors at telephone company's expense was a mere nullity because it contravened express language of section 1-1509. Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. v. Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 710).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Contested case

When Zoning Commission exercised its authority to determine needs of area by denying without public hearing a proposed amendment to zoning maps to change zoning classification of property, the Commission was acting legislatively and was not subject to the "contested case" provisions of this chapter, with the result that such decision is not subject to direct review by the Court of Appeals, despite contention of property owner that mere submission of proposed amendment, and the subsequent rejection of same, constituted a "hearing" required by law, and thus is subject to review. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

An administrative proceeding is primarily adjudicatory and therefore governed by "contested case" procedural requirements if it is concerned basically with weighing particular information and arriving at a decision directed at the rights of specific parties; on the other hand, an administrative proceeding is not subject to "contested case" procedural requirements if the administrative body is acting in a legislative capacity, making policy decisions directed toward general public. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A.2d 310).

Phrase "after a hearing" as used in statute defining a "contested case" as meaning a proceeding in which the legal rights and privileges of specific parties are required to be determined after a hearing means after a trial-type hearing where such is implicitly required by either the organic act or constitutional right. Id.

Where a proceeding by a quasi-legislative body is concerned primarily with the immediate rights, duties, or privileges of specific parties instead of with general policy of future applicability, such proceeding falls within the "contested case" provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act. Id.

— Environmental protection

Controversy over refusal of Mayor-Commissioner and his designated agents to grant petitioners' request to take immediate steps to correct by appropriate action an alleged air pollution emergency in District of Columbia was not a "contested case" within purview of this chapter granting limited judicial review to District of Columbia Court of Appeals in respect to orders or decisions of a District of Columbia agency made "after a hearing before the Commissioner or the Council or before an agency" in a "contested case." Environmental Defense Fund, Inc., et al. v. Mayor-Commissioner of the District of Columbia et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 515).

— Minimum wages

Public hearing preliminary to revision of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board's order with regard to persons employed in hotel, restaurant and allied occupations was not a "contested case" within purview of notice provisions of this chapter. Hotel Association of Washington, D.C. et al. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A.2d 294).

Application for special exception to allow construction in residential zone of private school for kindergarten and elementary school age children resulted in a "contested case" within meaning of this chapter. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 701).

— Street closings

Decision of District of Columbia Council, pursuant to the Street Readjustment Act, to close portion of street and, once closed, to authorize the surveyor to convey title to the abutting landowners for development purposes did not constitute a "contested case" within meaning of the Administrative Procedure Act; in determining whether it should close the street the Council was exercising legislative discretion based on primarily legislative facts; also, Council's decision regarding compensation, though primarily adjudicatory, did not fall within the "contested case" definition since it was subject to trial de novo in Superior Court. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A.2d 310).

— Zoning

Proceedings held under the District of Columbia zoning commission's rules of practice, resulting in down-zoning of area, were not a "contested case" within meaning of Administrative Procedure Act, but were adversary in nature and equity could be invoked. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 683).

Joint Committee on Landmarks

Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital as an intergovernmental agency is not an agency of the District of Columbia, and the Court of Appeals lacks jurisdiction to entertain petition for review of its action under this chapter. J. W. Latimer, Jr., et al. v. The Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 484).

National Capital Housing Authority

The National Capital Housing Authority is not an "agency of the District of Columbia" within this chapter which establishes procedures to be observed by the commissioner, the council, and agencies of the District government. R. L. Coleman et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A.2d 496).

Rulemaking

Interpretation or implementation by taxing authorities of words "full and true value" by changing debasement factor for taxation of single-family residences from 55 percent of estimated market value to 60 percent is, within meaning of this chapter, "rulemaking" such as to require publication of notice despite contention that change was part of effort to equalize District of Columbia tax assessments as required by Constitution. District of Columbia et al. v. C. Green et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 848).

§ 1-1503. Establishment of general procedures.

(a) The Mayor and the Council shall for the Mayor and for each subordinate agency, establish or require each subordinate agency to establish procedures in accordance with this chapter.

(b) Each independent agency shall establish procedures in accordance with this chapter.

(c) The procedures required to be established by subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall include requirements of practice before the Mayor and each agency. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 4, 82 Stat. 1205; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102(r), (s), 22 DCR 2051.)

AMENDMENTS

1975—Subsec. (a). Section 102(r) of Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended subsec. (a) by substituting "The Mayor and the Council shall for the Mayor and" for "The Commissioner and the Council shall, for themselves and".

Subsec. (c). Section 102(s) of such Act amended subsec. (c) by substituting "Mayor" for "Commissioner and the Council".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

See note under § 1-1501.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Delay

Complaint charging discrimination against minority groups depriving them of equal employment opportunities, and amendment to the complaint, and a subpoena duces tecum were not invalid based on failure of Human Relations Commission to promulgate rules of procedure as required by District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act, where Commission promulgated and published rules of procedure during pendency of proceedings, and defendant had not been prejudiced by delay in the publication. D.C. Human Relations Commission v. National Geographic Society (1973, 475 F.2d 366, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

§ 1-1503a. Open meetings and hearings—Transcripts—Availability to the public.

(a) All meetings (including hearings) of any department, agency, board, or commission of the District government, including meetings of the District Council, at which official action of any kind is taken shall be open to the public. No resolution, rule, act, regulation or other official action shall be effective unless taken, made, or enacted at such meeting.

(b) A written transcript or a transcription shall be kept for all such meetings and shall be made available to the public during normal business hours of the District government. Copies of such written transcripts or copies of such transcriptions shall be available upon request to the public at reasonable cost. (Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VII, § 742, 87 Stat. 831.)

CODIFICATION

Section was enacted as part of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act, and not as part of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act which comprises this chapter.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 771 of Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, as amended, set out as a note under § 1-121, provided in part that this section is effective on Jan. 2, 1975, if a majority of the registered qualified electors in the District of Columbia voting on the charter issue in the charter referendum accepted the charter set out in title IV of such Act. The charter was approved by the voters on May 7, 1974.

DEFINITIONS

The definitions in § 1-122 apply to terms appearing in this section.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Board of Education meetings

Given the express intent of Congress to allow certain meetings of the Board of Education to be closed and the embodiment of that intent in a specific statute (§ 31-101), that prior statute remains in effect as a qualification of this section requiring meetings of the District government to be open to the public. R. Goodwin et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Education et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 63).

§ 1-1504. Official publication.

(a) The Mayor shall publish at regular intervals not less frequently than once every two weeks a bulletin to be known as the "District of Columbia Register," in which shall be set forth the full text of all rules filed in the office of the Mayor during the period covered by each issue of such bulletin, except that the Mayor may in his discretion omit from the District of Columbia Register rules the publication of which would be unduly cumbersome, expensive, or otherwise inexpedient, if, in lieu of such publication, there is included in the Register a notice stating the general subject matter of any rule so omitted and stating the manner in which a copy of such rule may be obtained.

(b) All courts within the District shall take judicial notice of rules, regulations, and Council acts and resolutions published or of which notice is given in the District of Columbia Register pursuant to this section.

(c) Publication in the District of Columbia Register of Council acts and resolutions, regulations adopted, amended, or repealed by the District of Columbia Council and rules adopted, amended, or repealed by the Mayor or by any agency shall not be considered as a substitute for publication in one or more newspapers of general circulation when such publication is required by statute.

(d) The Mayor shall publish in the District of Columbia Register all acts, resolutions, and notices of the Council and shall publish such other matters as requested by the Chairman of the Council or his designee.

(e) The Mayor is authorized to publish in the District of Columbia Register, in addition to rules published under authority contained in subsection (a) of this section and matters published under authority contained in subsection (d) of this section, (1) cumulative indexes to rules, regulations, and Council acts and resolutions which have been adopted, amended, or repealed; (2) information on changes in the organization of the District Government; (3) notices of public hearings; (4) codifications of rules, regulations, and Council acts and resolutions; and (5) such other matters as the Mayor may from time to time determine to be of general public interest. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 5, 82 Stat.

1206; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102(t)-(x), 22 DCR 2051.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

See note under § 1-1501.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 1-1601.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Publication

A police regulation of the District of Columbia pertaining to equal employment opportunities even if not published in a compilation was properly published where a special edition of the District of Columbia Register incorporated District of Columbia police regulations and such regulations were available for purchase at District of Columbia publications office. D.C. Human Relations Commission v. National Geographic Society (1973, 475 F. 2d 366, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

§ 1-1505. Public notice and participation in rulemaking.

(a) The Mayor and each independent agency shall, prior to the adoption of any rule or the amendment or repeal thereof, publish in the District of Columbia Register (unless all persons subject thereto are named and either personally served or otherwise have actual notice thereof in accordance with law) notice of the intended action so as to afford interested persons opportunity to submit data and views either orally or in writing, as may be specified in such notice. The publication or service required by this subsection of any notice shall be made not less than thirty days prior to the effective date of the proposed adoption, amendment, or repeal, as the case may be, except as otherwise provided by the Mayor or the agency upon good cause found and published with the notice.

(b) Any interested person may petition the Mayor or an independent agency, requesting the promulgation, amendment, or repeal of any rule. The Mayor and each independent agency shall prescribe by rule the form for such petitions, and the procedure for their submission, consideration, and disposition. Nothing in this chapter shall make it mandatory that the Mayor or any agency promulgate, amend, or repeal any rule pursuant to a petition therefor submitted in accordance with this section.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, if, in an emergency, as determined by the Mayor or an independent agency, the adoption of a rule is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, safety, welfare, or morals, the Mayor or such independent agency may adopt such rules as may be necessary in the circumstances, and such rule may become effective immediately.

Any such emergency rule shall forthwith be published and filed in the manner prescribed in section 1-1506. No such rule shall remain in effect longer than one hundred and twenty days after the date of its adoption. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 6, 82 Stat. 1206; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102 (y), 22 DCR 2053.)

AMENDMENTS

1975—Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended section as follows: (A) by striking out “Commissioner and Council” each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof “Mayor” in each such place; and (B) by striking out “Commissioner and Council” each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof “Mayor” in each such place.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 3-115.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Emergency regulations

Evidence concerning refusal of some patrons to pay established bus fare immediately after judicial decision that transit commission's bus fare regulation was invalid and results which were likely to flow from the decision sustained determination of District of Columbia Council that emergency existed and justified invocation of council's emergency procedures for purpose of enacting bus fare regulation. J. W. Hobson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 637).

District of Columbia Council's interpretation of its regulation pertaining to adoption of emergency measures as requiring council to examine and discuss regulations before them in detail but not requiring that entire regulation, including all of its “whereases” and all of its sections be orally read to council was reasonable. Id.

District of Columbia Council's emergency procedure regulations do not require that an emergency regulation be published in District of Columbia register before becoming effective. Id.

Minimum wages

Public hearing preliminary to revision of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board's order with regard to persons employed in hotel, restaurant and allied occupations was not a “contested case” within purview of notice provisions of this chapter. Hotel Association of Washington, D.C. et al. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A.2d 294).

Rulemaking

Interpretation or implementation by taxing authorities of words “full and true value” by changing debasement factor for taxation of single-family residences from 55 percent of estimated market value to 60 percent is, within meaning of this chapter, “rulemaking” such as to require publication of notice despite contention that change was part of effort to equalize District of Columbia tax assessments as required by Constitution. District of Columbia et al. v. C. Green et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 848).

§ 1-1506. Filing and publishing of rules.

(a) Each agency, within thirty days after the effective date of this chapter, shall file with the Mayor a certified copy of all of its rules in force on such effective date.

(b) The Mayor shall keep a permanent register open to public inspection of all rules.

(c) Except in the case of emergency rules, each rule adopted after the effective date of this chapter by the Mayor or by any agency, shall be filed in the office of the Mayor. No such rule shall become effective until after its publication in the District of Columbia Register, nor shall such rule become effective if it is required by law, other than this chapter, to be otherwise published, until such rule is also published as required in such law. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 7, 82 Stat. 1207; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102(z)-(bb), 22 DCR 2053.)

AMENDMENT

1975—Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended section by substituting “Mayor” for “Commissioner” and “Commissioner or Council”.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

See note under § 1-1501.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Publication

Whatever rule is used in District of Columbia to determine eligibility for a license to carry a handgun, it must be adopted, published, and applied according to law, and remain consistent with congressional policy. A. F. Jordan, Jr. v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 153).

Fact that certain of the police regulations governing applications for license to carry concealed weapon in District of Columbia had not been compiled and published as required by statute did not require blind issuance of such a license to petitioner, who failed to satisfy such regulations. Id.

A police regulation of the District of Columbia pertaining to equal employment opportunities even if not published in a compilation was properly published where a special edition of the District of Columbia Register incorporated District of Columbia police regulations and such regulations were available for purchase at District of Columbia publications office. *D.C. § 1-1507. Compilation of rules.

(a) As soon as practicable after the effective date of this chapter, the Mayor shall have compiled, indexed, and published in the District of Columbia Register all regulations adopted by the District of Columbia Council and rules adopted by the Mayor and District of Columbia Council and each agency and in effect at the time of such compilation. Such compilations shall be promptly supplemented or revised as may be necessary to reflect new regulations and rules and changes in regulation¹ and rules.

(b) Compilations shall be made available to the public at a price fixed by the Mayor.

(c) The Mayor must publish the first compilation required by subsection (a) of this section within one year after the effective date of this chapter and no regulations adopted by the District of Columbia Council nor rule adopted by the Mayor or by an agency before the date of such first publication which has not been filed and published in accordance with this chapter and which is not set forth in such compilation shall be in effect after one year after the effective date of this chapter.

CODIFICATION

Section 203 of Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, provided for the repeal of section 7 of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (§ 1-1506), relating to the District of Columbia Municipal Code. Since section 1-1506 does not have a subsec. (d) and this section relates to the Municipal Code, section 203 was executed to this section of the Code as the probable intent of the Council.

AMENDMENTS

1975—Subsec. (a). Section 102(cc) of Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended subsec. Subsec. (b). Section 102(dd) of such Act amended subsec. (b) by striking out “Commissioner” and inserting in lieu thereof “Mayor”.

Subsec. (c). Section 102(ee) of such Act amended subsec. (c) by (A) striking out “Commissioner” and inserting in lieu thereof “Mayor”; (B) inserting the words “regulations adopted by the District of Columbia Council nor” between the words “no” and “rule”; and (C) striking out “Commissioner or by the Council” and inserting in lieu thereof “Mayor”.

Subsec. (d). Section 203 of such Act repealed subsec. (d) which related to the codification of regulations in the Municipal Code.

CERTAIN RULES NOT GIVEN RENEWED EFFECT BY 1975 AMENDMENTS, D.C. LAW 1-19

Section 103(b) of Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, provided: “The amendments [to this section] made by subsections (cc), (dd) and (ee) of section 102 of this Title shall not give renewed effect to any rule (as defined by subsection 6 of section 3 of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act [§ 1-1502] before the effective date of this act) which was not compiled, indexed and published on or before October 21, 1970.”

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Publication

A police regulation of the District of Columbia pertaining to equal employment opportunities even if not published in a compilation was properly published where a special edition of the District of Columbia Register incorporated District of Columbia police regulations and such regulations were available for purchase at District of Columbia publications office. D.C. Human Relations Commission v. National Geographic Society (1973, 475 F. 2d 366, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 255).

§ 1-1508. Declaratory orders.

On petition of any interested person, the Mayor or an agency, within their discretion, may issue a declaratory order with respect to the applicability of any rule, regulation, Council act or resolution, or statute enforceable by them or by it, to terminate a controversy (other than a contested case) or to remove uncertainty. A declaratory order, as provided in this section, shall be binding between the Mayor or the agency, as the case may be, and the petitioner on the state of facts alleged and established, unless such order is altered or set aside by a court. A declaratory order is subject to review in the manner provided in this chapter for the review of orders and decisions in contested cases, except that the refusal of the Mayor or of an agency to issue a declaratory order shall not be subject to review. The Mayor and each agency shall prescribe by rule the form for such petitions and the procedure for their submission, consideration, and disposition. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 9, 82 Stat. 1207; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102(ff), 22 DCR 2054.)

AMENDMENT

1975—Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended section by substituting “Mayor” for “Commissioner or Council” and “Commissioner and the Council”; and by inserting “, regulation, Council act or resolution,” immediately after “the applicability of any rule”.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

See note under § 1-1501.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Exclusive remedy

Exclusive remedy of petitioner, which was denied exemption as an institution and assessed taxes due by the District of Columbia Department of Finance and Revenue, Property Assessment Division and which then sought review in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals under the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act, lay in the Tax Division of the Superior Court. The Washington Theater Club, Inc. v. District of Columbia Department of Finance and Revenue, Property Assessment Division (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A. 2d 231; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 63, 414 U.S. 831).

Judicial review

Refusal of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board to issue declaratory order requested by employer was not subject to review. Sonderling Broadcasting Corporation v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 828).

§ 1-1509. Contested cases.

(a) In any contested case, all parties thereto shall be given reasonable notice of the afforded hearing by the Mayor or the agency, as the case may be. The notice shall state the time, place, and issues involved, but if, by reason of the nature of the proceeding, the Mayor or the agency determine that the issues cannot be fully stated in advance of the hearing, or if subsequent amendment of the issues is necessary, they shall be fully stated as soon as practicable, and opportunity shall be afforded all parties to present evidence and argument with respect thereto. Unless otherwise required by law, other than this chapter, any contested case may be disposed of by stipulation, agreed settlement, consent order, or default.

(b) In contested cases, except as may otherwise be provided by law, other than this chapter, the proponent of a rule or order shall have the burden of proof. Any oral and any documentary evidence may be received, but the Mayor and every agency shall exclude irrelevant, immaterial, and unduly repetitious evidence. Every party shall have the right to present in person or by counsel his case or defense by oral and documentary evidence, to submit rebuttal evidence, and to conduct such cross-examination as may be required for a full and true disclosure of the facts. Where any decision of the Mayor or any agency in a contested case rests on official notice of a material fact not appearing in the evidence in the record, any party to such case shall on timely request be afforded an opportunity to show the contrary.

(c) The Mayor or the agency shall maintain an official record in each contested case, to include testimony and exhibits, but it shall not be necessary to make any transcription unless a copy of such record is timely requested by any party to such case, or transcription is required by law, other than this chapter. The testimony and exhibits, together with all papers and requests filed in the proceeding, and all material facts not appearing in the evidence but with respect to which official notice is taken, shall constitute the exclusive record for order or decision. No sanction shall be imposed or rule or order or decision be issued except upon consideration of such exclusive record, or such lesser portions thereof as may be agreed upon by all the parties to such case. The cost incidental to the preparation of a copy or copies of a record or portion thereof shall be borne equally by all parties requesting the copy or copies.

(d) Whenever in a contested case a majority of those who are to render the final order or decision did not personally hear the evidence, no order or decision adverse to a party to the case (other than the Mayor or an agency) shall be made until a proposed order or decision, including findings of fact and conclusions of law, has been served upon the parties and an opportunity has been afforded to each party adversely affected to file exceptions and present argument to a majority of those who are to render the order or decision, who, in such case, shall personally consider such portions of the exclusive record, as provided in subsection (c) of this section, as may be designated by any party.

(e) Every decision and order adverse to a party to the case, rendered by the Mayor or an agency in a contested case, shall be in writing and shall be accompanied by findings of fact and conclusions of law. The findings of fact shall consist of a concise statement of the conclusions upon each contested issue of fact. Findings of fact and conclusions of law shall be supported by and in accordance with the reliable, probative, and substantial evidence. A copy of the decision and order and accompanying findings and conclusions shall be given by the Mayor or the agency, as the case may be, to each party or to his attorney of record. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 10, 82 Stat. 1208; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102 (gg)-(kk), 22 DCR 2054.)

AMENDMENT

1975—Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended section by substituting "Mayor" for "Commissioner or Council", "Commissioner and Council", and "Commissioner".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

See note under § 1-1501.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 2-1236, 47-1567g.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

While in some circumstances, a petitioner seeking to establish that administrative agency failed to distribute to him funds properly his might have burden of proof, where two of the three petitioning operators of vending stands at District of Columbia hospital were not notified of change in allocation of income until some four years after it occurred and subsequently their request for hearing was not honored for some two and one-half years, elementary fairness required that at the further hearing below the affirmative action taken by Department of Human Resources in reallocating vending machine income be regarded as the order under consideration, thus placing burden of proof upon Department to supply substantial evidence in support of its action. M. E. Perry et al. v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A.2d 249).

If, on remand, Department of Human Resources failed to meet its burden of supplying substantial evidence in support of its action in reallocating income of operators of vending stands at District of Columbia Hospital, principal task of hearing officer would be to make accurate determination of amount by which operators were underpaid. Id.

Contested case

Driver's license revocation proceeding is a "contested case" and, therefore, is controlled by this chapter. A. Quick v. Department of Motor Vehicles of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 331 A.2d 319).

Evidence

In driver's license revocation proceedings, motorist was entitled to opportunity to rebut any inaccuracy in his traffic record or to show that traffic record was not relevant or material or was otherwise admissible. A. Quick v. Department of Motor Vehicles of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 331 A.2d 319).

Final decision

Decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment on application for special exception must not be controlled by head count as in a political election, but by evidence adduced as it relates to requirements for special exception. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 282).

Findings of fact

Findings of Commission on Human Rights, which dismissed tenant's complaint charging that attempt to evict him constituted discriminatory retaliation, were not sufficiently specific to satisfy requirements of this section, which are to effect that Commission's order must contain findings of fact consisting of a concise statement of conclusions on each contested issue of fact, merely on basis of assertion that when Commission's findings are read together with relevant testimony adduced at hearing, there can be no doubt about basis of Commission's ruling. G. Miller, Jr. v. District of Columbia Commission on Human Rights (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 715).

Board of Zoning Adjustment's findings of fact which were devoid of any delineation of factors weighed in reaching its conclusions of law thereby precluding determination on review as to which factors or considerations influenced Board's decision are inadequate and require remand to Board for proper entry of findings of fact and conclusions of law. E. A. Shay et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 175).

Board of Appeals and Review with regard to order of Police and Firemen's Retirement and Relief Board involuntarily separating member of police department from the department for disability not contracted in or aggravated by performance of duty had to make basic findings which were supported by substantial evidence in record before stating ultimate facts and conclusions and there had to be a demonstration in the findings of a rational connection between the facts found and the choice made. M. E. Brewington v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1973, 299 A.2d 145).

—Necessity

No written findings were required for disposition of petition for reconsideration of transfer order entered by Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. Palisades Citizens Association v. District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 692).

—Sufficiency

Findings and conclusions of law by Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that there were sufficient off-street parking facilities to serve patrons of applicant for retailer's class C liquor license, that adequate valet service for parking would be available, that it was not shown that issuance of license would cause increase in trash and litter in the area and that premises were appropriate for issuance of license were supported by substantial evidence. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1974, 323 A.2d 715).

Detailed recitation of testimony and conclusionary statements of District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's view of such testimony as establishing entitlement to retailer's class C alcoholic beverages license were too inadequate to permit review, and remand was necessary. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1974, 316 A.2d 865).

Hearing

Procedure followed in connection with 1964 decision to reallocate vending stand operators' income from vending machines at District of Columbia hospital under vending stand program for the blind was defective in that no opportunity for a hearing was afforded and aggrieved operators were not even informed of the change. M. E. Perry et al. v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A.2d 249).

Issuance of decision or order

"Issuance" of order of administrative agency requires public knowledge of substance of the order. Palisades Citizens Association v. District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 692).

Notice

Operator of vending stand at District of Columbia hospital under vending stand program for the blind was entitled to notice of so important a matter as method by which his income was determined. M. E. Perry et al. v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A.2d 249).

Official notice

Agency must notify the parties to an administrative proceeding that a material fact is being officially noticed so that the parties have an opportunity to rebut that fact. P. E. Carey v. District Unemployment Compensation Board (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A.2d 18).

Proposed findings and decision of District Unemployment Compensation Board denying unemployment compensation benefits on ground, inter alia, that claimant was not available for work due to her refusal to accept the aid of the United States Employment Service did not notify claimant that the Board was invoking its prerogative to take official notice of a nonrecord fact consisting of agency record, and thus claimant did not waive her right to contest that fact by failing to request an opportunity to rebut the evidence. Id.

Proposed decision

District Unemployment Compensation Board is authorized to provide by a procedural rule that appeals examiner's decision constitutes the proposed findings and decision of the Board and in so doing the Board should at the same time the appeals examiner's decision is issued provide a time limit in which to file with the Board objections to the appeals examiner's decision with a date for oral argument before the Board or any such objections set at that time or at a later date. P. E. Carey v. District Unemployment Compensation Board (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A.2d 18).

Reasons for decision

Where Board of Zoning Adjustment's reasons for denying area variance merely quoted pertinent standards in subsection of code without explaining how proposed variance would violate such standards, except for one terse sentence dealing with property owner's alleged self-imposition of hardship, Board's conclusions and findings are insufficient. A. L. W., Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 428).

Fact that Administrative Procedure Act expressly imposes a statement of reasons requirement only in contested cases does not bar imposing a requirement of stated reasons in other contexts; The Act was meant only to prescribe minimum procedures. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F.2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Transcripts

Decision of Public Service Commission in telephone rate proceeding to furnish transcripts to intervenors at telephone company's expense does not constitute a proper exercise of Commission's delegated powers to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings of public utilities and other parties before it, since any procedure established by the Commission must conform with the minimum requirements set forth in Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), and since Commission's rule that transcripts be furnished to intervenors at telephone company's expense was a mere nullity because it contravened express language of this section. Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. v. Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 710).

On appeal to director of Department of Motor Vehicles from decision of examiner revoking motorist's operator's permit, motorist was entitled to transcript of hearing before the examiner where motorist had made timely request to be provided with transcript and had offered to bear whole cost thereof. A. Quick v. Department of Motor Vehicles of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 331 A.2d 319).

§ 1-1510. Judicial review.

Any person suffering a legal wrong, or adversely affected or aggrieved, by an order or decision of the Mayor or an agency in a contested case, is entitled to a judicial review thereof in accordance with this chapter upon filing in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals a written petition for review. If the jurisdiction of the Mayor or an agency is challenged at any time in any proceeding and the Mayor or the agency, as the case may be, takes jurisdiction, the person challenging jurisdiction shall be entitled to an immediate judicial review of that action, unless the court shall otherwise hold. The reviewing court may by rule prescribe the forms and contents of the petition and, subject to this chapter, regulate generally all matters relating to proceedings on such appeals. A petition for review shall be filed in such court within such time as such court may by rule prescribe and a copy of such petition shall forthwith be served by mail by the clerk of the court upon the Mayor or upon the agency, as the case may be. Within such time as may be fixed by rule of the court the Mayor or such agency shall certify and file in the court the exclusive record for decision and any supplementary proceedings, and the clerk of the court shall immediately notify the petitioner of the filing thereof. Upon the filing of a petition for review, the court shall have jurisdiction of the proceeding, and shall have power to affirm, modify, or set aside the order or decision complained of, in whole or in part, and, if need be, to remand the case for further proceedings, as justice may require. Filing of a petition for review shall not in itself stay enforcement of the order or decision of the Mayor or the agency, as the case may be. The Mayor or the agency may grant, or the reviewing court may order, a stay upon appropriate terms. The court shall hear and determine all appeals upon the exclusive record for decision before the Mayor or the agency. The review of all administrative orders and decisions by the court shall be limited to such issues of law or fact as are subject to review on appeal under applicable statutory law, other than this chapter. In all other cases the review by the court of administrative orders and decisions shall be in accordance with the rules of law which define the scope and limitations of review of administrative proceedings. Such rules shall include, but not be limited to, the power of the court—

(1) so far as necessary to decision and where presented, to decide all relevant questions of law, to interpret constitutional and statutory provisions, and to determine the meaning or applicability of the terms of any action;

(2) to compel agency action unlawfully withheld or unreasonably delayed; and

(3) to hold unlawful and set aside any action or findings and conclusions found to be (A) arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law; (B) contrary to constitutional right, power, privilege, or immunity; (C) in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations or short of statutory rights; (D) without observance of procedure required by law, including any applicable procedure provided by this chapter; or (E) unsupported by substantial evidence in the record of the proceedings before the court.

In reviewing administrative orders and decisions, the court shall review such portions of the exclusive record as may be designated by any party. The court may invoke the rule of prejudicial error. (Oct. 21, 1968, Pub. L. 90-614, § 11, 82 Stat. 1209; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 162, title I, 84 Stat. 582; Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, title I, § 102(II), 22 DCR 2055.)

AMENDMENT

1975—Act Oct. 8, 1975, D.C. Law 1-19, amended section by substituting "Mayor" for "Commissioner or Council".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENT

See note under § 1-1501.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 1-1156, 2-123, 2-129, 2-312, 2-406, 2-407, 2-492, 2-708, 2-1235, 2-1236, 2-1238, 2-1809, 3-115, 11-722, 11-1525, 17-303, 17-305, 29-417, 35-427, 35-1709, 35-1808, 35-1913, 36-130, 36-409, 40-302, 40-420, 40-1007, 45-1409, 45-1652, 46-303, 46-312, 47-646, 47-2101, 49-402.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appealable order

Since order of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board advising employer that it owed and should pay a former employee all commissions earned prior to termination of his employment was enforceable only through criminal prosecution or civil litigation in which issues of fact or law would be determined entirely upon the pleadings and trial record, and not upon the proceedings before the Board, Board's order was not an "appealable order" under the Administrative Procedure Act. Sonderling Broadcasting Corporation v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 828).

Contested case

Absent "contested case" status under Administrative Procedure Act (this chapter), Court of Appeals does not have jurisdiction to directly review Zoning Commission's order amending zoning regulations under this section relating to review by Court of administrative orders including power to hold unlawful and set aside findings and conclusions in enumerated instances, as this section does not denote a grant of jurisdiction but is a plain statement of scope of judicial review applicable only to contested cases. Dupont Circle Citizen's Association et al. v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 296).

When Zoning Commission exercised its authority to determine needs of area by denying without public hearing a proposed amendment to zoning maps to change zoning classification of property, the Commission was acting legislatively and was not subject to the "contested case" provisions of this chapter, with the result that such decision is not subject to direct review by the Court of Appeals, despite contention of property owner that mere submission of proposed amendment, and the subsequent rejection of same, constituted a "hearing" required by law, and thus is subject to review. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

Decision of District of Columbia Council, pursuant to the Street Readjustment Act, to close portion of street and, once closed, to authorize the surveyor to convey title to the abutting landowners for development purposes did not constitute a "contested case" within meaning of the Administrative Procedure Act; in determining whether it should close the street the Council was exercising legislative discretion based on primarily legislative facts; also, Council's decision regarding compensation, though primarily adjudicatory, did not fall within the "contested case" definition since it was subject to trial de novo in Superior Court. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A.2d 310).

Court costs

Length of delay in implementing retroactive payment order of Commissioner of Department of Human Resources justifies an assessment of costs in form of a $25 filing fee against administrative officers in their official capacity once petition in nature of mandamus to compel agency action was dismissed as moot after officers tardily performed requested action. B. Dillard et ano. v. J. P. Yeldell et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 578).

Joint Committee on Landmarks

Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital as an intergovernmental agency is not an agency of the District of Columbia, and the Court of Appeals lacks jurisdiction to entertain petition for review of its action under this chapter. J. W. Latimer, Jr., et al. v. The Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 484).

Jurisdiction

Practitioner of 14 years, who subsequent to passage of District of Columbia Practice of Psychology Act [§ 2-481 et seq.] applied for license, and whose application was denied by Board of Psychologist Examiners because of his lack of required academic degrees, can properly avail himself of statutory review procedure outlined in the Act in order to prosecute constitutional challenge that the Board's refusal to test his professional competence by some standard other than his academic credentials constituted a violation of fundamental due process, and not limited to interposing his constitutional claims as a defense to criminal proceedings for violating licensure requirement. J. R. Berger v. Board of Psychologist Examiners (1975, 521 F.2d 1056, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 396; rem'g 313 A.2d 602).

Congress, by vesting review of Housing Rent Commission decisions in the Superior Court, intended that review provisions of this section not apply to the Commission. Columbia Realty Venture v. District of Columbia Housing Rent Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 350 A.2d 120).

Prejudicial error

Record on review established no prejudicial error in Alcoholic Beverage Control Board's compliance with court's prior decision, amounting to substantial compliance with order that Board take further proceedings and enter into record all information which would be relevant and material to statutory criteria for issuance or denial of license and which would be relied upon in any degree by the Board. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A.2d 861).

Scope of review

Provisions of section 11-722 that Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to review orders and decisions of any agency of the District in accordance with Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), and may review orders or decisions of the Public Service Commission in accordance with Commission's organic act (chapters 1-10 of title 43), carves out only a limited area in which Administrative Procedure Act is inapplicable to the Commission, that being in the area of standard and scope of review, rather than a wholesale exemption from Administrative Procedure Act coverage. Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. v. Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A. 2d 710).

On review of decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment, Court of Appeals could not consider new issues raised by petitioners concerning parking requirements with respect to operation of private high school but would look to the exclusive record or portions of it designated by parties. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 282).

Substantial evidence rule

On review of order of Board of Zoning Adjustment, Court of Appeals must determine whether findings made are supported and in accordance with reliable, probative and substantial evidence in the whole administrative record and whether conclusions of Board flow rationally from these findings. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 282).

Review by Court of Appeals of decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment is limited to a determination of whether the decision reached follows as a matter of law from facts stated as its basis, and also whether facts so stated have any substantial support in the evidence; if Board's decision follows from its findings and those findings are supported by substantial evidence, Court of Appeals must affirm even though it might have reached another result. D.C. Stewart et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A. 2d 516).

On petition for review of order of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board granting application for transfer of alcoholic beverage retailer's license, Court of Appeals may not disturb any action of Board in exercise of its statutory powers unless such action is plainly wrong or without support in substantial evidence in administrative record. R. F. Schiffmann et al. v. District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A. 2d 235).

REORGANIZATION ORDERS OF THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

REORGANIZATION ORDER NO. 36.—MINIMUM WAGE AND INDUSTRIAL SAFETY BOARD

Reorg. Ord. No. 36, C.O. 302,853/14, June 16, 1953, as amended Sept. 20, 1956, July 14, 1960, Sept. 20, 1960, Jan. 7, 1966, Feb. 7, 1967, and Feb. 1, 1973, ordered that:

PART VI

Payment and collection of wages.—A. The Board shall administer the Act to provide for the payment and collection of wages in the District of Columbia, Public Law 953, 84th Congress, 2d Session (§§ 36.601 to 36.610). This authority shall include, but not be limited to, the following functions:

1. To develop and propose to the Board of Commissioners any regulations that may be necessary.

2. To investigate and hold hearings on any alleged violations, including claims that wages have not been paid in accordance with the act, and that such unpaid wages constitute enforceable claims against employers.

3. In its discretion, upon request of an employee, to take an assignment in trust of wages found by the Board to be due, together with any claim for liquidated damages. Upon such assignment, the Board shall have power to settle and adjust any such claim or claims on such terms as it may deem just or to initiate appropriate legal action.

4. To administer oaths and examine witnesses under oath, issue subpoenas, compel the attendance of witnesses, and the production of papers, books, accounts, records, payrolls, documents, and testimony, and to take depositions and affidavits in any proceedings before it.

B. The Board shall administer and enforce the provisions of section 16-584 of the D.C. Code prohibiting the discharge from employment of an employee because of garnishment proceedings, and shall advise employees of their rights and responsibilities under the garnishment laws of the District. The Board is further delegated the authority to issue regulations establishing the maximum amounts of disposable wages earned by employees during pay periods other than weekly pay periods, pursuant to section 16-572(2) of the D.C. Code.

NOTES TO DECISIONSConstitutionality

District of Columbia Practice of Psychology Act's [this subchapter] irrefutable presumption of professional incompetence absent a graduate degree deprived practitioner of 14 years of his constitutionally recognized interest in practice of psychology in violation of due process clause of Fifth Amendment, which guarantees practitioner some alternative means of demonstrating his professional competence, in nature of a "grandfather" concession to psychologists practicing at time the licensure requirement was enacted. J. R. Berger v. Board of Psychologist Examiners (1975, 521 F. 2d 1056, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 396; rem'g 313 A. 2d 602).

(1) holds a doctoral degree in psychology or forty-five credit hours taken subsequent to a bachelor's degree in courses related to psychology, from accredited colleges or universities, and has engaged in psychological practice acceptable to the Mayor for at least two years prior to the filing of such application pursuant to this subchapter;

(3) presents evidence of completion of a curriculum of study acceptable to the Mayor, taken subsequent to a bachelor's degree in psychology, in courses related to psychology from an institution outside the United States acceptable to the Mayor, and has engaged in psychological practice acceptable to the Mayor for at least seven years prior to the filing of such application pursuant to this subchapter.

(b) For purposes of subsection (a) of this section, the term—

(1) "courses related to psychology" means any combination of the following behavioral science courses not necessarily in one department of one school: human development, education, educational psychology, guidance, counseling, guidance and counseling, vocational counseling, school psychology, school guidance, family counseling, counseling and psychotherapy, special education, learning disabilities, anthropology, sociology, human ecology, social ecology, rehabilitation counseling, group counseling and psychotherapy, or any substantially similar field of study acceptable to the Mayor; and

(2) "psychological practice acceptable to the Mayor" includes any job in which the job title or description contains any term acceptable to the Mayor, or any of the following terms: psychologists, psychotherapy, group therapy, family therapy, art therapy, activity therapy, psychometry, measurement and evaluation, psychodiagnosis, pupil personnel services, counseling and guidance, special education, rehabilitation, or any job in which the person or organization was recognized or reimbursed under public or private health insurance programs by reason of being engaged in psychological practice.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

In defining what constitutes a "master's degree in psychology" within meaning of this section providing for issuance of license to applicant who holds a master's degrees in psychology, the Board of Psychologist Examiners was not required to give absolute deference to whether a particular college or university labeled the master's degree as one in "psychology"; Board could properly adopt regulation requiring degree to include at least 24 semester hours in psychology course beyond the undergraduate level. M. E. Berl v. Board of Psychologist Examiners of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 322 A.2d 274).

In applying regulation defining term "master's degree in psychology" as used in this section to mean a master's degree awarded pursuant to completion of a curriculum in which at least 24 semester hours shall have been psychology courses beyond the baccalaureate level, the Board of Psychologist Examiners was required to look to the substance of the courses for which credit was sought and not the arbitrary happenstance of how the university organized its academic department; Board was required to look to the substance, not the form of the master's degree. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Review

Practitioner of 14 years, who subsequent to passage of District of Columbia Practice of Psychology Act [this subchapter] applied for license, and whose application was denied by Board of Psychologist Examiners because of his lack of required academic degrees, can properly avail himself of statutory review procedure outlined in this section in order to prosecute constitutional challenge that the Board's refusal to test his professional competence by some standard other than his academic credentials constituted a violation of fundamental due process, and is not limited to interposing his constitutional claims as a defense to criminal proceedings for violating licensure requirement. J. R. Berger v. Board of Psychologist Examiners (1975, 521 F.2d 1056, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 396; rem'g 313 A.2d 602).

§ 2-493. Penalties.

Any person who shall practice psychology, as defined in this subchapter, without having a valid, unexpired, unrevoked, and unsuspended license or certificate of registration issued as provided in this subchapter, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $500, or confined in jail for not more than six months, or both. Prosecutions shall be conducted in the name of the District of Columbia in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants. (Jan. 8, 1971, Pub. L. 91-657, § 14, 84 Stat. 1960; Dec. 7, 1974, Pub. L. 93-515, title II, § 202(3), 88 Stat. 1615.)

AMENDMENT

1974—Section 202(3) of Act Dec. 7, 1974, Pub. L. 93-515, amended the second sentence generally. Prior to amendment, the sentence read: "Prosecutions shall be in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or one of his assistants."

§ 2-494. Enjoining unauthorized practice of psychology.

The unlawful practice of psychology, as defined in this subchapter, may be enjoined by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia on petition by the Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia, upon a finding that the person sought to be enjoined has committed a violation of the provisions of this subchapter. In any such proceeding it shall not be necessary to show that any person is individually injured by the actions complained of. If the respondent is found guilty of the unlawful practice of psychology, the court shall enjoin him from so practicing unless and until he has been duly licensed. The remedy by injunction herein given may be imposed in addition to, or in lieu of, criminal prosecution and punishment as provided in section 2-493. (Jan. 8, 1971, Pub. L. 91-657, § 15, 84 Stat. 1960; Dec. 7, 1974, Pub. L. 93-515, title II, § 202(4), 88 Stat. 1616.)

Said bond shall be approved as to form and sufficiency of sureties by the Mayor, or by such official as he may designate. In case of default in such performance, recovery may be had on such bond in the same manner as other penalties are recovered by law.

False swearing on the part of any witness before the Commission shall be punishable in the same manner as false swearing before said trial boards, and obedience to any subpoena issued by the Commission may be compelled in the same manner as obedience is compelled to subpoenas issued by said trial boards set forth in chapter 6 of title 4.

(i) The Commission shall have the power to investigate all operations, occurrences, events and persons within its jurisdiction, and any suspected violation of its orders or rules, or of this subchapter.

(k) The Commission shall have the power subject to the approval of the Mayor, to make or engage in contracts, agreements, or cooperative work, with other District of Columbia agencies, or commissions or agencies of other states or cities governing boxing, wrestling, or the martial arts, or private persons, when such contracts, agreements, or cooperative work will reasonably and lawfully carry out the purposes of this subchapter.

(l) The Commission shall have the power to establish other rules and regulations concerning events and persons within its jurisdiction as it deems appropriate to encourage boxing, wrestling, and the martial arts in the District of Columbia and for other purposes consistent with this subchapter. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Change of venue

With respect to motion for change of venue which was first granted and was then withdrawn by defendant, no error was shown by contention that transfer was made contingent on relinquishment of right to effective counsel, where counsel who was preparing insanity defense was from the legal aid agency and by statute could not follow the case outside the district, and where issue of replacement counsel in transferee district was never raised since defendant insisted on retaining original counsel and accordingly chose to have case remain in District of Columbia, where his chief counsel assured trial court that defendant could get a fair trial. United States v. B. A. Bryant (1972, 471 F. 2d 1040, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 72; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 923, 409 U.S. 1112).

Effective assistance of counsel

If in a collateral attack based on allegations of ineffectiveness of appointed counsel the trial court concludes that a hearing should be held a non-Public Defender Service attorney should be appointed if the original trial was with that agency. W. J. Angarano v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A. 2d 453).

Withdrawal of counsel

If a real conflict of interest exists as to whether alleged ineffectiveness of a Public Defender Service trial attorney may have reached constitutional proportions the PDS may be permitted to withdraw as appellate counsel; however, the PDS is not entitled to carte blanche authority to withdraw from the appellate handling of a case which was tried by another of its attorneys simply by stating that "ethical considerations" are present; a prima facie case of constitutional ineffectiveness must exist before leave to withdraw is granted. W. J. Angarano v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A. 2d 453).

An adequate specific showing that prima facie ineffectiveness exists is required before the District of Columbia Court of Appeals will grant the Public Defender Service leave to withdraw and appoint new counsel to determine whether to assert such an issue in the reviewing court or to seek collateral relief in the trial court. Id.

basement in the District, was void and unenforceable. Bathroom Design Institute et al. v. E. Parker et ano. (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 526).

Liability of surety

Where contractor unlicensed in District of Columbia received money from homeowners to waterproof basement and failed to perform, contractor was liable for amount received, and surety on performance bond was likewise liable for same amount. Bathroom Design Institute et al. v. E. Parker et ano. (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 526).

Under this section limiting amount of damages recoverable, under this chapter, to damage sustained by reason of an act, transaction or conduct of home improvement contractor in violation of law or regulation in force in the District relating to licensed activity, surety upon performance bond of defendant contractor was not liable for interest paid by householders as result of loan which they themselves obtained from lender. Id.

Measure of damages

Work performed by contractor in District of Columbia though contractor was unlicensed in the District was performed in contravention of regulations designed for regulatory purposes in exercise of police power, and there was no equitable basis upon which quasi-contractual recovery could be predicated. Bathroom Design Institute et al. v. E. Parker et ano. (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 526).

(4) provide care and maintenance for substantially retarded children who may be received upon application or upon court commitment, in institutions or homes or other facilities equipped to receive them, within or without the District of Columbia.

The Mayor shall cause the wards of the District of Columbia placed out under temporary care to be visited as often as may be required to safeguard their welfare. (Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 210, ch. 58, § 11; Jan. 2, 1974, Pub. L. 93-241, § 1(a)(1), 87 Stat. 1057.)

AMENDMENT

1973—Act Jan. 2, 1974, Pub. L. 93-241, amended section generally. For prior provisions, see the 1973 edition of the Code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1974 AMENDMENT

Section 3 of Act Jan. 2, 1974, Pub. L. 93-241, 87 Stat. 1061, provided: "The amendments made by this Act [amending §§ 3-114, 3-115, 3-117, 16-307, 16-309] shall take effect at the end of the ninety-day period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act."

§ 3-115. Contracts for care of dependent children—Adoption—subsidy payments.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (f), the Mayor may conclude arrangements with persons or institutions at such rates as may be agreed upon.

(b) (1) The Mayor may make adoption subsidy payments to an adoptive family (irrespective of the State of residence of the family), as needed, on behalf of a child with special needs, where such child would in all likelihood go without adoption except for the acceptance of the child as a member of the adoptive family, and where the adoptive family has the capability of providing the permanent family relationships needed by such child in all areas except financial, as determined by the Mayor. Subsidy payments may be made under this section only pursuant to a subsidy payment agreement entered into by the Mayor and the adoptive parents concerned prior to completion of the adoptive process, but subsidy payments may be made before such adoption becomes final.

(2) For the purposes of this subsection—

(A) The term "child with special needs" includes any child who is difficult to place in adoption because of age, race, or ethnic background, physical or mental condition, or membership in a sibling group which should be placed together. A child for whom an adoptive placement has not been made within six months after he is legally available for adoptive placement shall be considered a child with special needs within the meaning of this section.

(B) The term "adoptive family" includes single persons.

(c) Any public agency or licensed child-placing agency, having a child with special needs in foster care or institutional care, or any foster parent having such a child in his home may recommend to the Mayor a subsidy for the adoption of such child, and may include in the recommendation advice as to the appropriate level of payments and any other information likely to assist the Mayor in carrying out the provisions of this section. The Mayor shall make the determination as to whether or not an appropriate adoptive home exists for the child, but in so doing the Mayor shall refer to the recommendations of the referring agency. If the Mayor concludes that the child referred is a child with special needs within the meaning of this section, and that an appropriate adoptive home exists for the child, the Mayor is authorized to enter into a tentative adoption subsidy agreement with the prospective adoptive family, and upon entering into such an agreement, the Mayor may accept a transfer of relinquishment of parental rights from the referring agency pursuant to section 32-786.

(d) If a child in the custody of the Mayor or a licensed child-placing agency has been in foster care or institutional care for at least six months after the child is considered legally available for adoptive placement, the Mayor or agency shall inform the family or institution providing care of the possibility of financial aid for adoption under this section. If the family caring for the prospective adoptee applies to the Mayor for adoption of the child, and if it appears to the Mayor after study that the family would be an appropriate adoptive family for the child but for the family's economic inability to meet the child's needs, the Mayor shall enter into a tentative agreement with the family concerning the amount and duration of a proposed subsidy in the event the child is placed for adoption with that family. Thereafter the Mayor may accept a transfer of relinquishment of parental rights from the referring agency in appropriate cases. The Mayor shall in all cases take all steps necessary to assist the family in completing the legal and procedural requirements necessary to effectuate the adoption, including payment for legal fees and court costs.

(e) The amount and duration of adoption subsidy payments may vary according to the special needs of the child, and may include maintenance costs, medical, dental, and surgical expenses, psychiatric and psychological expenses, and other costs necessary for his care and well-being. A subsidy may be paid on a long-term basis to help a family whose income is limited and is likely to remain so; on a time-limited basis to help a family meet the cost of integrating a child into the family over a specified period of time; or on a special services basis to help a family meet a specific anticipated expense or expenses when no other resource appears to be available. Eligibility for payments shall continue until the child reaches eighteen years of age.

(f) The Mayor is authorized to make payments under this section from appropriations for the care of children in foster homes and institutions, and to seek and accept funds from other sources including Federal, private, and other public funding sources, to carry out the purposes of this section. The amount expended by the Mayor for any subsidy may not exceed the highest amount the Mayor would be authorized to spend in providing or securing support and special services for the child if the child were in the legal custody of the Mayor. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

(g) No adoption subsidy payment shall be made on behalf of any child with respect to whom an adoption decree has been entered by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, pursuant to chapter 3 of title 16, prior to April 2, 1974.

(h) Once during each calendar year the Mayor shall review the need for continuing each family's subsidy. At the time of such review and at other times during the year when changed conditions, including variations in medical opinions, prognosis, and costs are deemed by the Mayor to warrant such action, appropriate adjustments in payments shall be made based upon changes in the needs of the child. Any parent who is a party to a subsidy agreement may at any time in writing request, for reasons set forth in the request, a review of the amount of any payment or the level of continuing payments. Such review shall be begun not later than thirty days from the receipt of the request. Any adjustment may be made retroactive to the date the request was received by the Mayor. If the request is not acted on within thirty days after it has been received by the Mayor, or if the Mayor modifies or terminates an agreement without the concurrence of all parties, any party to the agreement shall be entitled to a hearing under the applicable provisions of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501—1-1510).

(i) The Mayor shall keep such records as are necessary to evaluate the effectiveness of adoption subsidy as a means of encouraging and promoting the adoption of children with special needs. The Mayor shall make an annual progress report which shall be open to public inspection. The report shall include, but not be limited to—

(1) the number of children placed in adoptive homes under subsidy agreements during the year preceding the annual report and the major characteristics of the children placed; and

(2) the number of children currently in foster care with the Mayor for six months or more, and the legal status of those children.

The Mayor shall disseminate information to prospective adoptive families as to the availability of adoptable children and of the existence of aid to families who qualify for a subsidy under this section.

(j) All rules and regulations adopted by the Mayor pursuant to sections 3-115 to 3-118 shall be published in the District of Columbia Register as required by section 6 of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, sec. 1-1505). (July 26, 1892, 27 Stat. 269, ch. 250, § 3; Jan. 2, 1974, Pub. L. 93-241, § 1(a)(2), 87 Stat. 1058.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Needy persons

Directive in statute that public assistance "shall be awarded to or on behalf of any needy individual" simply means that assistance is to be given any needy individual eligible under one of the five categories established by the statute, not that any and every needy individual is entitled to public assistance. H. E. Staley v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 842).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Aid to families with dependent children

District of Columbia Department of Human Resources regulation concerning determination of income for purpose of computing aid to families with dependent children and stating that all income must be actually available to the applicant or recipient for his current use cannot be interpreted as covering only income available for current use, particularly in view of other regulations stating that voluntary deductions for future benefits are not to be excluded from gross income. T. Harris et al. v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A.2d 868).

Reductions in income of AFDC recipients, which in one case was caused by garnishment of wages because of a default judgment against recipient who signed note as an accommodation maker and which in the other case resulted from recipient's voluntary assignment of wages to repay debt owed to credit union, were the result of recipients' voluntary acts of incurring the debts and were not mandatory deductions for purpose of determining the entitlement of recipients to AFDC benefits. Id.

Windfall regulations concerning computation of AFDC benefits involved extraordinary happening such as overpayments, legacies, settlement of lawsuits, etc., and not earned income, and such regulations are not applicable where applicants' voluntary actions result in reduction of regular income. Id.

General public assistance

District of Columbia, charged with the difficult responsibility of allocating limited welfare funds among the myriad of potential recipients, was authorized, if not compelled, to limit eligibility under public assistance statute's "General Public Assistance" category to a particular class of needy persons, namely, those unable to work because of a physical or mental disability expected to be of short duration. H. E. Staley v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 842).

Judicial review—Court costs

Length of delay in implementing retroactive payment order of Commissioner of Department of Human Resources justifies an assessment of costs in form of a $25 filing fee against administrative officers in their official capacity once petition in nature of mandamus to compel agency action was dismissed as moot after officers tardily performed requested action. B. Dillard et al. v. J. P. Yeldell et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 578).

Needy persons

Directive in statute that public assistance "shall be awarded to or on behalf of any needy individual" simply means that assistance is to be given any needy individual eligible under one of the five categories established by the statute, not that any and every needy individual is entitled to public assistance. H. E. Staley v. District of Columbia Department of Human Resources (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 842).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

Where wife had deserted the marital abode burden is on District, in action by District of Columbia to recover from husband public assistance payments made by District for support of wife, to rebut presumption of wrongful desertion by establishing either that separation was by mutual consent, that separation was the fault of husband, or that wife was insane at time of separation. G. D. Randolph, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A. 2d 380).

Construction

Congress intended that common-law equitable defenses to liability for support of one's spouse be incorporated into this section imposing obligation to pay for public assistance received by spouse. G. D. Randolph, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A. 2d 380).

Evidence

In action by District of Columbia against husband seeking reimbursement of public assistance payments made by District for support of wife, evidence that husband's duty to support his wife had been eradicated by wife's adultery and unjustifiable desertion from husband prior to her commitment in mental hospital is admissible. G. D. Randolph, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A. 2d 380).

Jurisdiction

Where District Court ordered wife committed to mental hospital, jurisdiction over any claim for contribution to her support remained in District Court while she was confined in hospital, but after she was released and placed in foster home, claim for contribution to her support is to be brought in Superior Court. G. D. Randolph, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A. 2d 380).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Discrimination in services provided

In claim that District of Columbia had discriminated in provision of municipal services, since any prior inequality in police services had been remedied by political and administrative machinery in the District of Columbia, it was presently neither desirable nor proper for District Court to act in regard to police services. M. Burner et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1975, 399 F. Supp. 44).

Injunctions

In order to obtain injunctions against certain activities of police department on the basis of police department's alleged past violation of constitutional rights of persons participating in demonstrations, those who sought the relief were required to show that the police had engaged in widespread violations of constitutional rights, that the breaches of official duty had occurred over a period of time and were subject to repetition, and that the misconduct either resulted from departmental policies and procedures, or lack thereof, or was fostered by the department's failure to take corrective action. Washington Mobilization Committee et al. v. M. J. Cullinane et al. (1975, 400 F.Supp. 186).

Where evidence showed no clear pattern of police harassment likely to be continued and where in light of administrative directive concerning vendors' licensing statute it did not appear likely that police would continue to attempt to prevent underground newspaper vendors from selling newspapers from stacks upon sidewalk, injunctive relief was properly refused. Washington Free Community, Inc., et al. v. J. V. Wilson, Chief of Police, et al. (1973, 484 F.2d 1078, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 360; aff'g 334 F. Supp. 77).

Police line

Police line ordinance which was used by police officers to interfere with lawful demonstration activity and which gives police officer the unfettered discretion to issue any order he thinks reasonable and then to initiate criminal proceedings against a person disobeying the order is unconstitutionally vague and overly broad as applied to demonstration activities, i.e., those in which First Amendment rights were being exercised. Washington Mobilization Committee et al. v. M. J. Cullinane et al. (1975, 400 F.Supp. 186).

Even assuming that religious group had agreed to limit peaceful prayer vigil near White House to 100 persons with full cognizance of import of such agreement, breach of such agreement was not sufficient cause for the establishment of a police line for alleged purpose of protecting persons or property from dangerous propensities of "outsiders" who had joined the vigil. L. Tatum et al. v. R. C. B. Morton et al. (1974, 402 F. Supp. 719).

§ 4-101a. Federal control of Metropolitan Police in emergencies.

(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, whenever the President of the United States determines that special conditions of an emergency nature exist which require the use of the Metropolitan Police force for Federal purposes, he may direct the Mayor to provide him, and the Mayor shall provide, such services of the Metropolitan Police force as the President may deem necessary and appropriate. In no case, however, shall such services made available pursuant to any such direction under this subsection extend for a period in excess of forty-eight hours unless the President has, prior to the expiration of such period, notified the Chairman and ranking minority Members of the Committees on the District of Columbia of the Senate and the House of Representatives, in writing, as to the reason for such direction and the period of time during which the need for such services is likely to continue.

(b) Subject to the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, such services made available in accordance with subsection (a) of this section shall terminate upon the end of such emergency, the expiration of a period of thirty days following the date on which such services are first made available, or the adoption of a resolution by either the Senate or the House of Representatives providing for such termination, whichever first occurs.

(c) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, in any case in which such services are made available in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a) of this section during any period of an adjournment of the Congress sine die, such services shall terminate upon the end of the emergency, the expiration of the thirty-day period following the date on which Congress first convenes following such adjournment, or the adoption of a resolution by either the Senate or the House of Representatives providing for such termination, whichever first occurs.

(d) Except to the extent provided for in subsection (c) of this section, no such services made available pursuant to the direction of the President pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall extend for any period in excess of thirty days, unless the Senate and the House of Representatives approve a concurrent resolution authorizing such an extension. (Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title VII, § 740, 87 Stat. 830.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 771 of Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, as amended, set out as a note under § 1-121, provided in part that this section is effective on Jan. 2, 1975, if a majority of the registered qualified electors in the District of Columbia voting on the charter issue in the charter referendum accepted the charter set out in title IV of such Act. The charter was approved by the voters on May 7, 1974.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Discrimination

Positive relationship between test of verbal skill administered applicants for employment as police officers to training course performance is sufficient to validate the test, wholly aside from its possible relationship to actual performance as a police officer. W. E. Washington, etc., et al. v. A. E. Davis et al. (1976, 96 S. Ct. 2040, 426 U.S. —; rev'g 512 F.2d 956, 168 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

The disproportionate impact on Negroes of written test of verbal skill administered to applicants for employment as police officers does not warrant the conclusion that the test, which is neutral on its face, is a purposely discriminatory device. Id.

The affirmative efforts of Police Department to recruit black officers, the changing racial composition of the recruit classes and of the force in general, and the relationship of written test of verbal skill to the training program negates any inference that the Department discriminated on the basis of race notwithstanding the disproportionate impact of the test on Negro applicants. Id.

While claim raised against Police Department, namely, that test given in connection with promotion from patrolman to sergeant operated to discriminate against blacks, was not governed by equal employment provision of Civil Rights Act until Act was amended, Court would look to Act and decisions construing it for guidance as to constitutional constraints on a public employer. A. E. Davis et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1972, 352 F. Supp. 187).

Where there was a poorer statistical showing of blacks than whites who passed multiple-choice critical-incident test of judgment and supervisory competence used in connection with promotion from patrolman to sergeant in police department, prima facie case of discrimination was established, and burden then shifted to government employer to justify test by establishing that it was job related. Id.

Where, within multiple-choice critical-incident test of judgment and supervisory competence given in connection with promotion from patrolman to sergeant, judgmental questions portrayed by critical incidents chosen by most informed and expert members of police department and reviewed by another panel of police and testing experts without a doubt comprised a suitable sample of behaviors and skills extremely relevant to job of police sergeant, test was job related and constitutionally acceptable by current professional standards consistent with guidelines of Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Grooming standards

Police department grooming regulations promoted a substantial governmental interest (projection of an image facilitating effective functioning of the police department necessary to insure the safety and security of citizens) which outweighed plaintiff officer's interest in maintaining his hair and beard as his religious beliefs dictated, and said regulations did not unconstitutionally infringe on plaintiff's free exercise rights under the First Amendment. M. A. Marshall v. District of Columbia et al. (1975, 392 F.Supp. 1012).

Judicial review

Compelling police department to hire and assign plaintiff as an undercover agent, so that he would not have to comply with department grooming regulations, would constitute an undue interference by the court in the internal administration of the department. M. A. Marshall v. District of Columbia et al. (1975, 392 F.Supp. 1012).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section which prohibits District of Columbia police officers from engaging in fundamentally protected activity, that is from advocating, asserting or simply entertaining thoughts of achieving the right to strike against the District of Columbia, significantly infringed upon rights guaranteed a public employee by the First Amendment which were not counterbalanced by a compelling state interest. Police Officers' Guild, National Union of Police Officers, AFL-CIO, et al. v. W. E. Washington, Mayor Commissioner etc., et al. (1973, 369 F. Supp. 543).

Courts

Claim of plaintiff union and others that this section preventing policemen of the District of Columbia from affiliating with organizations which advocate strikes violated rights of free speech and association clearly "arises under the Constitution" within meaning of jurisdictional statute. Police Officers' Guild, National Union of Police Officers, AFL-CIO, et al. v. W. E. Washington, Mayor Commissioner etc., et al. (1973, 369 F. Supp. 543).

Three-judge court statute was properly invoked where complaints of plaintiffs formally alleged the basis for and specifically requested preliminary and permanent injunctive relief against enforcement of this section prohibiting members of police department of the District of Columbia from affiliating with organizations which advocate strikes, where a substantial constitutional question was raised, and where this section was an "Act of Congress" within meaning of three-judge court statute. Id.

Injunctions

District of Columbia would not be enjoined from enforcing unconstitutional statute prohibiting District of Columbia police officers from associating with groups which advocate strikes, where there was no indication that decision of three-judge district court would be ignored by the District of Columbia or by any other of the defendants, so that entry of a declaratory judgment would be a fully sufficient remedy. *Police Officers' Guild, National Union of Police Officers, AFL-CIO, et al. v. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Grooming standards

Police department grooming regulations promoted a substantial governmental interest (projection of an image facilitating effective functioning of the police department necessary to insure the safety and security of citizens) which outweighed plaintiff officer's interest in maintaining his hair and beard as his religious beliefs dictated, and said regulations did not unconstitutionally infringe on plaintiff's free exercise rights under the First Amendment. M. A. Marshall v. District of Columbia et al. (1975, 392 F.Supp. 1012).

Judicial review

Compelling police department to hire and assign plaintiff as an undercover agent, so that he would not have to comply with department grooming regulations, would constitute an undue interference by the court in the internal administration of the department. M. A. Marshall v. District of Columbia et al. (1975, 392 F.Supp. 1012).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest records—Amplification

In cases where an arrest is mistaken and lack of culpability has affirmatively been shown, appropriate remedy is not to destroy or seal record, but to clarify such record by a notation reflecting fact that no grounds of culpability existed, and in respect to records already disseminated, such records need not be returned, provided that suitable exculpatory explanations are sent to all persons or agencies in possession of them. District of Columbia v. J. Sophia (D.C. App. 1973, 306 A. 2d 652).

—Expungement

Class-wide injunctive relief ordering police department to expunge records of persons who had been arrested during mass demonstrations without probable cause is inappropriate; persons arrested should present request for expungement of their records to the police department, which should not continue to assert that it is barred by statute from expunging arrest records and that amplification is the sole remedy. Washington Mobilization Committee et al. v. M. J. Cullinane et al. (1975, 400 F.Supp. 186).

On failure of showing of probable cause for arrests, in action to declare certain acts with respect to arrests and prosecutions unconstitutional and to enjoin further prosections in connection with disorderly conduct type offenses related to antiwar demonstrations in District of Columbia during week of May 3, 1971, defendant officials were ordered to convey to counsel for plaintiffs for destruction all specified records that would in any way relate, inform or reflect that any member of class had been arrested or charged with an offense from and including May 3 through May 6, 1971, and it was ordered that seizures of members of class from and including May 3, 1971, through May 6, 1971, would be deemed to have been "detention" rather than "arrests." N. Sullivan et al. v. C. F. Murphy et al. (1974, 380 F. Supp. 867).

Arrestees' action against District of Columbia police officials to compel expungement of records of arrest during civil disorders was ripe for determination where all prosecutions arising from the disorders had terminated, any danger of embarrassment or interference from judgments possibly inconsistent with those of the District of Columbia courts was obviated and a clear-cut federal controversy existed. N. Sullivan et al. v. C. F. Murphy, Corporation Counsel, et al. (1973, 478 F. 2d 938, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 28; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 162, 414 U.S. 880).

Where arrests made during May, 1971, civil disorders were presumptively invalid because usual arrest procedures were not followed, arrest records, consisting in part of photographs and fingerprints taken of arrestees while they were being held in detention, would be ordered expunged. Id.

Police records

Where evidence in action for injunction prohibiting arbitrary use by police of computer system containing records of outstanding warrants and traffic tickets, for declaratory judgment that police regulations permitting use of system were unconstitutional and for compensatory and punitive damages arising out of alleged misuse of computer system revealed that check through computer revealed that plaintiffs had outstanding warrants against them, that plaintiffs without protest paid amounts assessed for outstanding warrants and that plaintiffs who were arrested because of warrants did not suffer any physical injury or lengthy deprivation, allegations of misconduct on part of police were not so serious as to warrant claim for more than $10,000; thus, federal court did not have jurisdiction. R. A. Boraks et al. v. J. V. Wilson et al. (1974, 383 F. Supp. 195).

Preservation of records

Metropolitan police department and not Superior Court must be charged with safekeeping of records with respect to which a clarification has been made by a notation reflecting fact that arrest was mistaken and that no grounds of culpability existed. District of Columbia v. J. Sophia (D.C. App. 1973, 306 A. 2d 652).

J. Sophia* (D.C. App. 1973, 306 A. 2d 652).

— Distribution

Substantial bundle of constitutional rights, including those of due process, privacy and presumption of innocence, may be unnecessarily infringed by police authorities' practice of routinely distributing preconviction or postexoneration arrest records, including not only fingerprints but also data identifying person arrested and information concerning details and surrounding circumstances of arrest, to Federal Bureau of Investigation for nationwide redistribution for both law enforcement and employment and licensing purposes. J. E. Utz et al. v. M. Cullinane (1975, 520 F.2d 467, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

"Duncan Ordinance" prohibited practice of metropolitan police department of routinely disseminating to Federal Bureau of Investigation, whether before conviction or after exoneration or both, arrest records which included not only arrestees' fingerprints but also data identifying persons arrested and information concerning details and surrounding circumstances of arrests, at least as long as FBI continued to redisseminate that data for other than law enforcement purposes and particularly for purposes of employment and licensing. Id.

Police report as notice

Police report, which set forth the circumstances surrounding plaintiff's arrest for unlawful entry and carrying a dangerous weapon, was not notice of an injury to person or damage to property for purposes of Code provision [§ 12-309] prohibiting maintenance of an action against the District of Columbia for unliquidated damages to person or property unless, within six months after the injury or damage, claimant has given written notice to the District of Columbia Commissioner of the approximate time, place, cause, and circumstances of the injury or damage. *H. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest records—Expungement

On failure of showing of probable cause for arrests, in action to declare certain acts with respect to arrests and prosecutions unconstitutional and to enjoin further prosecutions in connection with disorderly conduct type offenses related to antiwar demonstrations in District of Columbia during week of May 3, 1971, defendant officials were ordered to convey to counsel for plaintiffs for destruction all specified records that would in any way relate, inform or reflect that any member of class had been arrested or charged with an offense from and including May 3 through May 6, 1971, and it was ordered that seizures of members of class from and including May 3, 1971, through May 6, 1971, would be deemed to have been "detentions" rather than "arrests." N. Sullivan et al. v. C. F. Murphy et al. (1974, 380 F. Supp. 867).

Arrestees' action against District of Columbia police officials to compel expungement of records of arrest during civil disorders was ripe for determination where all prosecutions arising from the disorders had terminated, any danger of embarrassment or interference from judgments possibly inconsistent with those of the District of Columbia courts was obviated and a clear-cut federal controversy existed. *N. Decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals that in view of statute which requires Washington police records to be preserved, courts sitting in the District of Columbia lack jurisdiction to order the expungement of police records was not binding upon the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia circuit in action to redress violation of constitutional rights. Id.

Statute which provides that Washington police records must be preserved did not preclude the federal courts from giving relief, to persons in the District of Columbia deprived of constitutional rights, that would be available to persons in the various states from the appropriate federal courts of those districts and did not preclude expungement of arrest records. Id.

Where arrests made during May, 1971, civil disorders were presumptively invalid because usual arrest procedures were not followed, arrest records, consisting in part of photographs and fingerprints taken of arrestees while they were being held in detention, would be ordered expunged. Id.

Construction

Fact that statute which requires Washington police records to be preserved was enacted by Congress rather than by state legislature was not controlling on issue of applicability of the "Erie" doctrine with respect to District of Columbia Court of Appeals decision interpreting the statute. N. Sullivan et al. v. C. F. Murphy, Corporation Counsel, et al. (1973, 478 F. 2d 938, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 28; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 162, 414 U.S. 880).

§ 4-140a. Investigative arrests—Maximum period for questioning—Admissibility of confessions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Class actions

Person cannot represent class of which he is not a member; accordingly, plaintiff who was not subjected to police procedures under this section relating to interrogation of arrested persons or under statute relating to admissibility of prearrest statements could not assert class action on behalf of class that had been subject of police action based upon such statutes. C. D. Long v. District of Columbia et al. (1972, 469 F. 2d 927, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 187).

Stop and frisk

"Stop and frisk" which did not result in arrest or prosecution had no connection with this section relating to interrogation of arrested persons nor with statute relating to admissibility of prearrest statements sufficient to raise issue of constitutionality of such statute so as to require convention of three-judge district court. *C. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Wrongful arrest

District of Columbia police inspector is individually liable for unlawful and unreasonable arrests of members of religious group, who were conducting peaceful prayer vigil near White House, where inspector had established police lines due to claimed danger of property damage and personal injury created by influx of "outsiders" into the vigil lines, but there was no evidence to suggest possibility of violence or property damage at scene of the vigil other than simple fact that "outsiders" who joined vigil had same appearance as persons who were present at monument grounds when "unknown" persons destroyed property. *L. § 4-209. Arrests on or within roads, parks, parkways, and other Federal reservations in the environs of the District of Columbia.

On and within roads, parks, parkways, and other Federal reservations in the environs of the District of Columbia the several members of the United States Park Police force shall have the power and authority to make arrests without warrant for any felony or misdemeanor committed in the presence or view of such members in violation of any Federal law or regulation issued pursuant to law, or for any felony that in fact has been or is being committed in violation of any such law or regulation where they have reasonable grounds to believe that the person to be arrested has committed or is committing such felony, and shall have power to take any person arrested by them, without unnecessary delay, before the Federal court having jurisdiction over the offense or before a United States commissioner specifically designated to try and sentence persons charged with petty offenses as provided in the Act of October 9, 1940 (54 Stat. 1058), or before any other officer having authority to hold or commit for the offense. Such police officers shall also have power upon such roads and within such parks, parkways, and other reservations to execute any warrant or other process issued by a court or officer of competent jurisdiction for the enforcement of the provisions of any Federal law or regulation issued pursuant to law: Provided, That the power and authority herein granted shall not extend to military personnel for offenses committed on military reservations: Provided further, That the power and authority herein granted shall not limit or restrict the investigative jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. (Mar. 17, 1948, ch. 136, § 1, 62 Stat. 81; Aug. 18, 1970, Pub. L. 91-383, § 4, 84 Stat. 826.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

The Act of Oct. 17, 1968, Pub. L. 90-578, terminated the office of United States commissioner and established in place thereof the office of United States magistrate. The Act became operative in the District of Columbia on June 27, 1969, when two United States magistrates assumed the office pursuant to appointment by order of the District Court dated June 20, 1969. See §§ 401(a) and 402(a)(b) of said Act (28 U.S.C. 631 note).

The Act of Oct. 9, 1940 (54 Stat. 1058), referred to in text, was repealed by Act June 25, 1948, ch. 645, 62 Stat. 868, and is now covered by 18 U.S.C. 3401.

AMENDMENTS

1970—Act Aug. 18, 1970, Pub. L. 91-383, deleted the words "over which the United States has, or hereafter acquires, exclusive or concurrent criminal jurisdiction," immediately following "District of Columbia".

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 4-211.

§ 4-210. Rules and regulations—Penalties.

The Secretary of the Interior, with the approval or concurrence of the head of the agency having jurisdiction or control of any road, park, parkway, or other Federal reservation, or his duly authorized representative, is hereby authorized to make all needful rules and regulations for the regulation of traffic, for the protection of persons, property, health, and morals, to prevent breaches of the peace, to suppress affrays and unlawful assemblies and to aid in the enforcement of any of the rules and regulations so promulgated. To any rule or regulation there may be attached a reasonable penalty for the violation thereof not exceeding, however, a fine of not more than $500, imprisonment for not exceeding six months, or both. (Mar. 17, 1948, ch. 136, § 2, 62 Stat. 81.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

White House area demonstrations

The security of the President and the White House and the allocation of the scarce time and space resources in the White House area among competing applicants constitute a legitimate governmental interest which would justify some prior restraint on First Amendment activity in the White House area. However, this area is a unique site for exercise of First Amendment rights and deference cannot be accorded by the courts to an executive approach to use of the White House sidewalk that is rooted in a bias against expressive conduct. A Quaker Action Group et al. v. R. C. B. Morton, Secretary of the Interior, et al. (1975, 516 F.2d 717, 170 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Provisions of the permit system adopted by the National Park Service for demonstrations in the White House area must be enforced uniformly and without discrimination; should require a permit for every public gathering in areas for which a permit is required; should define "public gathering" in terms that do not impermissibly discriminate against First Amendment activity; and may avoid unwieldy administrative burdens by exemptions from the permit requirement of groups of less than a specified size. Id.

§ 4-211. Environs of the District of Columbia defined.

For the purposes of sections 4-209 to 4-211, the environs of the District of Columbia are hereby defined as embracing Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun, Prince William, and Stafford Counties and the city of Alexandria in Virginia, and Prince Georges, Charles, Anne Arundel, and Montgomery Counties in Maryland. (Mar. 17, 1948, ch. 136, § 3, 62 Stat. 81; Aug. 18, 1970, Pub. L. 91-383, § 4, 84 Stat. 826.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Act Aug. 18, 1970, Pub. L. 91-383, amended section by substituting "Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun, Prince William, and Stafford Counties and the city of Alexandria in Virginia, and Prince Georges, Charles, Anne Arundel, and Montgomery Counties in Maryland" for "Arlington and Fairfax Counties and the city of Alexandria in Virginia, and Prince Georges, Anne Arundel, and Montgomery Counties in Maryland".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Discrimination in services provided

In claim that District of Columbia had discriminated in provision of municipal services, evidence failed to show substantial differences in fire services provided to section of District of Columbia which was 90% black as compared to area which was 98% white. M. Burner et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1975, 399 F.Supp. 44).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Minimum height requirement

Employment practice requiring District of Columbia firemen to be at least five feet seven inches, a requirement not based on any scientific, analytic or statistical study, not related to job performance and not required by state interest, violated Civil Service Commission employment regulation which was applicable to District of Columbia fire department and which required that there be rational relationship between job performance and employment practice and that demonstration of rational relationship includes showing that practice was professionally developed; thus, District of Columbia should be enjoined from excluding applicants for firemen positions solely on basis of height. *T. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

Evidence that, inter alia, fireman's job frustration stemmed from his belief that job was beneath his dignity and education was sufficient to sustain finding that fireman, who was suffering from emotional difficulties and functional back and chest pains, be retired by reason of disability not incurred in nor aggravated by performance of duty as fireman. A. R. Lewis v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1974, 330 A. 2d 253).

Board of Appeals and Review with regard to order of Police and Firemen's Retirement and Relief Board involuntarily separating member of police department from the department for disability not contracted in or aggravated by performance of duty had to make basic findings which were supported by substantial evidence in record before stating ultimate facts and conclusions and there had to be a demonstration in the findings of a rational connection between the facts found and the choice made. M. E. Brewington v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1973, 299 A. 2d 145).

Not service connected

Where fireman was unable to get along with his colleagues over the years and his job frustration stemmed from his belief that job was beneath his dignity and educational abilities, such factors, relating to his basic personality and making him unfit for duty as a fireman, could not be considered to have been aggravating factors incurred in the "performance of duty," and thus he was retired for non-service-connected disabilities. A. R. Lewis v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1974, 330 A. 2d 253).

District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review properly found that police officer suffered from a mental disorder caused or aggravated by pressures of life stemming from his background and childhood, rather than from police duty. M. E. Brewington v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1973, 309 A. 2d 112).

§ 4-527. Retirement for disability while performing or not performing duty.

(1) Whenever any member is injured or contracts a disease in the performance of duty or such injury or disease is aggravated by such duty at any time after appointment and such injury or disease or aggravation permanently disables him for the performance of duty, he shall upon retirement for such disability, receive an annuity computed at the rate of 2½ per centum of his average pay for each year or portion thereof of his service: Provided, That such annuity shall not exceed 70 per centum of his average pay, nor shall it be less than 66⅔ per centum of his average pay.

(2) In any case in which the proximate cause of an injury incurred or disease contracted by a member is doubtful, or is shown to be other than the performance of duty, and such injury or disease is shown to have been aggravated by the performance of duty to such an extent that the member is permanently disabled for the performance of duty, such disability shall be construed to have been incurred in the performance of duty. The member shall, upon retirement for such disability, receive an annuity computed at the rate of 2½ per centum of his average pay for each year or portion thereof of his service: Provided, That such annuity shall not exceed 70 per centum of his average pay, nor shall it be less than 66⅔ per centum of his average pay.

(3) A member shall be retired under this section only upon the recommendation of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons and the concurrence therein by the Mayor, except that in any case in which a member seeks his own retirement under this section, he shall, in the absence of such recommendation, provide the necessary evidence to form the basis for the approval of such retirement by the Mayor. (Sept. 1, 1916, ch. 433, § 12(g), as added Aug. 21, 1957, 71 Stat. 394, Pub. L. 85-157, § 3, and amended Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1133, Pub. L. 87-857, § 1; Oct. 26, 1970, Pub. L. 91-509, § 1(4), 84 Stat. 1137; Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-407, title I, § 121(b) (1) (2), (c), 88 Stat. 1040.)

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

AMENDMENT

1974—Section 121(b) (1) (2) of Act Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-407, struck out "his basic salary at the time of retirement" and "his basic salary at the time of his retirement", each place it occurred in pars. (1) and (2), and inserted in lieu thereof "his average pay".

Section 121(c) of such Act added par. (3).

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1974 AMENDMENT

See note under § 4-521.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 4-183a, 4-521, 4-530, 4-531, 4-533.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

Unanimous medical opinion, as reflected in medical reports of eight physicians who had been involved in medical history of policeman seeking determination that he was disabled for performance of duty, that policeman was not disabled supported Board of Appeals and Review determination that policeman was not disabled. H. M. Brooks, Jr. v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 864).

Substantial evidence, including medical testimony, supported Board of Appeals and Review finding that policeman who sustained back injuries on separate occasions was not disabled for duty and therefore not entitled to disability retirement from police department. E. F. Morgan v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A.2d 243).

Where there was evidence pointing to original causation of policeman's disabling personality disorder being due to series of injuries incurred in the performance of official duties and where there was a paucity of countervailing evidence disproving such inference, finding of Board of Appeals and Review adverse to policeman, rendered by Board on reconsideration of its original decision holding that disability was caused by injuries incurred in line of duty, was erroneous. R. A. Crider v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1973, 299 A.2d 134).

Service connected disability

Where cause of fireman's disability is obscured or concededly due to factors predating his employment, in order to be retired for service-connected disability, fireman must prove that his disease or injury was subsequently aggravated by events occurring in the line of duty. A. R. Lewis v. District of Columbia Board of Appeals and Review (D.C. App. 1974, 330 A.2d 253).

§ 4-528. Optional retirement—Conditions—Suspension of retirement provisions during emergency—Credit for unused sick leave.

(1) Any member who completes twenty years of police or fire service may, after giving at least sixty days' written advance notice to his department head stating his intention to retire and stating the date on which he will retire, voluntarily retire from the service and shall be entitled to an annuity computed at the rate of 2½ per centum of his average pay for each year of service; except that the rate of

3 per centum of his average pay shall be used to compute each year's police or fire service in excess of twenty years: Provided, That such notice requirement may be waived by the department head when, in his opinion, circumstances justify such waiver: Provided further, That whenever the Mayor or the Chief of the Executive Protective Service, or the Chief of the United States Park Police force, or the Chief of the United States Secret Service division shall determine that there exists an emergency which is likely to endanger the safety of the public and that the public safety cannot be adequately protected except by suspending the retirement provisions of this paragraph, then the Mayor or any of said Chiefs shall be authorized to suspend the retirement provisions of this paragraph in any one or more of the departments under their respective jurisdictions until such time as, in the opinion of the Mayor or any of said Chiefs, respectively, public safety can be adequately protected without such suspension.

* * * * *

(3) No annuity granted under paragraph (1) or (2) of this section shall exceed 80 per centum of the average pay of such member.

COMMISSIONER'S ORDER ESTABLISHING POLICIES AND PROCEDURES FOR ADMINISTERING § 4-534(2)

Commissioner's Order No. 74-31, Feb. 12, 1974, provided:

By virtue of the authority vested in me by Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1967 and pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 92-410, approved August 29, 1972, it is hereby Ordered That:

I. Purpose:

The policies and procedures established herein shall govern the administration of paragraph (2) of subsection (m) of the Policemen and Firemen's Retirement and Disability Act (as amended by P.L. 92-410; 86 Stat. 642) [D.C. Code, sec. 4-534(2)], which requires that any officer or member of the Metropolitan Police force or Fire Department of the District of Columbia, the United States Park Police force, the Executive Protective Service or the United States Secret Service who is retired under subsection (f) or (g) of the Policemen and Firemen's Retirement and Disability Act (D.C. Code, sec. 4-526 or sec. 4-527) and who is employed on or after May 14, 1972, shall notify the Commissioner of such employment and shall undergo a medical examination (satisfactory to the Commissioner) of the disability upon which the officer or member's retirement under such subsection is based.

II. Delegation of Functions:

A. Director of Personnel. In his capacity as Chairman, Police and Firemen's Retirement and Relief Board (hereinafter referred to as the "Retirement Board"), the Director of Personnel shall be responsible for coordinating the administration of the aforementioned paragraph (2) in accordance with these policies and procedures.

B. Police and Firemen's Retirement and Relief Board.

1. The Retirement Board shall be responsible for giving timely written notice to each officer or member who is retired under subsection (f) or (g) of the Policemen and Firemen's Retirement and Disability Act of the promulgation of these policies and procedures and, if he is employed on or after May 14, 1972, of the requirement to notify the Retirement Board, in writing within 30 days of the date of its notice, of the type, location and specific duties of such employment.

2. After notification from each employed disabled retiree who resides within the Washington Metropolitan Area (the District of Columbia, the cities of Alexandria and Falls Church in Virginia, Montgomery and Prince George's Counties in Maryland, and Arlington and Fairfax Counties in Virginia), the Retirement Board shall direct the retiree to report to the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons (hereinafter referred to as the "Board of Surgeons") for a medical examination of the disability for which he was retired to determine his current physical and/or mental condition.

3. (a) After notification from each employed disabled retiree who resides outside the Washington Metropolitan Area, the Retirement Board shall direct the retiree to submit, in lieu of appearing before the Board of Surgeons, a statement of medical examination from a medical officer of any Federal, State or local government agency or any other licensed physician of the State in which he resides. To the extent possible, such medical officer or physician shall be certified in the field most nearly related to the retiree's disability. Such statement shall be submitted to the Board of Surgeons and must certify as to the retiree's current physical and/or mental condition, with specific reference to the disability for which he was retired. The statement must also certify that the examining physician is not related by blood or marriage to the retiree. Any expenses incurred in obtaining such statement will be borne by the retiree.

(b) Prior to such examination, the retiree shall submit to the Board of Surgeons the name, address and specialty field of the physician who is to perform the examination. A copy of the medical report upon which the officer or member's retirement was based shall be furnished to the examining physician for use in connection with the examination.

(c) The Retirement Board may, in its discretion, require the retired officer or member who resides outside the Washington Metropolitan Area to report to the Board of Surgeons for the medical examination. Any expenses incurred by the retiree who is required to do so will be borne by the retiree.

4. The Retirement Board shall review the written report of medical examination submitted to it by the Board of Surgeons in the case of each employed disabled retiree to determine the current status of the retiree's disability. Where it finds that an employed disabled retiree has recovered from his disability, the Retirement Board shall apply the recovery from disability provision of subsection (j) of the Policemen and Firemen's Retirement and Disability Act (D.C. Code, sec. 4-530) (see item III below).

5. The Retirement Board may, in its discretion, require any employed disabled retiree to personally appear before it to give testimony under oath regarding his present physical and/or mental condition. Any expenses incurred by the retiree who is required to do so will be borne by the retiree.

C. Board of Police and Fire Surgeons

1. (a) The Board of Surgeons shall schedule and conduct a thorough medical examination to determine the present physical and/or mental condition of each employed disabled retiree who resides within the Washington Metropolitan Area. A specialist in the field most nearly related to the retiree's disability (e.g., orthopedics, neurology) shall be consulted, as deemed necessary, in determining the retiree's present physical and/or mental condition.

(b) The Board of Surgeons shall thoroughly evaluate all pertinent medical records and employment information in determining the retiree's present physical and/or mental condition.

(c) In the case of each employed disabled retiree it examines, the Board of Surgeons shall submit to the Retirement Board a written report of such examination, with specific reference to the disability for which the individual was retired. Such report shall include a statement as to whether or not, in the Board of Surgeons' opinion, the retiree has recovered from his disability.

2. With respect to each employed disabled retiree examined by a physician outside the Washington Metropolitan Area, the Board of Surgeons shall submit to the Retirement Board a written report of its evaluation of such physician's statement of medical examination, together with such statement and related employment information, with specific reference to the disability for which the individual was retired. Such report shall include a statement as to whether or not, in the Board of Surgeons' opinion, the retiree has recovered from his disability.

III. Recovery From Disability:

1. In the case of any officer or member retired under subsection (f) or (g) of the Policemen and Firemen's Retirement and Disability Act, who is found to have recovered from his disability, before reaching the age of fifty, payment of his annuity shall cease upon reemployment in the department from which he was retired or one year from the date of the medical examination showing such recovery whichever is earlier.

2. A retiree who is found to have recovered from his disability and who applies for reinstatement in the department from which he was retired shall be reinstated in the same or nearest equivalent grade and salary available as that received at the time of his retirement provided that he meets the current entrance requirement of such department as to character.

IV. Effective Date:

The policies and procedures established herein shall take effect this date [Feb. 12, 1974].

Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

AMENDMENTS

1975—Section 2(a) of Act Jan. 3, 1975, Pub. L. 93-635, amended subssecs. (a), (b), (c), and (d), generally.

Section 2(b) of the Act added subssecs. (e) and (f).

Section 2(c) of the Act repealed pars. (5), (6), and (7) of section 101(a) of Act Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-407, effective as of Jan. 5, 1975. Such paragraphs had amended this section, as specified in the 1974 amendment notes contained below.

1974—Section 101(a)(5) of Act Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-407, purported to amend the entire section. It appears that amendment of the third sentence of subsec. (b) was intended, so as to substitute "until the position of dog handler . . . whichever first occurs" for "so long as he performs the duty of a dog handler". The amendment was repealed by sec. 2(c) of Act Jan. 3, 1975, Pub. L. 93-635.

Section 101(a)(6) of such Act amended the section by adding subssecs. (e) and (f). The amendment was repealed by sec. 2(c) of Act Jan. 3, 1975, Pub. L. 93-635.

Section 101(a)(7) of such Act purported to amend subsec. (a) by substituting "$735" for "$680" [the figure "$680" actually appeared in subsec. (b)]; and amended subsec. (c) by substituting "$540" for "$500". The amendment was repealed by sec. 2(c) of Act Jan. 3, 1975, Pub. L. 93-635.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1975 AMENDMENTS

Section 2(a) of Act Jan. 3, 1975, Pub. L. 93-635, provided in part that the amendment of subssecs. (a), (b), (c), and (d) is effective on and after the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after July 1, 1974.

Section 2(b) of the Act provided in part that the amendment adding subssecs. (e) and (f) is effective on and after the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1974.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1974 AMENDMENT

See note under § 4-823.

For purposes of this subsection, in computing a deputy chief's continuous service on the police force or fire department, there shall be included only those periods of his service determined to have been satisfactory service and any period of his service in the Armed Forces of the United States other than any period of such service—

(1) determined not to have been satisfactory service,

(2) rendered before appointment as an officer or member, or

(As amended Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-407, title I, § 101(a)(8), (9), 88 Stat. 1037.)

§ 4-838. Annual comparability study of police and firemen's salaries and benefits.

(a) The Commissioner of the District of Columbia, and after January 2, 1975, the Mayor of the District of Columbia, shall annually conduct a thorough study of the compensation being paid officers and members of the police and fire departments of other jurisdictions in the Washington metropolitan area and other cities of comparable size. The annual study may include other conditions of employment of police and firemen, such as hours of work, health benefits, retirement benefits, sick pay, and vacation time. The annual study shall also include the current percentage change in the Consumer Price Index for the Washington metropolitan area published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Department of Labor, and rates of compensation for Federal and District of Columbia employees having comparable duties and responsibilities.

(b) (1) In order to conduct the annual study specified in subsection (a), the Commissioner, or the Mayor, as the case may be, shall establish a city personnel salary and benefits study committee whose sole function shall be to conduct such annual study. The size of the committee shall be determined by the Commissioner, or the Mayor, as the case may be, who shall appoint the management members of the committee. Each labor organization or other association or group which has been selected to represent the officers and members of the Metropolitan Police force and the Fire Department of the District of Columbia shall select representatives of their respective labor organizations or other association or group to be members of the labor-management committee.

(2) The number of management members and the number of members representing the labor organizations or other associations or groups on the labor-management committee shall be equal. The chairman of the labor management committee shall be chosen by members of the committee, and shall not be an officer or employee of the District of Columbia government or a member or employee of a labor organization or other association or group represented on the committee. If the committee has not chosen a chairman within 10 days after the date of the first meeting of the committee, then the chairman shall be chosen by the Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

(c) On or before June 30 of each year, the results of the annual study shall be made public and shall be available to the parties involved in negotiations between the District of Columbia and representatives of the officers and members of the Metropolitan Police force and the Fire Department of the District of Columbia under the District of Columbia labor relations program. The results of such annual study shall also form the basis for consideration of adjustments in pay levels for officers of the Metropolitan Police force and the Fire Department of the District of Columbia whose compensation is adjusted in a manner which is outside the scope of the negotiations referred to in the first sentence of this subsection. (Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-407, title I, § 111, 88 Stat. 1038.)

(a) If after January 2, 1975, as a result of collective bargaining the parties have reached a negotiated solution with respect to changes in compensation for officers and members of the Police and Fire Departments, the Mayor shall recommend to the Council of the District of Columbia that said changes should be authorized and that the Congress shall be requested to appropriate sufficient funds for that purpose. The first recommendation made by the Mayor under this subsection shall be made by no later than October 1, 1975.

(b) The recommendations submitted by the Mayor under subsection (a) shall be considered a labor-management issue for the purposes of subsection (c).

(c) If the parties have reached an impasse in negotiations on or before the expiration date of their existing collective bargaining agreements, either party shall promptly notify the Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in writing. He shall assist in the resolution of that impasse by selecting an impartial person experienced in public sector disputes to serve as a mediator. If mediation does not resolve the impasse within thirty days, or any shorter period designated by the mediator, the Director shall, only upon the request of either party, then appoint an impartial Board of Arbitration to investigate the labor-management issues involved in the dispute, conduct whatever hearing it deems necessary, and to issue a written award to the parties with the object of achieving a prompt, peaceful, and fair settlement of the dispute. The award shall be issued within twenty days after the Board has been established. The award shall contain findings of fact and a statement of reasons. The award shall be final and binding upon the parties to the dispute.

(d) If the procedures set forth in subsection (c) are implemented, no change in the status quo in effect prior to contract expiration date in the case of negotiations for a contract renewal, or in effect prior to the time of impasse in the case of an initial bar-

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Housing regulations

In view of fact that, although trial court held that District of Columbia housing regulation did not apply to public housing accommodations in which tenants lived, it afforded tenants full benefit of principles which were based upon application of housing regulation, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not decide whether trial court's ruling was correct because result would be same in either event. R. L. Coleman et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A. 2d 496).

(b) All functions, powers, and duties of the President under sections 5-103 to 5-116 shall be vested in and exercised by the Mayor. All employees, property (real and personal), and unexpended balances (available or to be made available) of appropriations, allocations, and all other funds, and assets and liabilities of the Authority are authorized to be transferred to the District of Columbia government. ORDER DESIGNATING THE AUTHORITY TO CARRY OUT THE PROVISIONS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA ALLEY DWELLING ACT

(Commissioner's Order No. 74-145, June 29, 1974.)

By virtue of the authority vested in me by Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1967 and Section 202 of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act (Public Law 93-198; 87 Stat. 774), IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that:

2. In carrying out his functions as such Authority, the Director of the Office of Housing and Community Development shall be known as the "National Capital Housing Authority."

3. All employees, property, unexpended balances of appropriations, allocations, and all other funds, assets and liabilities of the National Capital Housing Authority, are hereby transferred to the Authority named herein.

4. This Order shall be effective on and after July 1, 1974.

§ 5-105. Appropriation of funds—"Conversion of inhabited alley fund"—Power of the Authority to borrow money—Incidental powers.

(a) The President is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to make immediately available to the Authority for its lawful uses and as needed, from the allocation made from the appropriation to carry out the purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act, contained in the Fourth Deficiency Act, fiscal year 1933, now carried under the title, "National Industrial Recovery, Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, Housing, 1933-1935," symbol 03/5666, not to exceed $500,000 of any amount thereof dedicated for low-cost housing and slum-clearance projects in the District of Columbia, to be set aside in the treasury and be known as "Conversion of inhabited alleys fund" (hereinafter referred to as the "fund").

(b) The Authority is hereby authorized and empowered to borrow such moneys from individuals or private corporations as may be secured by the property and assets acquired under the provisions of sections 5-103 to 5-116, and such moneys, together with all receipts from sales, leases, or other sources, shall be deposited in the fund and shall be available for the purposes of sections 5-103 to 5-116. The Authority is hereby authorized and empowered to accept gifts of money from private sources; to borrow from the treasury of the United States not to exceed $1,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939, and a like sum in each of the four succeeding fiscal years, upon such terms and conditions as the President may deem advisable, and appropriations for such purpose are hereby authorized out of the general fund of the treasury: Provided, That the Authority shall be obligated for the payment of interest at the going federal rate as defined in the United States Housing Act of 1937.

(c) The fund shall be available annually in such amount as may be specified in the annual appropriation acts.

(d) Repealed. Apr. 4, 1960, 74 Stat. 12, Pub. L. 86-400, § 1.

(e) In carrying out the provisions of sections 5-103 to 5-116, the Authority is hereby authorized and empowered (1) [Repealed. REFERENCES IN TEXT

The United States Housing Act of 1937, referred to in subsec. (b), is classified to 42 U.S.C. ch. 8.

The "civil service laws", referred to in subsec. (e), are set forth in title 5, U.S.C. See, particularly, § 3301 et seq. of that title.

CODIFICATION

In subsec. (e) (3), the exception from "the Classification Act of 1923, as amended" has been omitted as obsolete. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 972, 973) repealed the 1923 Act and all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. While § 1106(a) of the 1949 Act provided that references in other laws to the 1923 Act should be held and considered to mean the 1949 Act, it did not have the effect of continuing the exception contained in this section because of § 1106(b) that provided that the application of the 1949 Act to any position, officer, or employee shall not be affected by § 1106(a). The Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by Act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632 (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5 U.S.C., into law). Section 5102 of title 5, U.S.C., now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act.

AMENDMENTS

1960—Act Apr. 4, 1960, repealed subsec. (d), which prescribed the maximum cost for property in any square.

Rent increases

While the National Capital Housing Authority and Department of Housing and Urban Development have discretion to determine the levels and structure of rents and public housing, the agencies must be guided by the general directive that the rents be within the financial reach of families of low income. C. O. Thompson et al. v. W. Washington, Commissioner etc. (1973, 497 F. 2d 626, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Tenants of National Capital Housing Authority low rent public housing were entitled by the National Housing Act to notice of proposed rent increases and to an opportunity to respond in writing before rent increase proposals were forwarded to Department of Housing and Urban Development for approval. Id.

Sovereign immunity

The doctrine of sovereign immunity did not bar class action on behalf of tenants of rental units of the National Capital Housing Authority against the Commissioner of District of Columbia and the National Capital Housing Authority for injunctive and declaratory relief with respect to rental increases scheduled by the Authority. C. O. Thompson et al. v. W. Washington, Commissioner etc. (1973, 497 F. 2d 626, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Utilities

Where, in her original and supplemental complaints and motion for preliminary injunction, tenant sought an injunction which would require Commissioner of District of Columbia to provide utilities on a permanent, continuing basis and to make whatever repairs might be necessary to bring three buildings of apartment complex into compliance with housing regulations, but all units in apartment complex were vacated prior to order enjoining Commissioner from taking any action in respect to buildings, and, subsequent thereto, one building was demolished, appeal from denial of motion for preliminary injunction was moot and would be dismissed, and if district court on remand found that remaining two buildings were uninhabitable, barricaded, and scheduled for demolition, it would appear that it should revoke its injunctive order and dismiss action at moot. *A. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Alteration

Demolition of all but the girders and joists of the hotel structure did not constitute an "alteration" within the meaning of statute requiring property owners in certain section of nation's capital to obtain approval of Fine Arts Commission for the "alteration" of the "height and appearance, color and texture of the materials of exterior construction" of buildings within the protected area. Commissioner of the District of Columbia et al. v. C. B. Benenson et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A. 2d 437).

The term "alteration" as used in statute requiring approval of Fine Arts Commission for the "erection or alteration" of any building within the regulated area of the nation's capital means change in the sense of adding to, remodeling or reconstruction. Id.

Function of Fine Arts Commission

The function of the Fine Arts Commission under statute requiring its approval for modification of buildings within certain areas of nation's capital is confined essentially to recommendations concerning applications for permits for the "erection or alteration of any building" within the prescribed area so far as the plans therefor relate to "height and appearance, color, and texture of the materials of external construction * * *." Commissioner of the District of Columbia et al. v. C. B. Benenson et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A.2d 437).

§ 5-412. Zoning Commission created—Membership—Functions.

Each member appointed by the Mayor shall serve for a term of four years, except of the members first appointed under this section—

(1) one member shall serve for a term of two years, as determined by the Mayor;

(2) one member shall serve for a term of three years, as determined by the Mayor; and

(3) one member shall serve for a term of four years, as determined by the Mayor.

(b) Members of the Zoning Commission appointed by the Mayor shall be entitled to receive compensation as determined by the Mayor, with the approval of a majority of the Council. The remaining members shall serve without additional compensation.

(c) Members of the Zoning Commission appointed by the Mayor may be reappointed. Each member shall serve until his successor has been appointed and qualifies.

(d) The Chairman of the Zoning Commission shall be selected by the members.

(e) The Zoning Commission shall exercise all the powers and perform all the duties with respect to zoning in the District as provided by law. (Mar. 1, 1920, 41 Stat. 500, ch. 92, § 1; Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1291, ch. 124; Feb. 26, 1925, 43 Stat. 983, ch. 339; Ex. Ord. EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1973 AMENDMENT

Section 771 of Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, as amended, set out as a note under § 1-121, provided in part that this amendment is effective on Jan. 2, 1975, if a majority of the registered qualified electors in the District of Columbia voting on the charter issue in the charter referendum accepted the charter set out in title IV of such Act. The charter was approved by the voters on May 7, 1974.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Advisory opinions

Absence of pending application for redevelopment of apartment complex did not render request for determination of whether requirement of an environmental impact statement would be triggered by redevelopment under either District of Columbia zoning regulations for planned unit developments or provisions for amendment of zoning maps a request for advisory opinion since issues were legal ones involving construction of statutes and regulations and were basically independent of facts surrounding a specific redevelopment proposal, redevelopment would have to occur under one of the two provisions and disposing of matter would avoid subsequent prolonged interference with the administrative process. McLean Gardens Residents Association, Inc., et al. v. National Capital Planning Commission et al. (1974, 390 F.Supp. 165).

Board of Zoning Adjustment—Relationship to

to express Zoning Commission's concerns and to cast his vote with full knowledge of attitudes and policy positions of Commission's members, but he is bound to cast his vote with the Board based exclusively upon the record of proceedings before the Board. Sheridan-Kalorama Neighborhood Council et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A.2d 312).

While channel for communication between Zoning Commission and Board of Zoning Adjustment may become a conduit for pressures external to the Zoning Commission, which abuse might invalidate a Board decision, such communications, if they occur should be made a part of the public record so that interested parties may comment. Id.

— Review of decisions

Statutory scheme for processing zoning exceptions was adhered to, and petitioners who sought judicial review of Board of Zoning Adjustment action which granted a special exception were afforded a fair and impartial hearing which satisfied requirements of procedural due process where, inter alia, following indication by Board member who was also a member of Zoning Commission, that Commission would review denial of application, one Board member dissented and expressed apprehension that improper pressure had been brought to bear from "upstairs," Commission's order of remand disavowed any intention on Commission's part influence independent decision-making process of Board, and Board's final order was based upon criteria made applicable by zoning regulations. Sheridan-Kalorama Neighborhood Council et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A.2d 312).

Environmental impact

Although the District of Columbia Zoning Commission and National Capital Planning Commission are not required to prepare an environmental impact statement in connection with applications under the District's zoning regulations for planned unit development or for amendment of zoning maps and zoning regulations, the environmental policies delineated in the National Environmental Policy Act should find expression in the planning and zoning process in the District; proper avenue for implementation of the purposes of the NEPA is in the planning operations of the National Capital Planning Commission, particularly in formulation of the Comprehensive Plan. McLean Gardens Residents Association, Inc., et al. v. National Capital Planning Commission et al. (1974, 390 F.Supp. 165).

Where potential environmental effects of decision of Zoning Commission are substantial, it must at least consider the environmental issue to fulfill its public interest mandate. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F.2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Inasmuch as District of Columbia Zoning Commission which down-zoned substantial portion of downtown area was not a federal agency, no environmental impact statement was required. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 686).

Ex parte contacts

Contacts of District of Columbia Zoning Commission with federal agencies did not defeat validity of down-zoning order of the Commission on theory that the Commission considered information ex parte. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 686).

Hearings

While property rights may not be taken without due process of law, a property owner has no right to a particular zoning classification of his property and thus a hearing upon property owner's proposed zoning map amendment before its denial is not constitutionally required. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

Injunctions

Preliminary injunction against enforcement of down-zoning order of District of Columbia Zoning Commission would be denied where issues were novel, likelihood of success on merits appeared slight and there was no affirmative showing of urgent necessity for interference with major city planning efforts. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 683).

Judicial review

Absent "contested case" status under Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), Court of Appeals does not have jurisdiction to directly review Zoning Commission's order amending zoning regulations under section 1-1510 relating to review by Court of administrative orders including power to hold unlawful and set aside findings and conclusions in enumerated instances, as that section does not denote a grant of jurisdiction but is a plain statement of scope of judicial review applicable only to contested cases. Dupont Circle Citizen's Association et al. v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 296).

When Zoning Commission exercised its authority to determine needs of area by denying without public hearing a proposed amendment to zoning maps to change zoning classification of property, the Commission was acting legislatively and was not subject to the "contested case" provisions of Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), with the result that such decision is not subject to direct review by the Court of Appeals, despite contention of property owner that mere submission of proposed amendment, and the subsequent rejection of same, constituted a "hearing" required by law, and thus is subject to review. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

In reviewing refusal by Zoning Commission to enact interim amendment to zoning ordinance preventing major construction not in conformance with National Capital Planning Commission's comprehensive recommendations as to development of waterfront area until completion of pending area study, Court of Appeals would consider only whether Commission acted arbitrarily and capriciously, i.e., whether its decision had no substantial relationship to the general welfare. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F.2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Actions of Zoning Commission are entitled to presumption of validity; however, the Commission must put forward or the court must be otherwise able to discern some basis in fact and law to justify Commission's action as consistent with reasonableness. Id.

Nature of proceedings

Proceedings before District of Columbia Zoning Commission are quasi-legislative in character, not adjudicative in nature, and strictures of the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act and full range of due process protections necessary to an adversary adjudication are not applicable. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 686).

Proceedings held under the District of Columbia Zoning Commission's rules of practice, resulting in down-zoning of area, were not a "contested case" within meaning of Administrative Procedure Act, but were adversary in nature and equity could be invoked. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 683).

Reasons for decision

Although the Zoning Commission is a quasi-legislative body and is not required to support its legislative type judgments with findings of fact, there are important elements of a nonlegislative nature to the Commission's decisions; while the legislative character of the Commission's decision may take it outside the strict application of requirement of fact finding, the Commission may still be required to state reasons for its decisions. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F.2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Reasons differ from findings in that reasons relate to law, policy, and discretion rather than to facts; thus, even where findings are not required, a disclosure of an agency's reasons is often desirable; requirements of reasons should not be limited to formal proceedings but should extend to all determinations, unless the inconvenience is likely to outweigh the probable benefits. Id.

Fact that D.C. Administrative Procedure Act expressly imposes a statement of reasons requirement only in contested cases does not bar imposing a requirement of stated reasons in other contexts; the Act was meant only to prescribe minimum procedures. Id.

Decision of District of Columbia Zoning Commission down-zoning a substantial portion of downtown area had a substantial relationship to the general welfare and was supported by adequate reasons. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 686).

If District of Columbia Zoning Commission in down-zoning downtown area acted for reasons not a matter of record, court would be required to find its actions arbitrary. Id.

Inasmuch as judicial review of action of District of Columbia zoning commission in down-zoning area of city would be facilitated by a statement of the commission's reasons, court would direct commission to state its reasons for the down-zoning order, and to provide statement of the environmental factors considered persuasive of the action taken. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 683).

Recommendation of Planning Commission

The Zoning Commission, in determining whether to adopt interim amendment to zoning ordinance preventing major construction in waterfront area until completion of study looking toward implementation of National Capital Planning Commission's comprehensive land use plan, was not bound to follow NCPC's recommendation to adopt interim amendment; Zoning Commission was not required to show a compelling public interest before it could override recommendation. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F. 2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Review by court

In reviewing action of District of Columbia Zoning Commission, district court is not required to hold a trial de novo nor may it substitute its view of the evidence before the Commission for that of the Commission. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 686).

Court reviewing decision of Zoning Commission has duty to assure that proceedings before the Commission were essentially fair. Id.

Fact that plaintiffs claiming that District of Columbia zoning commission acted arbitrarily and illegally in down-zoning area had requested, after suit was filed, that commission state its reasons in form of motion for reconsideration did not defeat jurisdiction to review commission's action where there was no likelihood of favorable action by the commission. R. Ruppert et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1973, 366 F. Supp. 683).

§ 5-414. Purposes of zoning regulations.

Zoning maps and regulations, and amendments thereto, shall not be inconsistent with the comprehensive plan for the National Capital, and zoning regulations shall be designed to lessen congestion in the street, to secure safety from fire, panic, and other dangers, to promote health and the general welfare, to provide adequate light and air, to prevent the undue concentration of population and the overcrowding of land, and to promote such distribution of population and of the uses of land as would tend to create conditions favorable to health, safety, transportation, prosperity, protection of property, civic activity, and recreational, educational, and cultural opportunities, and as would tend to further economy and efficiency in the supply of public services. Such regulations shall be made with reasonable consideration, among other things, of the character of the respective districts and their suitability for the uses provided in the regulations, and with a view to encouraging stability of districts and of land values therein. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 797, ch. 534, § 2; Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title IV, § 492 (b) (1), 87 Stat. 810.)

AMENDMENT

1973—Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, amended the first sentence by striking out "Such regulations shall be made in accordance with a comprehensive plan and" and inserting in lieu thereof "Zoning maps and regulations, and amendments thereto, shall not be inconsistent with the comprehensive plan for the National Capital, and zoning regulations shall be".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1973 AMENDMENT

Section 771 of Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, as amended, set out as a note under § 1-121, provided in part that this amendment is effective on Jan. 2, 1975, if a majority of the registered qualified electors in the District of Columbia voting on the charter issue in the charter referendum accepted the charter set out in title IV of such Act. The charter was approved by the voters on May 7, 1974.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Comprehensive plan

Words "comprehensive plan," as used in statutory requirement that zoning regulations adopted by District of Columbia Zoning Commission be in accordance with comprehensive plan does not refer to comprehensive land use plan which the National Capital Planning Commission is charged with preparing by § 1-1004; rather, such requirement refers to the Commission's obligation to zone on a uniform and comprehensive basis. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. Zoning Commission of the District of Columbia (1973, 477 F. 2d 402, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Construction

Interpretation of relevant statutes and zoning regulations by the Board of Zoning Adjustment, which, in respect to application for "special exception" to allow the construction of a private school in single-family residential area, refused to consider the purposes set forth in this section as adjudicatory standards in making the "special exception" determination, and which refused to allow the introduction of factual evidence regarding the impact upon public schools in the area, is not plainly erroneous or inconsistent with the statutes or regulations. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 564).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Hearings

While property rights may not be taken without due process of law, a property owner has no right to a particular zoning classification of his property and thus a hearing upon property owner's proposed zoning map amendment before its denial is not constitutionally required. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

Judicial review

When Zoning Commission exercised its authority to determine needs of area by denying without public hearing a proposed amendment to zoning maps to change zoning classification of property, the Commission was acting legislatively and was not subject to the "contested case" provisions of Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), with the result that such decision is not subject to direct review by the Court of Appeals, despite contention of property owner that mere submission of proposed amendment, and the subsequent rejection of same, constituted a "hearing" required by law, and thus is subject to review. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v.

District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

§5-417. Public hearings on proposed zoning regulations, maps, and amendments—Notice—Submission to National Capital Planning Commission.

(a) No zoning regulation or map, or any amendment thereto, may be adopted by the Zoning Commission until the Zoning Commission—

(1) has held a public hearing, after notice, on such proposed regulation, map, or amendment; and

(2) after such public hearing, submitted such proposed regulation, map, or amendment to the National Capital Planning Commission for comment and review.

If the National Capital Planning Commission fails to submit its comments regarding any such regulation, map, or amendment within thirty days after submission of such regulation, map, or amendment to it, then the Zoning Commission may proceed to act upon the proposed regulation, map, or amendment without further comment from the National Capital Planning Commission.

(b) The notice required by clause (1) of subsection (a) shall be published at least thirty days prior to such public hearing and shall include a statement as to the time and place of the hearing and a summary of all changes in existing zoning regulations which would be made by adoption of the proposed regulation, map, or amendment. The Zoning Commission shall give such additional notice as it deems expedient and practicable. All interested persons shall be given a reasonable opportunity to be heard at such public hearing. If the hearing is adjourned from time to time, the time and place of reconvening shall be publicly announced prior to adjournment.

(c) The Zoning Commission shall deposit with the National Capital Planning Commission all zoning regulations, maps, or amendments thereto, adopted by it. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 798, ch. 534, § 5; Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title IV, § 492(b) (2), 87 Stat. 810.)

Zoning Advisory Council, or in any officer, employee, or body of or under such agency, shall be considered as a function transferred to the Council pursuant to section 404(a) of this Act [§ 1-144(a)]. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Environmental impact

Although the District of Columbia Zoning Commission and National Capital Planning Commission are not required to prepare an environmental impact statement in connection with applications under the District's zoning regulations for planned unit development or for amendment of zoning maps and zoning regulations, the environmental policies delineated in the National Environmental Policy Act should find expression in the planning and zoning process in the District; proper avenue for implementation of the purposes of the NEPA is in the planning operations of the National Capital Planning Commission, particularly in formulation of the Comprehensive Plan. McLean Gardens Residents Association, Inc., et al. v. National Capital Planning Commission et al. (1974, 390 F. Supp. 165).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Administrative procedure

Although Board of Zoning Adjustment may not have been required to consider impact on existing public and private schools in passing on request by religious organization for special exception to allow construction of private school for kindergarten and elementary school age children in residential area the Board committed procedural error, requiring remand, in not implementing its preliminary decision to seek "comments" from Board of Education respecting possible adverse impact on existing schools and in relying on information contained in letter from Superintendent of Schools as to such impact without serving such letter on the parties. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et ano. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 701).

Arbitrary or capricious

Board of Zoning Adjustment, being a creature of statute with discretionary and fact-finding authority, may not exercise its discretion in an arbitrary manner but rather is subject to statutory and regulatory directives and guidelines. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et ano. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 701).

Construction

Interpretation of relevant statutes and zoning regulations by the Board of Zoning Adjustment, which, in respect to application for "special exception" to allow the construction of a private school in single-family residential area, refused to consider the purposes set forth in section 5-414 as adjudicatory standards in making the "special exception" determination, and which refused to allow the introduction of factual evidence regarding the impact upon public schools in the area, is not plainly erroneous or inconsistent with the statutes or regulations. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 564).

Construction of zoning regulations

When Court of Appeals reviews Zoning Board's construction of regulations adopted by Zoning Commission, Board's interpretation is controlling, unless it is plainly erroneous or inconsistent with regulation. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 282).

With respect to zoning regulation requiring for high school and accessory uses two parking spaces for each three teachers plus one for each 20 classroom seats "OR" one for each ten auditorium seats whichever is greater, it was reasonable for Board of Zoning Adjustment to consider "OR" as dividing line between alternatives so that number of parking spaces required was either "two for each three teachers plus one for each 20 classroom seats" or "one for each ten auditorium seats," whichever alternative was greater. Id.

Board of Zoning Adjustment's construction of Zoning Commission's regulations to include high school gymnasium within high school and accessory use provision of regulations for purposes of determining number of parking spaces required rather than as a place of public assemblage was not plainly erroneous or inconsistent with regulations. Id.

Decision

Decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment on application for special exception must not be controlled by head count as in a political election, but by evidence adduced as it relates to requirements for special exception. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 282).

Ex parte contacts

Person designated by Zoning Commission to represent Commission on Board of Zoning Adjustment is authorized to express Zoning Commission's concerns and to cast his vote with full knowledge of attitudes and policy positions of Commission's members, but he is bound to cast his vote with the Board based exclusively upon the record of proceedings before the Board. Sheridan-Kalorama Neighborhood Council et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A. 2d 312).

While channel for communication between Zoning Commission and Board of Zoning Adjustment may become a conduit for pressures external to the Zoning Commission, which abuse might invalidate a Board decision, such communications, if they occur should be made a part of the public record so that interested parties may comment. Id.

Where neighboring property owner, who objected to application for special exception to zoning plan, addressed ex parte letter on merits of controversy to member of Board of Zoning Adjustment the member, instead of sending an ex parte reply to the property owner, should have placed his improper submission in the public record and had copies thereof served on the other parties, notwithstanding fact that record technically was closed and the case had been decided. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et ano. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 701).

Exception

Applicants for special exceptions to permit the construction and use of an office building in a special purpose district failed to meet their required burden to obtain a special exception. E. A. Shay et al. v. District of Columbia, Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 337 A. 2d 506).

Board of Zoning Adjustment may exercise its discretion to grant a special exception only when in its judgment the exception sought is in accord with the purpose of the zoning regulations. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et ano. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 701).

— Community center

Where proposed facility was to be located on property zoned residential, was to house indoor tennis, squash, handball, sauna baths and indoor swimming and was not to be open to members of the community at large, but was to be operated as a club with use limited to members and their guests, and where memberships offered would be limited in number, the proposed facility was a private club and not a "community center" facility operated by a local "community organization" within zoning ordinance authorizing granting of special exception for such a community facility. D. C. Stewart et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A. 2d 516).

— Private school

Interpretation of relevant statutes and zoning regulations by the Board of Zoning Adjustment, which, in respect to application for "special exception" to allow the construction of a private school in single-family residential area, refused to consider the purposes set forth in section 5-414 as adjudicatory standards in making the "special exception" determination, and which refused to allow the introduction of factual evidence regarding the impact upon public schools in the area, is not plainly erroneous or inconsistent with the statutes or regulations. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 564).

Evidence established that requirements had been met for special exception to permit private high school to be located in building situated in median density apartment house zone. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 282).

Findings of fact

Order of Zoning Board of Adjustment reversing grant to property owner of building permit to construct a sun deck at rear of his home would have to be reversed, and the case remanded, where Board made no findings whatever concerning issue raised by owner, who asserted that because of seven-month delay between issuance of permit and filing of appeal with the Board five months after deck was completed, because of lack of complaints by neighbors while construction was in progress, and because of good-faith reliance by owner on building permit issued, zoning appeal should be dismissed on ground of laches and estoppel. S. A. Smith et ux. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A. 2d 356).

Board of Zoning Adjustment's findings of fact which were devoid of any delineation of factors weighed in reaching its conclusions of law thereby precluding determination on review as to which factors or considerations influenced Board's decision are inadequate and require remand to Board for proper entry of findings of fact and conclusions of law. E. A. Shay et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 175).

Findings of Board of Zoning Adjustment in denying application for variance from a C-1 (neighborhood shopping) nonconforming use to a C-2 (community business center) use were insufficient for reviewing court to discern the necessary rational basis for the decision. L. Salsbery v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A.2d 894).

Consideration by Board of Zoning Adjustment of costs of converting to residential use building for which petitioner sought variance from a C-1 conforming use to a C-2 use did not obviate necessity for findings required by zoning statute. Id.

In action by college for review of order of Board of Zoning Adjustment denying application for amendment to campus plan to allow college to offer short-term, continuing education type courses on year-around basis, evidence sustained findings of the Board that new programs would introduce large number of transient men and women onto college property, substantially increase number of people entering or leaving neighborhood, usually in automobiles, adversely affect use of neighboring property in residential zone and cause continuing instability and alarm in community because of uncertainty about nature of uses which could be anticipated. Marjorie Webster Junior College, Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 309 A. 2d 314).

Hardship

There was rational basis for conclusion of District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment that owner of building in residential area had failed to make the required showing of hardship to warrant a variance to permit use of property for general office purposes. M. Dwyer v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 306).

Under zoning statute, grant of variance on basis of hardship was not restricted to case where required hardship inheres in "land" as opposed to "property." Clerics of Saint Viator, Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 291).

Owner of seminary was not precluded on application for variance from claiming hardship on theory that any hardship was self-imposed, where it was not building of structure which gave rise to complained-of hardship but hardship was caused by extraordinary drop in enrollment of seminarians due solely to historical circumstances and beyond control of seminary administration. Id.

On application for variance to convert seminary to nursing home on claim of hardship, necessary element of proof of hardship was evidence showing inability of applicant to make a reasonable disposition of property for a permitted use. Id.

Application of zoning regulation which allowed only detached single family homes with minimum lot dimensions of 50 feet in width and 5,000 total square feet to property which was shallow and had extreme topography and was in close proximity to small district of neighborhood shopping and a general residence district did not result in an undue hardship upon landowner warranting the granting of variance to build 27 row houses of just over 2,000 square feet. W. W. Taylor v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 230).

Shallowness of lots was a self-imposed hardship which was entitled to only slight weight, if any, in determining uniqueness of hardship to justify granting of variance in zoning. Id.

Powers

Sole authority for any amendment of zoning regulations relating to parking is in Zoning Commission, not Board of Zoning Adjustment. Citizens Association of Georgetown, Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 337 A.2d 495).

Board of Zoning Adjustment is without direct or indirect power to amend a zoning map and regulations. W. W. Taylor v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 230).

Precedents

While Board of Zoning Adjustment is not bound for all time by its prior positions, Board should have considered, not only in connection with Board's decision on the merits of the case but also as it related to owner's claim of estoppel, contention of property owner that zoning administrator's approval of construction of sun deck was given pursuant to a long-standing interpretation of zoning regulations which had been approved in the past by the Board. S. A. Smith et ux. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 356).

Reasons for decision

Order of Zoning Board of Adjustment which reversed grant to property owner of building permit to construct a sun deck at the rear of his property improperly fails to articulate the relationship between the Board's findings of fact and conclusions of law, which is a responsibility of the Board, where the facts were stated and where the ultimate conclusion followed, but where the Court of Appeals cannot determine from the order the manner in which the Board construed its regulations in arriving at its conclusion that "the structure" violated the zoning regulations. S. A. Smith, et ux. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 356).

Where Board of Zoning Adjustment's reasons for denying area variance merely quoted pertinent standards in subsection of code without explaining how proposed variance would violate such standards, except for one terse sentence dealing with property owner's alleged self-imposition of hardship, Board's conclusions and findings are insufficient. A. L. W., Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 428).

Review by court

Failure of chairman and a member of Board of Zoning Adjustment to recuse themselves, in respect to application for a "special exception" to allow the construction of a private school in a residential area, is waived by the failure of those opposing the application to timely raise that issue at the administrative level and at the earlier review proceeding in the Court of Appeals, irrespective of the fact that the recusal issue was listed in the petition for review in the first Court of Appeals proceeding. Rose Lees Hardy Home and School Association et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 564).

On review of order of Board of Zoning Adjustment, Court of Appeals must determine whether findings made are supported and in accordance with reliable, probative and substantial evidence in the whole administrative record and whether conclusions of Board flow rationally from these findings. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 282).

Scope of review of decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment which denied variance would not permit court to grant variance sought; the proper disposition because of insufficient findings was remand. L. Salsbery v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A. 2d 894).

In reviewing order of Board of Zoning Adjustment denying college's application for amendment to its campus plan to allow college to offer short-term, continuing education type courses on a year-around basis on its campus located in residential zone, court must determine whether detailed findings of the Board were made upon each material contested issue of fact, whether those findings were supported by and in accordance with reliable, probative and substantial evidence in the whole of the administrative record and whether conclusions of the Board flowed rationally from those findings. Marjorie Webster Junior College, Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 309 A. 2d 314).

Review by Court of Appeals of decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment is limited to a determination of whether the decision reached follows as a matter of law from facts stated as its basis, and also whether facts so stated have any substantial support in the evidence; if Board's decision follows from its findings and those findings are supported by substantial evidence, Court of Appeals must affirm even though it might have reached another result. D. C. Stewart et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A. 2d 516).

Review by Zoning Commission

Statutory scheme for processing zoning exceptions was adhered to and petitioners who sought judicial review of Board of Zoning Adjustment action which granted a special exception were afforded a fair and impartial hearing which satisfied requirements of procedural due process where, inter alia, following indication by Board member who was also a member of Zoning Commission, that Commission would review denial of application, one Board member dissented and expressed apprehension that improper pressure had been brought to bear from "upstairs," Commission's order of remand disavowed any intention on Commission's part influence independent decision-making process of Board, and Board's final order was based upon criteria made applicable by zoning regulations. Sheridan-Kalorama Neighborhood Council et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A.2d 312).

Review of unfair hearing

Since two petitioners who sought judicial review of Board of Zoning Adjustment's action granting a special exception communicated to Zoning Commission their dissatisfaction with Board's action almost simultaneously with Commission's decision to review such action, petitioners are not in a position to claim prejudice as a result of fact that Commission assumed both the authority to review the matter, regardless of whether any party appealed, and the authority to remand. Sheridan-Kalorama Neighborhood Council et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A.2d 312).

Scope of review

On review of decision of Board of Zoning Adjustment, Court of Appeals could not consider new issues raised by petitioners concerning parking requirements with respect to operation of private high school but would look to the exclusive record or portions of it designated by parties. N. K. Dietrich et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 282).

Variance

"Variance" is an authorization to a property owner to depart from literal requirements of zoning regulations in utilization of his property in cases in which strict enforcement of the zoning regulations would cause undue hardship. C. Daniel et al. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A. 2d 773).

Neighborhood detriment, as such, is not a criterion under zoning statute authorizing variance where strict application of regulation would result in exceptional and undue hardship upon owner. L. Salsbery v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A.2d 894).

Where board of zoning adjustment ruled against petitioner on hardship claim on basis of which variance from C-1 nonconforming use to a C-2 use was sought, board should not have reached consideration of statutory proviso whether the intended use would have an adverse effect upon the character and development of the neighborhood and would substantially impair the purpose, intent or integrity of the zoning regulations and maps. Id.

Even though landowner seeking variance from zoning which allowed only detached single family houses with minimum lot dimensions of 50 feet in width and 5,000 total square feet wished to build single-family dwellings on land, where requested variance would allow construction of 27 row houses on lots of approximately 2,000 square feet and allow landowner to almost triple family density allowed under zoning and row houses would not be in character with other properties in zoned district, requested variance was not an area variance but a use-area variance; thus, landowner was properly required to prove undue hardship in order to be entitled to variance. W. W. Taylor v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 230).

Board of zoning adjustment does not have authority to grant a variance in order to assure landowner a profit. Id.

— Use

Applicant seeking use variance must show "exceptional and undue hardship", but where substandard lot is subject of application for area variance, proof of only "peculiar and exceptional difficulties" is involved. A. L. W., Inc. v. District of Columbia Board of Zoning Adjustment (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 428).

Landowner seeking area variance for substandard lot is required only to prove "peculiar and exceptional difficulties" even though he knew or should have known of area restrictions before he purchased property. Id.

On application for variance to convert seminary to nursing home, it would be proper for zoning board to require applicant to present evidence to show that his proposed use would not create traffic flow and parking problems inconsistent with R-1-B residential neighborhood, and board must give applicant sufficient notice of issues on which it seeks proof. *Clerics of Saint Viator, Inc. v. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abandoned vehicle

Where defendant removed automobiles, which either had valid license tags or were virtually undamaged and could not therefore have reasonably been regarded as abandoned, from parking lot under authorization by property managers, who did not have authority to contract with defendant for removal of such vehicles, defendant had no right to tow away such automobiles and thus was properly found guilty of taking property without right. *L. § 5-618. Condemnation procedure—Notice—Order—Remedial action by owner—Occupancy of condemned buildings.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutional rights

Demolition of property pursuant to an order of Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings following a determination that property should be condemned because of its insanitary condition was only incident to a legitimate exercise of governmental power and not a direct appropriation which would bring Fifth Amendment considerations into play. J. J. Urciolo et ano. v. W. E. Washington et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A. 2d 252).

Hearing

Record failed to establish truth of claim that owners of condemned premises were denied a fair hearing before Condemnation Review Board on motion to stay demolition of property. J. J. Urciolo et ano. v. W. E. Washington et al. (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A. 2d 252).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Damages

Invocation of replacement cost as measure of damage to owner of buildings demolished by District of Columbia without according owner the notice required by due process is not clearly erroneous. A. E. Miles v. District of Columbia et ano. (1975, 510 F.2d 188, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 235; aff'g 354 F. Supp. 577).

Hearing

Failure of board to provide property owner with a hearing in 1969 before ordering demolition of her property was a failure to grant a hearing at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner and board's order constituted a deprivation of owner's property and a denial of her right to repair in violation of due process even though board had granted owner a hearing six years prior to entry of 1969 order. A. E. Miles v. District of Columbia et ano. (1973, 354 F. Supp. 577; aff'd 510 F. 2d 188, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

Although local governments have an interest in the economic and expeditious resolution of questions involving disposition of insanitary buildings, nevertheless, where governmental action seriously injures an individual or compromises his property rights, and reasonableness of the action depends on fact-findings, due process requires no less than a timely hearing, weighing of evidence and at least a brief summary of the facts and rationale which sustain the final administrative decision. Id.

Due process

Where, since original service six years before order was entered for demolition of owner's buildings, owner expended a substantial sum of money to repair and improve the buildings, and condition of the buildings materially changed, due process required no less than registered or certified mail notice of board's subsequent decision to demolish, affording owner opportunity to register her objections. A. E. Miles v. District of Columbia et ano. (1973, 354 F. Supp. 577; aff'd 510 F. 2d 188, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 235).

§ 5-702. Definitions.

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

(a) The District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency is hereby established as an instrumentality of the District of Columbia government, and shall be composed of five members appointed by the Mayor of the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as the "Mayor"), with the advice and consent of the Council of the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as the "Council"). Any person appointed to fill a vacancy in the Agency shall be appointed to serve for the remainder of the term during which such vacancy arose. Any member who holds no other salaried public position shall receive compensation at the rate of $100 for each day such member is engaged in the actual performance of duties vested in the agency.

(b) The said District of Columbia Redevelopment Agency is hereby made a body corporate of perpetual duration, the powers of which shall be vested in and exercised by the board of directors thereof, consisting of the five members thereof appointed as above set forth, except that nothing in this section shall prohibit the District of Columbia government from dissolving the corporation, eliminating the board of directors, or taking such other action with respect to the powers and duties of such Agency, including those actions specified in subsection (c), as is deemed necessary and appropriate. It shall have the power to adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal which shall be judicially noticed; to make contracts; to sue and be sued, to complain and defend in its own name in any court of competent jurisdiction, State, Federal, or municipal; to make, deliver, and receive deeds, leases, and other instruments and to take title to real and other property in its own name; to adopt, prescribe, amend, repeal, and enforce by-laws, rules, and regulations for the exercise of its powers under sections 5-701 to 5-719 or governing the manner in which its business may be conducted and the powers granted to it by sections 5-701 to 5-719 may be exercised and enjoyed, including the selection of officers other than its chairman, together with provisions for such committees and the functions thereof as it may deem necessary for facilitation of its work; to protect and enforce any right conferred upon it by sections 5-701 to 5-719, or otherwise acquired, including any lease, sale, or other agreement made by or with it; and in general to exercise all the powers necessary or proper to the performance of its duties and functions under sections 5-701 to 5-719.

(c) The Council is authorized, by act, to adopt legislation—

(1) establishing, for the purpose of assuring uniform procedures relating to the disposition of complaints and other claims involving the Redevelopment Land Agency (or its successor) and other administrative units of the District of Columbia government, a factfinding board to receive, hear, and act on such complaints and claims arising out of or in connection with administrative and other actions of such Agency or units in carrying out their powers and functions;

(2) providing that all planning, designing, construction, and supervision of public facilities which are to be contributed to any redevelopment area as the local non-cash grant-in-aid to the project under title I of the Housing Act of 1949, shall, to the extent practicable, be carried out by an appropriate District of Columbia department or agency on the basis of a contractual or other arrangement with the Redevelopment Land Agency or its successor;

(3) providing that any occupied rental property owned by the Agency shall be maintained by such Agency (or its successor) in a safe and sanitary condition; or

(4) providing that the Mayor shall have authority to waive all or any part of any special assessments levied against abutting property owners for the cost of sewers, streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, utilities, and other supporting facilities or project improvements where the costs therefor to the District of Columbia can be applied as a non-cash local grant-in-aid, as defined by the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Status of Agency

For the purposes of the Uniform Relocation Assistance Act, the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency is a "state agency" rather than a "federal agency." D. Jones et al. v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency et al. (1974, 499 F. 2d 502, 163 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Fact that Redevelopment Land Agency was a "state agency" rather than a "federal agency" for the purposes of the Uniform Relocation Assistance Act did not preclude federal court from granting preliminary relief against the land agency with respect to the displacement of any resident of an area undergoing redevelopment. Id.

Housing Code

Where District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency maintained properties acquired by it as residences only temporarily until relocation housing for residents becomes available and redevelopment or rehabilitation could be undertaken, the District of Columbia Housing Code was not directly applicable to the agency's temporary residential properties. *D. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

District court did not abuse its discretion by its determination that requiring the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency and the National Capital Planning Commission to repeat the complex neighborhood development program approval process in a manner that comported fully with the National Environmental Protection Agency Act would not better serve Environmental Protection Acts purposes than the remedial actions taken by the agencies. D. Jones et al. v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency et al. (1974, 499 F. 2d 502, 163 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Environmental impact

As part of the approval process for neighborhood development program for the District of Columbia, the National Environmental Protection Act requires that the National Capital Planning Commission prepare a draft environmental impact statement concerning each action year program for submission to city council and to Department of Housing and Urban Development, that the Redevelopment Land Agency prepare a draft impact statement for submission to the Planning Commission and that the Department of Housing and Urban Development prepare and issue final environmental impact statement. D. Jones et al. v. District of Columbia

Redevelopment Land Agency et al. (1974, 499 F. 2d 502, 163 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Injunctions

The Court of Appeals would not disturb the order the district court which denied and dissolved preliminary injunctions with respect to urban renewal plan in the District of Columbia except for abuse of discretion or clear error and would not consider the merits of the case further than necessary to determine whether that discretion had been abused. D. Jones et al. v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency et al. (1974, 499 F. 2d 502, 163 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

The imminence of physical steps to carry out action year program for neighborhood development program was not indispensable condition to preliminary injunction to require District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency to prepare an environmental impact statement for submission to the National Capital Planning Commission or for that agency to prepare a draft impact statement for submission to Department of Housing and Urban Development. Id.

Before issuing order staying for 60 days order preliminary enjoining any action pursuant to certain action year programs for neighborhood development programs pending filing of environmental impact statement, it was necessary that the district court engage in particularized analysis so as to stay the injunction only as to those elements of the project delay of which would demonstrably result in injustice or substantial public harm. Id.

REFERENCES IN TEXT

The "civil-service laws", referred to in this section, are set forth in title 5, U.S.C. See, particularly, § 3301 et seq. of that title.

CODIFICATION

In subsec. (b), the exception from "the Classification Act of 1923, as amended" has been omitted as obsolete. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 972, 973) repealed the 1923 Act and all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. While § 1106(a) of the 1949 Act provided that references in other laws to the 1923 Act should be held and considered to mean the 1949 Act, it did not have the effect of continuing the exception contained in this section because of § 1106(b) that provided that the application of the 1949 Act to any position, officer, or employee shall not be affected by § 1106(a). The Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by Act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632 (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law). Section 5102 of title 5, U.S.C., now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act.

In subsec. (c), the reference to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949" and "the Classification Act of 1949, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENTS

1949—Subsection (c), Act Oct. 28, 1949, § 1106(a), which was a part of the Classification Act of 1949, and which has since been repealed, substituted "Classification Act of 1949" for "Classification Act of 1923". See codification note above.

1946—Subsection (a), Act Aug. 2, 1946, § 9(b), repealed provisions which read: "to procure services or make any purchase without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, provided the aggregate amount involved is not more than $100".

TRANSFER OF PERSONNEL TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Section 201(f) of Act Dec. 24, 1973, Pub. L. 93-198, title II, 87 Stat. 779, provided: "For the purposes of subsection 713(d) [set out as a note under § 1-131], employees in the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency shall be deemed to be transferred to the District of Columbia as of the effective date of this title [July 1, 1974] without a break in service."

§ 5-716. Acquisition under District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

From and after the termination of the period of one year, beginning August 2, 1946, all authority granted by sections 5-103 to 5-116, to acquire, by purchase, condemnation, or gift, lands, buildings and structures, or any interest therein, is hereby transferred to and vested in the Agency created by sections 5-701 to 5-719. During said one-year period said authority may be exercised by the National Capital Housing Authority only for projects that shall have been approved by the Planning Commission and the District Mayor: Provided, however, That failure of the Planning Commission, or the District Mayor to approve or disapprove in writing within sixty days after the submission by the National Capital Housing Authority shall be equivalent to a formal approval. Nothing contained in sections 5-103 to 5-116 or in sections 5-701 to 5-719 shall be interpreted as precluding the inclusion at any time of any alley or inhabited alley or alley dwelling or dwelling or square containing an inhabited alley in a project area to be planned, acquired, and disposed of under the provisions of sections 5-701 to 5-719. Any real property acquired by the Agency under the authority of sections 5-103 to 5-116 may be transferred or may be sold or leased by the Agency as provided in sections 5-701 to 5-719 for real property acquired for a project area redevelopment. The National Capital Housing Authority is hereby declared to be a redevelopment company and is hereby granted the power to purchase or lease redevelopment areas or parts thereof from the Agency in accordance with the provisions of sections 5-701 to 5-719. The National Capital Housing Authority shall keep regular books of account in accordance with standard auditing practices, covering all properties operated by it, showing detailed construction costs, management costs, repairs, maintenance, other operating costs, rents, subsidies, grants, allowances and exemptions; such books shall be subject to audit by the General Accounting Office; and the annual report of the National Capital Housing Authority shall include a summary of all transactions covered by such books and shall be made available to the public upon request. The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

§ 5-911. Termination and waiver of regime.

(a) All the co-owners or the sole owner of a project constituted into a horizontal property regime may terminate and waive this regime and regroup or merge the individual and several condominium units with the principal property; such termination and waiver shall be by certification to such effect upon the plat of condominium subdivision establishing the particular horizontal property regime under the hands and seals of the said sole owner or co-owners, in the presence of two credible witnesses, upon the same plat or upon a paper or parchment attached thereto: Provided, That the said individual condominium units are unencumbered, or if encumbered, that the creditors in whose behalf the encumbrances are recorded agree to accept as security the undivided interest in the property of the debtor co-owner and said creditors or trustees under duly recorded deeds of trust, shall signify their assent to such termination and waiver upon the aforesaid plat, paper, or parchment: Provided further, That should the buildings or other improvements in a condominium project be more than two-thirds destroyed by fire or other disaster, the co-owners of three-fourths of the condominium project may waive and terminate the horizontal property regime and may certify to such termination and waiver: Provided further, That if within ninety days of the date of such damage or destruction:

Said petition may be served on the person designated in the bylaws in conformity with section 5-914(a) (7). The court may thereupon lay a rule upon the council of co-owners, unless they shall voluntarily appear and admit the allegations of the petition, to show cause, under oath, on or before the tenth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after service of such rule, why the prayers of said petition should not be granted. If no cause be shown against the prayer of the petition by the council of co-owners, or by any one of the co-owners, the court may determine in a summary way whether the facts warrant termination and thereupon the court may decree the particular horizontal property regime terminated.

In the event of such partition suit the net proceeds shall be divided among all the unit owners, in proportion to their respective undivided ownership of the common elements, after first paying off, out of the respective shares of the unit owners, all liens on the unit of each unit owner. 5-1003. Community development program activities.

5-1004. Implementation of community development programs—Financial assistance—Authority of Mayor—Delegation of authority—Rules and regulations.

5-1006. Rehabilitation of private property—Loans and grants—Insurance—Determination of public use.

5-1007. Construction—severability.

§ 5-1001. Findings and purpose.

(a) The Council finds and declares that the District of Columbia faces critical social, economic, and environmental problems arising in significant measures from:

(1) the concentration of poverty in areas of the city;

(2) overcrowding and deterioration of housing, exacerbated by inadequate construction of new units for the growing number of households, and inadequate resources to provide for the rehabilitation of existing units for use by residents of the affected areas;

(3) inadequate and inappropriate public and private investment and reinvestment in housing and other physical facilities, and related public and social services, resulting in the growth and persistence of urban slums and blight and the marked deterioration of the quality of the urban environment; and

(4) lack of essential commercial facilities and services in many of the city's communities; and

(5) need to improve the overall quality of the urban environment for the people of the District of Columbia.

(b) The Council further finds and declares that the future welfare of the District of Columbia and the well-being of its citizens depend on the establishment and maintenance of the District of Columbia as a viable physical, social, economic, and political community, and require for the benefit of the communities being directly affected:

(1) systematic and sustained action to eliminate blight, to conserve and renew aging urban neighborhoods, to improve the living environment of low and moderate income families, and to develop new residential and economic activity centers throughout the District;

(2) substantial expansion of and greater continuity in the scope and level of Federal and local financial assistance together with increased private investment in support of community development activities; and

(3) continuing effort at all levels of government to develop programs to meet identified needs and to improve the functioning and¹ departments and agencies responsible for planning, implementing, and evaluating community development efforts.

(c) The primary objective of this chapter is the maintenance and development of the District of Columbia as a viable urban community, by providing decent housing, a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities, principally for persons of low and moderate income. Consistent with this primary objective the chapter provides for the support of community development activities which are directed toward the following specific objectives:

(1) the elimination of slums and blight and the prevention of blighting influences and the deterioration of property and neighborhood and community facilities of importance to the welfare of the community;

(2) the elimination of conditions which are detrimental to health, safety, and public welfare and the establishment of programs to protect and improve the quality of the urban environment;

(3) the conservation and expansion of the District's housing stock in order to provide a suitable living environment for all persons, principally those of low and moderate income;

(4) the expansion and improvement of the quantity and quality of community services, particularly for persons of low and moderate income, which are essential for sound community development and for the development of a viable urban community;

(5) a more rational utilization of land and the better arrangement of residential, commercial, industrial, recreational, and other needed activity centers;

(6) the reduction of the isolation of income groups within the community and the promotion of an increase in the diversity and vitality of neighborhoods through the expansion of housing opportunities for persons of low and moderate income, particularly those with large families;

(7) the restoration and preservation of properties of special value for historic, architectural, or esthetic reasons;

(8) the establishment of data-gathering, planning, policy, and program development which will insure effective monitoring of and programming responsive to the changing numbers, characteristics, and needs of the people of the District of Columbia; and

(9) the continuation of development activities in those areas previously covered by urban renewal or neighborhood development plans until completed.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Discrimination in services provided

In claim that District of Columbia had discriminated in provision of municipal services, evidence failed to show a significant difference in level of refuse collection services accorded to various areas of city. M. Burner et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1975, 399 F. Supp. 44).

Solid waste disposal

As the business of disposing of solid waste is not a business or calling otherwise listed in licensing statutes, the District of Columbia may fix a license fee for the disposal of such wastes in such amount as will be commensurate with the cost to the District of regulating the disposal of such wastes, but any fee would be illegal to the extent that the revenue therefrom exceeded applicable costs. Metropolitan D.C. Refuse Haulers Association et al. v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et al. (1973, 479 F. 2d 1191, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 208; aff'g 360 F. Supp. 281).

Where licenses issued for collection and transportation of solid wastes in or through the District of Columbia did not cover disposal of solid wastes in the District, separate disposal fee of $5 per ton was a "license fee" authorized by statute, to the extent that the revenue therefrom was commensurate with the costs of supervision and regulation. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Injunctions

In action to prevent completion of two buildings at a waterfront area of District of Columbia, evidence failed to establish that defendant corporations were in violation of an emission standard or limitation as defined by Clean Air Act, that buildings were in violation of District's regulations applicable to "statutory sources" of pollutants or that defendants' developments would cause national ambient air quality standards to be exceeded in 1977. Citizens Association of Georgetown et al. v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner etc., et al. (1974, 383 F. Supp. 136).

In absence of a threat of immediate injury from construction of buildings in Georgetown waterfront area of Washington, D.C., in view of unlikelihood that the developments would violate national air quality standards, and in light of intervening determination by Environmental Protection Agency that preconstruction review procedures relevant to the facilities would not be applied retroactively to dates when construction commenced, preliminary injunction would not be issued against construction of the projects. Citizens Association of Georgetown et al. v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner etc., et al. (1974, 370 F.Supp. 1101).

Review

Controversy over refusal of mayor-commissioner and his designated agents to grant petitioners' request to take immediate steps to correct by appropriate action an alleged air pollution emergency in District of Columbia was not a "contested case" within purview of the D.C. Administrative Procedure Act granting limited judicial review to District of Columbia Court of Appeals in respect to orders or decisions of a District of Columbia agency made "after a hearing before the Commissioner or the Council or before an agency" in a "contested case." Environmental Defense Fund, Inc., et al. v. Mayor-Commissioner of the District of Columbia et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 515).

Chapter 4.—CLOSING STREETS, ALLEYS, OR HIGHWAYS

§ 7-401. Street Readjustment—Closing of unnecessary public ways authorized—Disposition of property—Reference to Planning Commission.

The Council of the District of Columbia is authorized to close any street, road, highway, or alley, or any part of any street, road, highway, or alley, in the District of Columbia when, in the judgment of said Council, such street, road, highway, or alley, or such part of a street, road, highway, or alley, has been rendered useless or unnecessary, the title to the land embraced within the public space so closed to revert to the owners of the abutting property subject to such compensation therefor in money, land, or structures as the Council of the District of Columbia, in its judgment, may find just and equitable, in view of all the circumstances of the case affecting near-by property of abutters and/or non-abutters: Provided, That if the title to such land be in the United States the property shall not revert to the owners of the abutting property but may be disposed of by the Mayor of the District of Columbia to the best advantage of the locality and the properties therein and thereby affected, which properties thenceforth shall become assessable on the books of the tax assessor of the District of Columbia in all respects as other private property in the District; or also said property be sold as provided in section 7-302 of this title, unless the use of such land is requested by some other department, bureau, or commission of the government of the United States for purposes not otherwise inconsistent with the proper development of the District of Columbia: Provided further, That the said closing by said Council is made expedient or advisable by reason of change in the highway plan or by reason of provision for access or better access to the abutting or nearby property and the convenience of the public by other street, road, highway, or alley facilities, or by reason of the acquisition by the District of Columbia or by the United States of America for school, park, playground, or other public purposes, of all the property abutting on the street, road, highway, or alley, or part of a street, road, highway, or alley, proposed to be closed or for other public reasons: And provided further, That the proposed closing of any street, road, highway, or alley, or any parts thereof as provided for in this chapter shall be referred to the National Capital Planning Commission for its recommendation. CODIFICATION

Section is set out in this supplement to correct an editorial error in the main edition.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Administrative procedure

Decision of District of Columbia Council, pursuant to the Street Readjustment Act, to close portion of street and, once closed, to authorize the surveyor to convey title to the abutting landowners for development purposes did not constitute a "contested case" within meaning of the Administrative Procedure Act; in determining whether it should close the street the Council was exercising legislative discretion based on primarily legislative facts; also, Council's decision regarding compensation, though primarily adjudicatory, did not fall within the "contested case" definition since it was subject to trial de novo in Superior Court. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 310).

Construction

The options afforded the District of Columbia by this section in dealing with United States property are not mutually exclusive. O. T. Carr, Jr., et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (1974, 371 F. Supp. 293; aff'd and rem'd for modification 521 F. 2d 325, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 224).

The authority of the District of Columbia to sell closed United States alley land does not apply only when the city council is unable to dispose of the alley space in a manner which is advantageous to the locality in surrounding property affected. Id.

Discretion

Decision whether an alley is to be closed is a matter of discretion exercised by the District of Columbia Council. Metropolitan Washington Coalition for Clean Air v. Department of Economic Development et al. (1973, 373 F. Supp. 1096).

Disposition of proceeds

Any money received by the District of Columbia for the sale of closed alley space owned by the United States must be deposited by the District in the United States Treasury for the benefit of the overall United States revenues, not District of Columbia accounts or revenues. O. T. Carr, Jr., et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (1974, 371 F. Supp. 293; aff'd and rem'd for modification 521 F. 2d 325, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 224).

Environmental impact

Recommendation to close part of public alley made by planning commission to District of Columbia city council which had the authority to close alley constituted local action, not "federal action," within meaning of National Environmental Policy Act requiring filing of an environmental impact statement in every federal action significantly affecting quality of human environment; thus, recommendation did not have to be accompanied by environmental impact statement. Metropolitan Washington Coalition for Clean Air v. Department of Economic Development et al. (1973, 373 F. Supp. 1096).

Joinder

Where declaratory judgment action concerning whether the District of Columbia might charge abutting landowners a price based on market value for the original United States alley space closed by the District involved amounts in excess of $50,000, the United States could not be joined as a party even though the money received by the District must be deposited into the United States Treasury. O. T. Carr, Jr., et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (1974, 371 F. Supp. 293; aff'd and rem'd for modification 521 F. 2d 325, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 224).

Judicial review

Decision of District of Columbia Council to close a street is not unreviewable; an action seeking equitable relief may be brought in the Superior Court. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 310).

Parties

Where sole issue in declaratory judgment action was whether the District of Columbia had authority to charge owners fair market value for alley space closed pursuant to The Street Readjustment Act of District of Columbia, Congress had delegated to the District complete authority to close United States alleys, a judgment rendered in the United States' absence would be entirely adequate and would not prejudice United States' interests and, because the funds at stake had been placed in escrow account in a bank, the judgment would run neither against nor be satisfied from United States' funds, the United States was not "indispensable party" within meaning of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure. O. T. Carr, Jr., et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (1974, 371 F. Supp. 293; aff'd and rem'd for modification 521 F. 2d 325, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 224).

Payment of compensation

The District of Columbia may not charge abutting property owners the fair market value of the public space owned by the District of Columbia which reverts to the owners when an alley is closed, unless an objection to the closing is made. O. T. Carr, Jr., et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (1974, 371 F. Supp. 293; aff'd and rem'd for modification 521 F. 2d 325, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 224).

When closing original United States property under the complete authority to close United States alleys delegated by Congress, the District of Columbia city council may, for the account of the United States, charge abutting property owners fair market value of the space closed. Id.

Fact that advantages accrued to the District of Columbia by the closing of an original United States alley did not preclude the District from adding conditions for the benefit and protection of the United States. Id.

The right of the District of Columbia city council to charge for United States property does not apply only when the District of Columbia closes a United States alley on its own initiative. Id.

Although District of Columbia Council referred only to Code provision which authorized acceptance of dedication of an alley in connection with the closing of an existing alley but which did not mention payment of money in its resolution closing an "original" alley owned by the United States, Council also proceeded under other applicable provisions of the Code and, under those other provisions, was authorized to collect money for the closing on behalf of the United States. Calvin-Humphrey Corporation v. United States (1973, 480 F. 2d 1323, 202 Ct. Cl. 519).

Decision that government of District of Columbia is not entitled to collect money from abutting property owners for the closing of an alley is confined strictly to alleys dedicated by developers and does not apply to an "original" alley, the title to which is in the United States. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONSAdministrative procedure

Decision of District of Columbia Council, pursuant to the Street Readjustment Act, to close portion of street

and, once closed, to authorize the surveyor to convey title to the abutting landowners for development purposes did not constitute a "contested case" within meaning of the Administrative Procedure Act; in determining whether it should close the street the Council was exercising legislative discretion based on primarily legislative facts; also, Council's decision regarding compensation, though primarily adjudicatory, did not fall within the "contested case" definition since it was subject to trial de novo in Superior Court. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 310).

Interested party

Plaintiffs who contested closing of part of public alley but who were members of general public and not owners of property abutting alley were not "parties interested" within meaning of statutes providing that an order closing an alley becomes effective immediately if no written objection is made by any party interested within 30 days after service of order and requiring institution of an in rem proceeding for closing of an alley when an objection is filed by parties interested; thus, plaintiffs' filing of a formal written objection to alley closing did not require institution of in rem proceeding. Metropolitan Washington Coalition for Clean Air v. Department of Economic Development et al. (1973, 373 F. Supp. 1096).

Judicial review

Decision of District of Columbia Council to close a street is not unreviewable; an action seeking equitable relief may be brought in the Superior Court. Chevy Chase Citizens Association et al. v. District of Columbia Council (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 310).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Sidewalk—Construction

In claim that District of Columbia had discriminated in provision of municipal services, evidence established that discrimination in construction of sidewalks in the District of Columbia, if any had existed, no longer existed and that purported effects of past discrimination were being rectified by a major commitment of resources. M. Burner et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1975, 399 F. Supp. 44).

— Repairs

Municipality was under a duty to exercise reasonable care in maintaining its sidewalk, but that duty became secondary to the duty of the abutting landowner where the landowner was making a special use of the sidewalk for a driveway entrance to his gasoline station. District of Columbia v. Texaco, Inc., et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 690).

There is a "special use" of a sidewalk by an abutter, such that the abutter is liable for injuries resulting from unsafe or dangerous conditions created by the use, where the abutter uses the sidewalk as a driveway entrance to his gasoline station and, as a result, causes an unsafe or dangerous conditions. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutional rights

Where police roped off area for group to assemble while their petition was presented to Senate, and group was not arrested immediately upon blocking of corridor but only after chief of capitol police had again requested that they move to area cordoned off for them, their First Amendment rights were not unduly burdened, and application of statute making it unlawful to wilfully and knowingly obstruct or impede passage through or within any capitol building was not violative of their rights under such amendment, A. J. Arshack v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 321 A.2d 845).

Construction

Such statutes as federal statute making it unlawful for any person or group of persons wilfully and knowingly to obstruct or impede passage through or within any capitol building may be applied to symbolic conduct, i.e., conduct which, if done at another place, might fall within First Amendment protection. A. J. Arshack v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 321 A.2d 845).

Instructions

In prosecution under statute making it unlawful for any person or group of persons wilfully and knowingly to obstruct or impede passage through or within any capitol building, court did not err in refusing to give requested instruction, essence of which was jury nullification and would have made jurors judges of the law as well as facts. A. J. Arshack v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 321 A.2d 845).

Court did not err in refusing requested instruction which would require specific intent to cause obstruction or impediment, where court instead gave instruction defining terms “wilful” and “knowingly” and where, under evidence, defendants had been amply warned that they were not to impede passage in corridor and that they were in violation of the law when they sat and lay down and would be arrested if they did not move into area cordoned off for their use. Id.

Court properly refused instruction which, in effect, would have excused defendants on ground that they had acted in accordance with dictates of their conscience and if their actions were reasonably believed to be justified by obligations imposed by international law. Id.

Purpose

Purpose of federal statute making it unlawful for any person or group of persons wilfully and knowingly to obstruct or impede passage through or within any capitol building is to permit Congress to carry out People's business unhindered by serious disruption. A. J. Arshack v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 321 A.2d 845).

CODIFICATION

The exception from "the Classification Act of 1923, as amended" has been omitted as obsolete. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 972, 973) repealed the 1923 Act and all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. While § 1106(a) of the 1949 Act provided that references in other laws to the 1923 Act should be held and considered to mean the 1949 Act, it did not have the effect of continuing the exception contained in this section because of § 1106(b) that provided that the application of the 1949 Act to any position, officer, or employee shall not be affected by § 1106(a). The Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by Act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632 (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law). Section 5102 of title 5, U.S.C., now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Congress did not violate article of Constitution pertaining to the judicial power of the United States by vesting jurisdiction over local felonies in the District of Columbia Superior Court, R. F. Palmore v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 573; aff'd 93 S. Ct. 1670, 411 U.S. 389).

Under its constitutional power to legislate for the District of Columbia, Congress may provide for trying local criminal cases before judges who, in accordance with District of Columbia Code, are not accorded life tenure and protection against reduction in salary. Id.

§ 11-102. Status of District of Columbia Court of Appeals

NOTES TO DECISIONS

D.C. Court of Appeals decisions

Policy underlying District of Columbia Court Reorganization Act of 1970 requires greatest deference to decisions of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. M.A.S., Inc. v. Van Curler Broadcasting Corp. et al. (1973, 357 F. Supp. 686).

A federal district court sitting as a local court in the District of Columbia should defer to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals' interpretation of local statutes, at least where federal statutory or constitutional issues are not involved. Id.

United States District Court for District of Columbia would not follow decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals where, in view of factors not considered in opinion of District of Columbia Court of Appeals, it appeared that the District of Columbia Court of Appeals itself would not follow that decision. Id.

U.S. Court of Appeals decisions

Opinion which interpreted D.C. Minimum Wage Act and which was published by United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia after effective date of Judicial Reorganization Act and at time when District of Columbia Court of Appeals had final authority to interpret a District of Columbia enactment did not constitute controlling precedent for the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, even though leave to appeal in the case had been granted prior to effective date of the Judicial Reorganization Act. District of Columbia et al. v. Schwerman Trucking Company (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 818).

District of Columbia Court of Appeals is generally not bound by decisions of the United States Court of Appeals for the circuit rendered subsequent to the District of Columbia Court Reorganization Act of 1970; however, deference will be had to federal decision constituting a reasonable interpretation of federal legislation of nationwide applicability, such as the Federal Youth Corrections Act. C. D. Small v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 641).

Decision of United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit subsequent to 1971 court reorganization was not binding on District of Columbia Court of Appeals, even where constitutional issue was presented; however, previously decided decisions of former court continued to be binding on latter. United States v. K. C. Simmons (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A. 2d 728).

Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit would not defer to decisions of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals upholding criminal statute, where Court of Appeals for District of Columbia Circuit had jurisdiction to resolve appeals involving statute on their merits, position of the lower court on the constitutional question was clear, two appellants had been convicted under the statute and a third faced trial under it, and Court of Appeals of District of Columbia Circuit had previously made known its view that the constitutional claim had merit. J. Holly v. United States (1972, 464 F. 2d 796, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 287).

Law established by United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia, when it was functioning as highest court for District of Columbia, in comparable state status, is controlling and conflicting decision by United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia, coming after 1970 Reorganization Act establishing the District of Columbia Court of Appeals as the highest District of Columbia court, is not controlling. A. L. Luck v. Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company (1972, 352 F. Supp. 331).

Decision of United States Court of Appeals with respect to statute pertaining to notice of a claim against District of Columbia, constituted law of the case since it had jurisdiction to review decision of District of Columbia Court of Appeals when decision of District of Columbia Court of Appeals was rendered and when petition for allowance of appeal was filed, but where decision was rendered after effective date of statute providing that decisions of District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not longer be subject to review by United States Court of Appeals, decision would constitute no binding precedent on future cases in District of Columbia Court of Appeals. District of Columbia v. R. Smith (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 787).

Local law

Following adoption of District of Columbia Court Reform and Criminal Procedure Act of 1970, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is no longer the final expositor of the local law of the District. United States v. B. L. Peterson (1973, 483 F. 2d 1222, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 219; cert. denied 94 S.Ct. 367, 414 U.S. 1007).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Maryland court decisions

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is not bound to follow decisions of courts of Maryland, particularly if they were handed down subsequent to the organization of the District of Columbia. L. Blair v. The Prudential Insurance Co. of America (1972, 472 F. 2d 1356, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 281).

Status of decisions

Law established by United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia, when it was functioning as highest court for District of Columbia, in comparable state status, is controlling and conflicting decision by United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia, coming after 1970 Reorganization Act establishing the District of Columbia Court of Appeals as the highest District of Columbia court, is not controlling. A. L. Luck v. Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company (1972, 352 F. Supp. 331).

Chapter 5.—UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

SUBCHAPTER I.—JURISDICTION

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Amount in controversy

In action in United States District Court for District of Columbia as superior local court, where one plaintiff's claim was in excess of $10,000 jurisdictional minimum, requirements of court's local jurisdiction were satisfied even if claim of other plaintiff, which arose out of same operative facts, was well below court's jurisdictional minimum. J. Honey et al. v. George Hyman Construction Co. et al. (1974, 63 F.R.D. 443).

Insurer which claimed as subrogee and insured which claimed loss uncompensated by insurance possessed single title or right in which they had common and undivided interest, and claims could be aggregated to determine amount in controversy. Id.

Even in absence of federal question, allegation by arrestees of $50,000 in controversy would have given District of Columbia federal courts "local" equity jurisdiction of arrestees' action against District of Columbia official for injunctive relief with respect to prosecution of charges, bond collateral forfeitures and expungement of arrest records. N. Sullivan et al. v. C. F. Murphy, Corporation Counsel, et al. (1973, 478 F. 2d 938, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 28; cert. denied 94 S.Ct. 162, 414 U.S. 880).

Counterclaims

Counterclaim of defendant, in civil action for review of adjudication of priority of invention in interference proceeding, asserting that plaintiffs misappropriated certain inventions of defendant and asking court to impress a trust in favor of defendant and appoint receiver pendente lite was within the subject matter jurisdiction of court since it fell within the general jurisdiction of the district court in its capacity as a local court for the District of Columbia. Montecatini Edison, S.P.A. v. K. Ziegler et ano. (1973, 486 F. 2d 1279, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 19).

Ejectment proceedings

Under District of Columbia ejectment statute (§ 45-910) as amended by 1970 Court Reform Act, District Court does not have original jurisdiction over ejectment proceedings brought by the United States; intent of Court Reform Act was to vest exclusive jurisdiction of all ejectment proceedings in Superior Court, even those brought by the United States. H. and J. Herian et al. v. United States (1973, 363 F. Supp. 287).

Federal jurisdiction

Where actions against District of Columbia police officers and chief of police for redress of deprivation of constitutional rights arose directly under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments and were within the "federal question" jurisdiction of the United States District Court, the court also had pendent jurisdiction over common-law claims stated against the District of Columbia defendants. W. H. Apton et al. v. J. V. Wilson (Chief of Police) et al. (1974, 506 F. 2d 83, 165 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Where arrestees' claim of violation of federal constitutional rights by arrest procedures utilized during civil disorders were neither insubstantial nor frivolous and more than ten thousand dollars was in controversy, there was federal jurisdiction to decide the claim. N. Sullivan et al. v. C. F. Murphy, Corporation Counsel, et al. (1973, 478 F.2d 938, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 28; cert. denied 94 S.Ct. 162, 414 U.S. 880).

The federal courts have jurisdiction to entertain actions to enforce federal constitutional rights and fact that such actions are also maintainable in state courts, or in the local courts of the District of Columbia, does not foreclose access to the federal courts, or require prior exhaustion of such state or local remedies. Id.

Arrestees were entitled to maintain in federal court their action against District of Columbia officials to set aside forfeiture of bail collateral security where there was serious doubt of the availability of relief in the District of Columbia courts and there was assertion that, because of misinformation circulated to the arrestees at the time they posted bond, large numbers of them were frustrated in their efforts to secure procedural due process with respect to the forfeitures of collateral. Id.

Where large numbers of persons were arrested during May, 1971, civil disorders, many of arrests were made without probable cause, arrestees were not given judicial hearing on probable cause, and possibility existed that many of the persons who obtained their release by posting bond were misled by erroneous information as to nature and consequences of posting bail and circumstances under which the bond could be recovered, federal court had jurisdiction to invalidate the forfeitures of the bonds. Id.

Jurisdiction under prior law

Where proceeding by person previously committed to mental hospital is part of two commitment proceedings begun in District Court sometime previously, Court has jurisdiction over later petition to have commitments declared illegal and vacated despite fact that District of Columbia Court Reorganization Act of 1970 vested exclusive jurisdiction over mental health matters in Superior Court. In the Matter of R. A. Brown (1975, 68 F.R.D. 172).

Pendent jurisdiction

Where federal claims are disposed of on a motion for summary judgment, comity and justice require that the district court decline to exercise pendent jurisdiction and dismiss any local law claims. M. A. Marshall v. District of Columbia et al. (1975, 392 F. Supp. 1012).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Equitable actions

District Court for District of Columbia had jurisdiction to entertain federal prisoners' complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief in the nature of mandamus with respect to federal prisoners' rights to due process in denials of applications for parole since such court has general equity jurisdiction, and venue where either party is resident or found within the District of Columbia which permits actions for declaratory judgment as well as injunction to be maintained against those whose office in the federal government establishes their official residence in the District. W. R. Childs, Jr., et al. v. United States Board of Parole (1974, 511 F. 2d 1270, 167 U.S. App. D.C. 268).

Where goal of plaintiff's suit for relief from action of District of Columbia police in enforcing vagrancy laws was equitable and of a type which could not be granted by Court of General Sessions which possessed exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions in which the claimed value did not exceed $10,000, Court of General Sessions lacked authority to entertain suit and United States District Court for the District of Columbia had jurisdiction. M. J. Gomez v. J. V. Wilson, Chief of Police, et al. (1973, 477 F. 2d 411, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 243; remanding 323 F. Supp. 87).

Found Within the District

Under statute relating to the local jurisdiction of the United States District for the District of Columbia as including civil actions between parties where either or both are residents or found within the District, plaintiff by having brought suit under statute to review adjudication of priority of invention and interference proceeding was "found" within the District. Montecatini Edison, S.P.A. v. K. Ziegler et ano. (1973, 486 F. 2d 1279, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 19).

One invoking the jurisdiction of the United States Court for the District of Columbia against an adversary cannot expect at the same time to be shielded from the claims of his opponents, and hence one commencing and prosecuting civil action in the district court is found within the District for purposes of any counterclaim by adversary whether or not it involves the same subject matter as the main claim. Id.

Jurisdiction—Withholding of

District Court for the District of Columbia was not required, under doctrine of Younger v. Harris, to abstain from exercising its jurisdiction over class action brought by persons arrested for local criminal offenses for injunctive and declaratory relief to enjoin police officials from transmitting arrest records to Federal Bureau of Investigation and to request return of those records already transmitted. J. E. Utz et al. v. M. Cullinane (1975, 520 F. 2d 467, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

Residents

Record in action for individual and class relief with respect to actions of District of Columbia police in enforcing vagrancy laws amply showed the required residency of plaintiff within the District so that federal district court had jurisdiction under statute giving district court original jurisdiction of civil action between parties who are residents of District. M. J. Gomez v. J. V. Wilson, Chief of Police, et al. (1973, 477 F. 2d 411, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 243; remanding 323 F. Supp. 87).

§ 11-502. Criminal jurisdiction

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Construction

District of Columbia Court Reform Act's requirement that evidence of certain types of prior crimes be admitted for impeachment purposes applies to trials of Code offenses conducted in United States district court during transition period established by Code. United States v. R. E. Yates (1975, 524 F.2d 1282, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Dismissal of Federal offense

Where federal and local offenses have been properly joined in one indictment and jeopardy has attached, the district court may proceed to a determination of the local offenses regardless of any intervening disposition of the federal counts. United States v. R. Shepard (1975, 515 F.2d 1324, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 353).

Federal jurisdiction

Armed kidnapping charges brought against prisoner in District of Columbia jail as result of riot and attempted escape were properly tried by federal court in the District of Columbia, as were charges of conspiracy and attempted escape from federal custody arising out of the same incident, so that § 22-3202 providing minimum sentence for certain second offenders was properly applied. United States v. J. Bridgeman (1975, 523 F.2d 1099, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 150; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 1743, 1744, — U.S. —).

Joinder

In absence of specific federal statute superseding prosecution in District of Columbia on local offenses, defendant whose acts constitute violations of both federal and District of Columbia law can properly be subject of single trial in federal district court under joint indictment; only constraint on such prosecution is that where federal and local offenses are identical or where one would be lesser included offense of other, defendant may ultimately be sentenced under only one statutory scheme. United States v. G. E. Jones (1975, 527 F.2d 817, —U.S. App. D.C.—).

Defendants were not deprived of due process or equal protection of law when they were subjected, in single proceeding in federal district court, to simultaneous prosecution for possession of heroin with intent to distribute in violation of Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 and for simple possession of heroin in violation of § 33-402. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Jurisdiction—Withholding of

District Court for the District of Columbia was not required, under doctrine of Younger v. Harris, to abstain from exercising its jurisdiction over class action brought by persons arrested for local criminal offenses for injunctive and declaratory relief to enjoin police officials from transmitting arrest records to Federal Bureau of Investigation and to request return of those records already transmitted. J. E. Utz et al. v. M. Cullinane (1975, 520 F.2d 467, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

§ 11-503. Removal of cases from the Superior Court of the District of Columbia

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

In view of express terms of 1970 Court Reform Act, District of Columbia ejectment statute (§ 45-910) as amended by 1970 Court Reform Act was not "Act of Congress" within statute (28 U.S.C. 1345, 1363) giving original jurisdiction in district court of suits brought by the United States except as otherwise provided by Act of Congress. H. and J. Herian et al. v. United States (1973, 363 F. Supp. 287).

Ejectment proceedings

Under District of Columbia ejectment statute (§ 45-910) as amended by 1970 Court Reform Act, District Court does not have original jurisdiction over ejectment proceedings brought by the United States; intent of Court Reform Act was to vest exclusive jurisdiction of all ejectment proceedings in Superior Court, even those brought by the United States. H. and J. Herian et al. v. United States (1973, 363 F. Supp. 287).

Any claims which defendants sought to make concerning federal housing policy could be raised in District of Columbia Superior Court as defenses to ejectment proceeding brought by United States. Id.

Rights of defendant

Defendants in District of Columbia have right to removal concomitant with defendants sued in state courts.

District of Columbia v. Ranger Construction Company et ano. (1974, 394 F.Supp. 801).

SUBCHAPTER II.—JURISDICTION

§ 11-721. Orders and judgments of the Superior Court

CROSS REFERENCE

District Charter provisions relating to jurisdiction of Court of Appeals, see § 431 of title 11 Appendix.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appealable orders

Order disqualifying counsel is appealable. American Archives' Counsel v. V. L. Bittenbender, Administratrix, etc. (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 487).

Whether trial court had jurisdiction over defendant after releasing him from its jurisdiction does not determine jurisdiction of Court of Appeals on appeal, and government can appeal the trial court's order where it was entered without authority. United States v. M. K. Shorter (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 569).

Denial of leave to intervene as of right under Superior Court rule is final order appealable immediately to Court of Appeals. Calvin-Humphrey et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 795).

Order authorizing negotiations for private sale of property under conservatorship was not final, and thus not appealable. In re E. A. Parsons (D.C. App. 1974, 328 A. 2d 383; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 11, 423 U.S. 803).

A denial of a motion to dismiss based upon a claim of forum non conveniens is a final and an appealable order. District-Realty Title Insurance Corporation v. D. M. Goodrich et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 328 A. 2d 92).

An order of dismissal on grounds of forum non conveniens is clearly a final order and is properly appealable. D. D. Frost et al. v. Peoples Drug Store, Incorporated, et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 810).

Trial court's denial of pretrial motion for dismissal on grounds of forum non conveniens is a final order and appealable. Id.

Even though juvenile did not file notice of appeal from order denying application to reconsider order detaining him pending trial within two-day period provided for interlocutory appeals, appellate court had jurisdiction to review order by viewing it as final order, as to which such two-day limitation did not apply. In the Matter of M. L. DeJ. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 834).

Dismissal of an information without prejudice is an appealable order. United States v. T. L. Cummings (D.C. App. 1973, 301 A. 2d 229).

That dismissal of indictment without prejudice created no bar to seeking a new indictment did not render dismissal order nonreviewable. United States v. M. M. Hector (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 504).

Error affecting substantial rights

Allowing officer to testify about events occurring after alleged assault on him, while preventing defendant from testifying about a beating he assertedly received from other guards in officer's presence immediately thereafter, if error, did not constitute an error affecting substantial rights of parties, for purposes of this section directing the Court of Appeals to render judgment on appeal without regard to errors not affecting the substantial rights of parties. H. B. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 516).

Final orders

Appeal from an adjudication of contempt but before announcement of sentence is premature. Decision in criminal case is final for appellate purposes only when litigation between parties is terminated and nothing remains but enforcement by execution of what has been determined; to create finality in criminal case it is necessary that there be a judgment of conviction followed by a sentence. J. N. West v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 504).

The term "final orders" for purposes of statute governing appellate jurisdiction is not limited to final judgments which terminate an action. D. D. Frost et al. v. Peoples Drug Store, Incorporated, et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 810).

Harmless error

In light of adoption of preponderance standard for determining voluntariness of a confession, any error in admitting defendant's statement while entertaining a reasonable doubt about voluntariness was at best harmless error which the Court of Appeals was required to ignore. N. Hawkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 279).

Interlocutory appeals

Where, by terms of stipulation, retrial of original claim would be waived and case would be dismissed with prejudice if, after granting application for interlocutory appeal, Court of Appeals ruled in favor of respondent, but if the court were to rule for applicants, the litigation would be protracted by necessity of trial on counterclaim and possibly a retrial of original claim as well, the stipulation does not meet requirement for interlocutory appeal that alternative to it would mean greater delay and expense than interlocutory review itself and application for permission to appeal must be denied. M. E. Heusen et al. v. J. R. Lynch et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 45).

Record

Where record on appeal from order detaining juvenile pending trial on charges of carnal knowledge and assault was insufficient to indicate factors relied upon by the court in answering order, case would be remanded to Superior Court with directions that judge file statements of reasons for order or reconsider same. In the Matter of M. L. DeJ. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 834).

Standing

Where order of probate division determining that heir finder which had taken assignments of one-third of whatever interest each individual plaintiff had in estate was not a proper party was not appealed from, and primary objective of counsel for heir finder in appealing from order striking their appearances as counsel for individual plaintiffs was to represent heir finder, counsel does not have standing to appeal. American Archives' Counsel v. V. L. Bittenbender, Administratrix, etc. (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 487).

Time for appeal

Where trial court orally granted motion to dismiss information on August 16, 1974, and on August 26, 1974, order was entered on the criminal docket so as to have of record an appealable order, notice of appeal filed on September 5, 1974, is timely within rule prescribing a ten-day period for filing notice of appeal. United States v. F. H. Miqueli (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 472).

Even if Court were to consider appeal taken from adjudication of contempt but before announcement of sentence to be an appeal from a final judgment, Court of Appeals would still be compelled to dismiss since the notice of appeal was prematurely filed more than a month before sentencing. J. N. West v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 504).

— Extension

Where divorce decree was signed out of presence of parties and counsel, and where death in judge's family had caused counsel for wife not to press for conference on her motion for counsel fees and for personal property, counsel could have kept abreast of the case through contact with law clerk or with clerk's office, and fact that counsel expected hearing to be held before judgment is not "excusable neglect" within meaning of rule providing that upon a showing of "excusable neglect" Superior Court may extend time for filing notice of appeal by any party for period not to exceed 30 days from expiration of time otherwise provided, so that denial of motion for extension of time to note appeal did not constitute an abuse of discretion. E. E. Pryor v. A. J. Pryor (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 321).

§ 11-722. Administrative orders and decisions

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

CROSS REFERENCE

District Charter provisions relating to jurisdiction of Court of Appeals, see § 431 of title 11 Appendix.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Provisions of this section that Court of Appeals has jurisdiction to review orders and decisions of any agency of the District in accordance with Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), and may review orders or decision of the Public Service Commission in accordance with Commission's organic act (chapters 1-10 of title 43), carves out only a limited area in which Administrative Procedure Act is inapplicable to the Commission, that being in the area of standard and scope of review, rather than a wholesale exemption from Administrative Procedure Act coverage. Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. v. Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 710).

Housing Rent Commission orders

District of Columbia Court of Appeals is without jurisdiction to review Housing Rent Commission's voiding of hearing examiner's order allowing increased cost of operating property to be passed through to tenants due to landlord's failure to serve order on parties and Commission within 45 days after decision; review thereof would be in the Superior Court. Columbia Realty Venture v. District of Columbia Housing Rent Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 350 A.2d 120).

Joint Committee on Landmarks

Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital as an intergovernmental agency is not an agency of the District of Columbia, and the Court of Appeals lacks jurisdiction to entertain petition for review of its action under the Administrative Procedure Act. J. W. Latimer,

Jr., et al. v. The Joint Committee on Landmarks of the National Capital (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 484).

Zoning Commission orders

Absent "contested case" status under Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), Court of Appeals does not have jurisdiction to directly review Zoning Commission's order amending zoning regulations under section 1-1510 relating to review by Court of administrative orders including power to hold unlawful and set aside findings and conclusions in enumerated instances, as that section does not denote a grant of jurisdiction but is a plain statement of scope of judicial review applicable only to contested cases. Dupont Circle Citizen's Association et al. v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 296).

When Zoning Commission exercised its authority to determine needs of area by denying without public hearing a proposed amendment to zoning maps to change zoning classification of property, the Commission was acting legislatively and was not subject to the "contested case" provisions of Administrative Procedure Act (§§ 1-1501 et seq.), with the result that such decision is not subject to direct review by the Court of Appeals, despite contention of property owner that mere submission of proposed amendment, and the subsequent rejection of same, constituted a "hearing" required by law, and thus is subject to review. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Company v. District of Columbia Zoning Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 420).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Court costs

Length of delay in implementing retroactive payment order of Commissioner of Department of Human Resources justifies an assessment of costs in form of a $25 filing fee against administrative officers in their official capacity once petition in nature of mandamus to compel agency action was dismissed as moot after officers tardily performed requested action. B. Dillard et ano. v. J. P. Yeldell et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 578).

Interpretation of rules

Court of Appeals in interpreting its own procedural rules is not bound by an interpretation given to similar federal procedural rules by the District of Columbia Circuit Court. J. N. West v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 504).

§ 11-744. Judicial conference

The chief judge of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall summon annually the active associate judges of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and the active judges of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia to a conference at a time and place that he designates, for the purpose of advising as to means of improving the administration of justice within the District of Columbia. He shall preside at such conference which shall be known as the Judicial Conference of the District of Columbia. Every judge summoned shall attend, and, unless excused by the chief judge of the District of Columbia Courts of Appeals, shall remain throughout the conference. The District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall provide by its rules for representation of and active participation by members of the District of Columbia Bar and other persons active in the legal profession at such conference. SUBCHAPTER II.—JURISDICTION

§ 11-921. Civil Jurisdiction

CROSS REFERENCE

District Charter provisions relating to jurisdiction of Superior Court, see § 431 of title 11 Appendix.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Amount claimed

Where complaint for personal injuries in amount of $10,000 was filed by plaintiff and jurisdictional limit in civil actions was thereafter raised in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, granting of motion to amend the ad damnum of the complaint from $10,000 to $50,000 was error since Congress deliberately intended to limit recovery in cases originally docketed to the maximum amount then in effect. D.C. Transit System, Inc. v. V. McLeod (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A.2d 440).

Equitable powers

By specifically vesting the Superior Court with jurisdiction to review Rent Commission's decisions, Congress gave statutory recognition to authority of trial court to use its equity power in rent control field. Columbia Realty Venture v. District of Columbia Housing Rent Commission (D.C. App. 1975, 350 A.2d 120).

Superior Court rather than District of Columbia Court of Appeals had jurisdiction to review Housing Rent Commission's decision affirming order allowing landlord to increase rents charged at apartment building so as to insure return on investment. Id.

Superior Court did not abuse its discretion in taking equitable jurisdiction in case, in which landlords sought to have rent control regulation declared invalid and in which Housing Rent Commission was shown to have had an administrative inability to decide landlords' petitions for hardship adjustments, notwithstanding contention that landlords' proper remedy would have been to wait 60 days and then commence an action in superior court pursuant to provision of District of Columbia Rent Control Act. Apartment and Office Building Association of Metropolitan Washington et al. v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 323).

Excessive verdict—Reduction

Trial court did not abuse discretion in curing excessiveness of verdict by reducing amount recovered to court's jurisdictional maximum rather than ordering new trial. Freedmen's Hospital v. L. Heath (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A.2d 593).

Where trial court found that its jurisdictional limit required that verdict be set at $50,000, though verdict in amount of $150,000 had been returned, and court stated that judgment ranging up to $100,000 would have been supportable, defendant was not prejudiced because court proceeded to apply statutory jurisdictional limit to reduce judgment rather than to offer choice of reduced verdict or new trial. Id.

Injunctions

Even in the absence of statutory enactments, a person engaged in the unlawful practice of law may be enjoined from conducting such activity. J. H. Marshall & Associates, Inc. v. W. A. Bursleson (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A.2d 587).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Equitable powers

Where goal of plaintiff's suit for relief from action of District of Columbia police in enforcing vagrancy laws was equitable and of a type which could not be granted by Court of General Sessions which possessed exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions in which the claimed value did not exceed $10,000, Court of General Sessions lacked authority to entertain suit and United States District Court for the District of Columbia had jurisdiction. M. J. Gomez v. J. V. Wilson, Chief of Police, et al. (1973, 477 F.2d 411, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 243; remanding 323 F. Supp. 87).

§ 11-922. Transfer of civil actions to Superior Court

CROSS REFERENCE

District Charter provisions relating to jurisdiction of Superior Court, see § 431 of title 11 Appendix.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

On record indicating that plaintiff in civil rights action had shouted obscenity and expletives at police officer at downtown intersection, that plaintiff failed to appear to contest charge of disorderly conduct or seek equitable relief in Superior Court upon showing of lack of culpability and that plaintiff was apparently not distressed by handcuffs or interrogation, District Court did not abuse discretion in certifying record to Superior Court of the District of Columbia, even without permitting further opportunity to reformulate complaint, for insufficiency of amount in controversy. M. James v. G. Lusby et al. (1974, 499 F.2d 488, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Action for equitable relief

Action which was brought by borrowers against corporate lender and which alleged, inter alia, that lender had made loans requiring payment of interest in excess of statutory eight per cent limit, was not certifiable to the Superior Court under provision of this section that "In a civil action begun in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia before the effective date of the District of Columbia Reorganization Act of 1970 (other than an action for equitable relief) * * * the court may certify the action to the Superior Court for trial," since the complaint sought substantial declaratory and equitable relief, including injunctions and cancellation of notes and deeds of trust. B. T. Himes et al. v. City Finance Company of Eastover, Inc., et al. (1972, 474 F.2d 430, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 182).

Amount in controversy

Where there was issue before district court whether or not record before it showed that amount in controversy exceeded $10,000, determination of such issue was preliminary to assumption of jurisdiction, and it was affirmative duty of trial court to inquire into such issue, whether or not it was raised by parties. M. James v. G. Lusby et al. (1974, 499 F.2d 488, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Standard to be applied by trial court in certifying case to court of local jurisdiction is that sum claimed by plaintiff controls if claim is apparently made in good faith. Id.

Both compensatory and punitive damages were to be considered in determining amount in controversy for jurisdictional purposes. Id.

Certification

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia may certify cause to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia only if the District Court finds that, the amount in controversy is not satisfied and that federal jurisdiction is not otherwise invoked. W. H. Apton et al. v. J. V. Wilson (Chief of Police) et al. (1974, 506 F.2d 83, 165 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

Where individuals, who were allegedly arrested during the "Mayday Demonstrations" of May, 1971, asserted claims against District of Columbia police officers and chief of police which arose directly under Fourth and Fifth Amendments, the United States District Court had "federal question" jurisdiction and it was improper to certify the cases against the District of Columbia defendants to the Superior Court for the District of Columbia. Id.

— Abuse of discretion

Federal District Court's certification to Superior Court of action by owners of apartment building to recover unincorporated franchise taxes paid under protest, for no reason other than the conclusion that the action would not justify a judgment in excess of $50,000 exclusive of interest and costs, was an abuse of discretion where it did not appear that the amount paid in satisfaction of the deficiency was less than $50,000 and District did not maintain that the amount in controversy was less than $50,000. E. P. Block et al. v. District of Columbia (1974, 492 F.2d 646, 160 U.S. App. D.C. 380).

— Standard for review

Standard for review of order of certification from District Court to Superior Court is whether or not the trial court abused its discretion. E. P. Block et al. v. District of Columbia (1974, 492 F.2d 646, 160 U.S. App. D.C. 380).

Construction

Under provision of this section that "In a civil action begun in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia before the effective date of the District of Columbia Reorganization Act of 1970 (other than an action for equitable relief) * * * the court may certify the action to the Superior Court for trial," the parenthetical phrase is not intended to cover what is essentially a legal action which seeks equitable relief only of a character incidental to the main legal thrust of the action; on the other hand, if substantial equitable relief is sought as such, the District Court should retain jurisdiction even though legal relief is also sought. B. T. Himes et al. v. City Finance Company of Eastover, Inc., et al. (1972, 474 F. 2d 430, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 182).

Discretion of court

Exercise of general authority to certify cases to courts of local jurisdiction rests in sound discretion of district court. M. James v. G. Lusby et al. (1974, 499 F. 2d 488, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

§ 11-923. Criminal jurisdiction; commitment

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of court

Trial court had no power to grant new trial on ground of prejudicial joinder of defendants, where nothing in defendant's new trial motion raised question of severance or otherwise suggested that he was improperly joined with named codefendants and no motion for severance was pending, and ruling was thus action by court on its own motion beyond its jurisdiction and ineffective. United States v. Honorable Leonard Braman (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 530; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 562, 423 U.S. 1032).

Constitutionality

Congress did not violate article of Constitution pertaining to the judicial power of the United States by vesting jurisdiction over local felonies in the District of Columbia Superior Court. R. F. Palmore v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 290 A. 2d 573; aff'd 93 S. Ct. 1670, 411 U.S. 389).

Under its constitutional power to legislate for the District of Columbia, Congress may provide for trying local criminal cases before judges who, in accordance with District of Columbia Code, are not accorded life tenure and protection against reduction in salary. Id.

Construction

Provision of this section providing that Superior Court has jurisdiction of any criminal case under any law applicable exclusively to District of Columbia, "any law" does not mean "any statute" but means any distinct, self-contained directive or prohibition; thus it is not required that a statutory section in its entirety apply exclusively to District in order for Superior Court to have jurisdiction of any prohibition in unseverable statute. United States v. I. C. Thompson et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 581).

Discovery of witnesses

Court had power to order Government in first-degree murder prosecution to produce names of alleged eyewitnesses to crime for use by the defense, where eye-witnesses were passersby on street, defense counsel satisfied requirement of materiality by establishing that he was unable to locate eyewitnesses, such witnesses were necessary for preparation of defense, discovery of eyewitnesses was not so burdensome as to be unreasonable, Government was given opportunity to oppose discovery motion, and safeguards for witnesses were provided in conditions imposed in court's order. United States v. W. J. Holmes (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 272; rehearing denied 346 A.2d 517).

Jurisdiction

Section 22-505, proscribing interfering with member of police force operating in District of Columbia, proscribing assaulting district employee charged with supervision of juveniles confined in district facility located within District or elsewhere and proscribing assaulting member of fire department operating in District, contains three different "laws," within meaning of this section, providing that Superior Court has jurisdiction of any criminal case under any law applicable exclusively to District; thus Superior Court has jurisdiction of prosecution for assault on police officer in District, even if that Court has no jurisdiction over prosecution for assault on supervisor of confined juvenile on ground that it is an extra-territorial offense. United States v. I. C. Thompson et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 581).

SUBCHAPTER III.—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 11-942. Subpenas

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Compliance, continuing obligation

Where subpoena served on prospective witness in criminal case specified a February 11 appearance date, but prosecutor informed witness that she would be informed by telephone of the exact date and time her testimony would be required and in early March witness was notified to appear to testify on March 12 but witness failed to appear, the telephone standby procedure did not vitiate the continuing efficacy of the subpoena and witness's failure to appear was a criminal contempt of court and not merely a violation of prosecutor's direction to witness. In the Matter of Ragland (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 558).

§ 11-944. Contempt power

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Trial judge did not abuse discretion in finding criminal defendant guilty of contempt, where, following exchange in which trial judge ordered codefendant to be quiet, defendant spoke out three times stating that he wanted to represent himself, trial judge then told him not to address court unless he was given permission, but defendant continued to answer court directly, even after a further warning, and, when trial judge told him to stand up and asked him if he had heard warning, he finally admitted that he had heard the warning. L. Irby v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 33).

Contempt

Although counsel should make all legitimate objections in support of client's interest, conduct of defense counsel, against whom a summary conviction of contempt was issued during criminal trial, exceeded permissible bounds where his persistent defiance of trial court's authority resulted in his forceful removal from courtroom and the grant of a mistrial. In the Matter of L. Nesbitt (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 154).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence supports findings that defense counsel, who was summarily convicted for contempt during criminal trial, repeatedly and willfully refused to obey directions of court to be seated, persistently and contumaciously refused to respond to direct and simple question put to him by court and, in a voice clearly audible to jury, flagrantly defied authority of court by refusing to leave the bench and take his seat. In the Matter of L. Nesbitt (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 154).

Where defendant, who had been given lineup order directing that he not alter his facial appearance prior to lineup and who had had at time of the order a full head of hair and a moustache and goatee, had his head and face shaved before preliminary hearing on the basis of alleged ringworm condition which had existed for several months, the defendant made no showing of exigent circumstances warranting failure to obtain court's permission and determination that he possessed the intent required to support contempt conviction was justified. In re R. A. Jackson (D.C. App. 1974, 328 A. 2d 377).

Where attorney, who had previously informed judge of conflict between two scheduled court appearances, was confronted by two United States marshals who intended to escort him to second judge's courtroom, where attorney directed clerk to get in touch with first judge, and where clerk told attorney that judge had told him that attorney was excused to go to the other courtroom, attorney could reasonably construe the excusal as authorizing him to commence trial in the second case and attorney's actions in so doing did not support finding that attorney had the requisite intent to commit a criminal contempt by failing to appear for trial before the first judge. In the Matter of L. Nesbitt (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A. 2d 576).

Fine

Two hundred dollar fine for contempt upon failure of counsel to return directly to trial court as ordered after being allowed to attend hearing in another court is not excessive. In the Matter of S. Rosen (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 151; cert. denied 95 S. Ct. 224, 419 U.S. 964).

In presence of court

Deliberate and knowing violation of order that trial counsel return directly from another court for trial which has been postponed to enable counsel to attend hearing at the other court is a contempt committed "in the presence of the court" and is properly disposed of summarily, without hearing before another judge. In the Matter of S. Rosen (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 151; cert. denied 95 S. Ct. 224, 419 U.S. 964).

Subpena, failure to appear

Where subpoena served on prospective witness in criminal case specified a February 11 appearance date, but prosecutor informed witness that she would be informed by telephone of the exact date and time her testimony would be required and in early March witness was notified to appear to testify on March 12 but witness failed to appear, the telephone standby procedure did not vitiate the continuing efficacy of the subpoena and witness's failure to appear was a criminal contempt of court and not merely a violation of prosecutor's direction to witness. In the Matter of Ragland (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 558).

Summary disposition

Where attorney did not consciously and intentionally absent himself from court in criminal case, trial court erred in exercising its summary power to punish attorney for contempt. In the Matter of J. E. Brown (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 92).

Tardiness

Tardiness or non-appearance may be punished as contempt committed in presence of court. In the Matter of J. E. Brown (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 92).

Unauthorized practice of law

The unauthorized practice of law constitutes contempt of court and the court has inherent power to punish such conduct and prevent its recurrence. J. H. Marshall & Associates, Inc. v. W. A. Bursleson (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A. 2d 587).

§ 11-946. Rules of court

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Declaratory judgment

Declaratory judgment authority does not supersede rules of justiciability. E. R. Smith v. D. L. Smith (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 229).

Intervention

Where class of taxpayers sought to be represented by purported intervenors in suit brought on behalf of city commercial property owners seeking declaratory judgment that practice of assessing commercial property at higher percentage of market value than residential property violated section 47-713 and the Fifth Amendment had economic interest in outcome of suit, and District of Columbia, which had agreed to set up single level of assessment and had not denied that its dual assessments violated that section and Fifth Amendment principles of equal protection, did not adequately represent such taxpayers, proposed intervenors should be allowed to intervene under Superior Court rule on behalf of all taxpayers other than commercial ones. Calvin-Humphrey et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 795).

Practice of law

A court has an inherent right to make rules governing the practice of law before it and to promulgate rules concerning who may practice law before it. J. H. Marshall & Associates, Inc. v. W. A. Bursleson (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A. 2d 587).

A court has inherent power, by virtue of its existence as part of judicial system, to regulate and control the practice of law and to protect the public and the administration of justice by forbidding the unwarranted intrusion of unauthorized and unskilled persons into the practice of law. Id.

Chapter 11.—FAMILY DIVISION OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

§ 11-1101. Exclusive jurisdiction

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Even if United States attorney's election to charge juvenile as an adult is made after he has been subject to jurisdiction of Family Division by reason of a delinquency petition filed against him, attorney's statutory authority to determine whether juvenile, who is 16 years of age and who is charged with certain enumerated offenses, should be charged as adult is unfettered by section 16-2307, which provides that, on corporation counsel's motion for transfer of child for trial as adult, transfer can be ordered only after a hearing to determine prospects for child's rehabilitation in Family Division. L. B. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 48).

Jurisdiction

Fact that verdict of not guilty of armed robbery was returned, in proceeding in which 16-year-old accused was charged as an adult, does not require that verdicts of guilty of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon be certified to Family Division for disposition. L. B. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 48).

Chapter 12.—TAX DIVISION OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

§ 11-1201. Exclusive jurisdiction

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Exclusive remedy

Exclusive remedy of petitioner, which was denied exemption as an institution and assessed taxes due by the District of Columbia Department of Finance and Revenue, Property Assessment Division and which then sought review in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals under the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act, lay in the Tax Division of the Superior Court. *The Washington Theater Club, Inc. v. Construction

Where statutory period for challenging excessive tax payment had expired before sections of Court Reorgan-zation Act of 1970 putatively eliminating common-law remedies became effective, the Act could not be construed to curtail or destroy the preexisting common-law rights of property owners to maintain an action at common law for recovery from the District of Columbia. *E. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Composition

Record established that there was no purposeful exclusion of any cognizant group, whether of youth or of any other coherent, identifiable class, in the selection of jurors. United States v. T. B. Diggs (1975, 522 F.2d 1310, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 95; rehearing en banc denied 535 F.2d 1299, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

In absence of allegation of systematic and intentional exclusion of some recognizable class from jury, and in absence of factual hearing into manner of selection of petit jury panels for scheduled trials, defendant's challenge which merely went to composition of particular panel assigned for final selection was insufficient. M. H. Green, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A.2d 286).

In jury selection, burden is on defendant to show that some recognizable class has been improperly excluded from jury, and improper exclusion must show a systematic and intentional exclusion of the class. Id.

Chapter 25.—ATTORNEYS§ 11-2501. Admission to bar; regulations; prior admission*NOTES TO DECISIONS*Rules for admission

Although term "good moral character" is term of broad dimensions and can be defined in many ways, no better test for purpose of admission to bar is known and a candidate for admission to bar must meet such standard. In the Matter of R. J. Heller for Admission to the bar of this court (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A.2d 401).

A candidate for admission to bar who knowingly pleads guilty to crime of receiving stolen goods and does not honor commitments and obligations fails to carry his required burden of demonstrating he is qualified for admission to bar. Id.

Unauthorized practice of law

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

Where one is engaged in the unauthorized practice of law before the court, the court not only has authority to consider the question of unauthorized practice and to dismiss plaintiff's suit, but it also has the power and responsibility to enjoin further activities which constitute the unauthorized practice of law. J. H. Marshall & Associates, Inc. v. W. A. Burleson (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A.2d 587).

Member of the bar and officer of the court had duty to bring to the attention of the court activities of collection agency which constituted the unauthorized practice of law. Id.

The operation of a collection agency, does not in and of itself, necessarily constitute the unauthorized practice of law. Id.

Collection agency cannot properly interpose itself between a creditor and an attorney seeking to collect the creditor's claim; to do so either directly or indirectly, by assignment or otherwise, constitutes the unauthorized practice of law. Id.

Collection agency may not solicit claim for legal action on a contingent fee basis, may not advise the creditor when to start suit, and may not employ an attorney to institute and carry on the litigation under the control and direction of the agency in order to enforce the legal rights of the creditor. Id.

Collection agency did not by employing an attorney to actually present himself in court, remove itself from the sphere of unauthorized practice. Id.

Collection agency did not become entitled to utilize practices which constituted the unauthorized practice of law merely because it received the grant by corporate charter from the District of Columbia to conduct its collection business and to do what is necessary to carry out its purposes. Id.

Collection agency was entitled to sue and to attempt to collect claims, to charge a fee therefor, and to purchase claims outright for a valid and legally enforceable consideration without engaging in the unauthorized practice of law. Id.

Collection agency was not entitled to advise creditors when to bring suit, to solicit or receive assignments of claims or debt collection under which payment, to the assignor or creditor, is dependent on collection from the debtor and which contemplates or authorizes enforcement by suit, brought in the name of either party, by an attorney at law. Id.

Collection agency was not entitled to employ a lawyer on behalf of the creditor or an assignor without specific written authority to do so, to interpose itself between the creditor and the lawyer handling legal collection on the claim, to institute or maintain legal action for others or to appropriate to its own use as attorney fees sum adjudged against debtors on assigned claim except where such judgment is its bona fide property. Id.

§ 11-2502. Censure, suspension, or disbarment for causeNOTES TO DECISIONS*Misconduct

Violation of rule prohibiting a lawyer from engaging in conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation warrants 30-day suspension. District of Columbia Bar v. R. G. Kleindienst (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 146).

Power of court

Court of Appeals may, in a disciplinary proceeding, consider more severe disciplinary action than that recommended by disciplinary board. District of Columbia Bar v. R. G. Kleindienst (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 146).

The Joint Committee on Judicial Administration shall place in operation, within ninety days after the effective date of this chapter, in the District of Columbia a plan for furnishing representation to any person in the District of Columbia who is financially unable to obtain adequate representation—

(1) who is charged with a felony, or misdemeanor, or other offense for which the sixth amendment to the Constitution requires the appointment of counsel or for whom, in a case which he faces loss of liberty, any law of the District of Columbia requires the appointment of counsel;

(2) who is under arrest, when such representation is required by law;

(3) who is charged with violating a condition of probation or parole² in custody as a material witness, or seeking collateral relief, as provided in—

(A) Section 23-110 of the District of Columbia Code (remedies on motion attacking sentence),

(B) Chapter 7 of title 23 of the District of Columbia Code (extradition and fugitives from justice),

(C) Chapter 19 of title 16 of the District of Columbia Code (habeas corpus),

(D) Section 928 of the Act of March 8, 1901 (D.C. Code, sec. 24-302) (commitment of mentally ill person while serving sentence);

(4) who is subject to proceedings pursuant to chapter 5 of title 21 of the District of Columbia Code (hospitalization of the mentally ill);

(5) who is a juvenile and alleged to be delinquent or in need of supervision.

Representation under the plan shall include counsel and investigative, expert, and other services necessary for an adequate defense. The plan shall include a provision for private attorneys, attorneys furnished by the Public Defender Service, and attorneys and qualified students participating in clinical programs. (Added Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-412, § 2, 88 Stat. 1090.)

SHORT TITLE

The first section of Act Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-412, provided: "That this Act [enacting this chapter and provisions set out under this section, and amending 18 U.S.C. 3006A] may be cited as the 'District of Columbia Criminal Justice Act'."

EFFECTIVE DATE

Any person appointed on or after July 1, 1974, but prior to the commencing date of the plan referred to in section 11-2601 of the District of Columbia Code (as added by section 2 of this Act), by a judge of the Superior Court or the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to furnish to any person in the District of Columbia, who is financially unable to obtain adequate representation, that representation and those services referred to in such section 11-2601, may be compensated and reimbursed for such representation and services rendered, including expenses incurred therewith, upon filing a claim for payment. § 11-2602. Appointment of counsel

Counsel furnishing representation under the plan shall in every case be selected from panels of attorneys designated and approved by the courts. In all cases where a person faces a loss of liberty and the Constitution or any other law requires the appointment of counsel, the court shall advise the defendant or respondent that he has the right to be represented by counsel and that counsel will be appointed to represent him if he is financially unable to obtain counsel. Unless the defendant or respondent waives representation by counsel, the court, if satisfied after appropriate inquiry that the defendant or respondent is financially unable to obtain counsel, shall appoint counsel to represent him. Such appointment may be made retroactive to include any representation furnished pursuant to the plan prior to appointment. The court shall appoint separate counsel for defendants or respondents having interests that cannot properly be represented by the same counsel, or when other good cause is shown. In all cases covered by this Act where the appointment of counsel is discretionary, the defendant or respondent shall be advised that counsel may be appointed to represent him if he is financially unable to obtain counsel, and the court shall in all such cases advise the defendant or respondent of the manner and procedures by which he may request the appointment of counsel. (Added Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-412, § 2, 88 Stat. 1090.)

§ 11-2603. Duration and substitution of appointments

A person for whom counsel is appointed shall be represented at every stage of the proceedings from his initial appearance before the court through appeals, including ancillary matters appropriate to the proceedings. If at any time after the appointment of counsel the court finds that the person is financially able to obtain counsel or to make partial payment for the representation, it may terminate the appointment of counsel or authorize payment as provided in section 2606 of this chapter, as the interests of justice may dictate. If at any stage of the proceedings, including an appeal, the court finds that

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Reduction of sentence proceeding

Where prisoner's motion for reduction of sentence was patently deficient and did not present sort of issue requiring appointment of counsel in order to satisfy due process standards of fundamental fairness, trial court did not err in denying prisoner's request for appointment of counsel to assist in preparation of motion. B. J. Burrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 344).

§ 11-2604. Payment for representation

(a) Any attorney appointed pursuant to this chapter shall, at the conclusion of the representation or any segment thereof, be compensated at a rate fixed by the Joint Committee on Judicial Administration, not to exceed the hourly scale established by the provisions of section 3006A(d)(1) of title 18, United States Code. Such attorney shall be reimbursed for expenses reasonably incurred.

(b) For representation of a defendant before the Superior Court or before the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, as the case may be, the compensation to be paid to an attorney shall not exceed the maximum amounts established by section 3006A(d)(2) of title 18, United States Code, in the corresponding kind of case or proceeding.

(c) Claims for compensation and reimbursement in excess of any maximum amount provided in subsection (b) of this section may be approved for extended or complex representation whenever such payment is necessary to provide fair compensation. Any such request for payment shall be submitted by the attorney for approval by the chief judge of the Superior Court upon recommendation of the presiding judge in the case or, in cases before the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, approval by the chief judge of the Court of Appeals upon recommendation of the presiding judge in the case. A decision shall be made by the appropriate chief judge in the case of every claim filed under this subsection.

(d) A separate claim for compensation and reimbursement shall be made to the Superior Court for representation before that court, and to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals for representation before that court. Each claim shall be supported by a sworn written statement specifying the time expended, services rendered, and expenses incurred while the case was pending before the court, and the compensation and reimbursement applied for or received in the same case from any other source. The court shall fix the compensation and reimbursement to be paid to the attorney. In cases where representation is furnished other than before the Superior Court or the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, claims shall be submitted to the Superior Court which shall fix the compensation and reimbursement to be paid.

(e) For purposes of compensation and other payments authorized by this section, an order by a court granting a new trial shall be deemed to initiate a new case.

(f) If a person for whom counsel is appointed under this section appeals to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, he may do so without prepayment of fees and costs or security therefor and without filing the affidavit required by section 1915(a) of title 28, United States Code. (Added Sept. 3, 1974, Pub. L. 93-412, § 2, 88 Stat. 1091.)

§ 11-2605. Services other than counsel

(a) Counsel for a person who is financially unable to obtain investigative, expert, or other services necessary for an adequate defense may request them in an ex parte application. Upon finding, after appropriate inquiry in an ex parte proceeding, that the services are necessary and that the person is financially unable to obtain them, the court shall authorize counsel to obtain the services.

(b) Counsel appointed under this section may obtain, subject to later review, investigative, expert, or other services, excluding the preparation of reporter's transcript, without prior authorization if necessary for an adequate defense. The total cost of services obtained without prior authorization may not exceed $150 or the rate provided by section 3006A(e)(2) of title 18, United States Code, whichever is higher, and expenses reasonably incurred.

(c) Compensation to be paid to a person for services rendered by him to a person under this subsection shall not exceed $300, or the rate provided by section 3006A(e)(3) of title 18, United States Code, whichever is higher, exclusive of reimbursement for expenses reasonably incurred, unless payment in excess of that limit is certified by the court, as necessary to provide fair compensation for services of an unusual character or duration, and the amount of the excess payment is approved by the presiding judge in the case. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accrual of cause of action—Contracts

Where lender's transferee purchased note and deed of trust in 1961, all installments due were paid until 1966 when borrower's grantee filed petition for reorganization, transferee filed a proof of claim later that year, trustee in bankruptcy objected to the claim in 1968 on ground that the loan was made in violation of Loan Shark Law [§ 26-601 et seq.], and loan and accompanying deed were declared void in 1971, action instituted by transferee in December, 1972 to recover its loss from lender was not barred by this section which provides three-year limitation period for actions based on contract, despite argument that transferee's claim accrued when it purchased the note and deed. Hartford Life Insurance Co. v. Title Guarantee Co. et al. (1975, 520 F.2d 1170, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

In light of 1971 Court of Appeals decision invalidating loan as being in violation of Loan Shark Law, lender's transferee, which had purchased note and deed of trust, would have been better advised to proceed immediately against lender in 1968 when trustee in bankruptcy for borrower's grantee objected to transferee's proof of claim on ground that loan violated Loan Shark Law, rather than engaging in a protracted and ultimately futile legal battle with the trustee, but it would be grossly inequitable to determine that transferee's cause of action against lender accrued in 1968 prior to the Court of Appeals' decision. Id.

— Fraud

Lender's transferee's proposed second amended complaint of June, 1973 alleging that until 1973 lender fraudulently concealed from transferee the fact that lender was concerned, before loan was entered into in 1960, that such a loan might violate Loan Shark Law [§ 26-601 et seq.] was not barred by statute of limitations, where there was no indication that transferee should have learned of lender's alleged conduct any earlier than it did. Hartford Life Insurance Co. v. Title Guarantee Co. et al. (1975, 520 F.2d 1170, 172 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

— Installment obligations

Where notes provided that they were to be repaid in "constant monthly installments" and holder was granted option of accelerating the entire unpaid principal sum of the note upon default in payment of any one installment, the notes are "installment obligations" and statute limitations with respect to suit for nonpayment began to run on each installment as that installment fell due, and provision that unpaid balance of principal, if any, with accrued interest would be due and payable seven years after date of note does not cause the note to fall due at the end of seven years. R. J. Toomey et ano. v. D. S. Cammack (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 453).

— Insurance

Where beneficiary of group life policy who sought to recover double indemnity benefits for accidental death of insured had submitted her claim to insured's employer and subsequently received payment of ordinary life benefits through employer, beneficiary had made employer her agent for claim and for payment or rejection purposes; thus, notification of rejection of claim for double indemnity benefits to insured's former employer was sufficient to commence running of limitations period against beneficiary's claim for double indemnity benefits. M. G. Dillard v. The Travelers Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A.2d 222).

— Sealed instruments

Where note upon which suit was brought was under seal, the period of limitation was 12 years, not the three-year statute on simple contracts. R. L. Ramey v. J. J. Burrascano (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 687).

Amendment of pleadings

Amendment of complaint, which contained count for common-law slander charging that store detectives accused plaintiff's decedent of being either a drunkard or drug addict or both, so as to include statement that plaintiff additionally relied on Virginia statutory relief for slander, did not, for purposes of statute of limitations, commence a new cause of action. May Department Stores Company, Inc., v. E. V. Devercelli (D.C. App. 1973, 314 A.2d 767).

Breach of contract

Generally, statute of limitations begins to run from date a contract is breached. M. G. Dillard v. The Travelers Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A.2d 222).

Civil rights actions

Court is required as matter of judicial implication to create procedural limitations on actions under civil rights statutes for which Congress has enacted no applicable limitation and procedural limitations thus imposed should be consistent with the humane and remedial policy underlying civil rights statute. S. Macklin et al. v. Spector Freight Systems, Inc., et al. (1973, 478 F.2d 979, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 69).

To extent that minority truck driver could show that his misperception of his difficulties was justified and that he had good cause not to suspect racial discrimination, he could recover for period before he realized that he had actually been wronged and statute of limitations had begun to run. Id.

Conflict of laws

The choice-of-laws rule in the District of Columbia shall apply to conflicting statutes of limitations where it is demonstrated that a jurisdiction outside the forum has a relationship to the controversy that warrants an evaluation of the interest of such jurisdiction in the application of its own rule of law. N. B. Cornwell et ux. v. C. I. T. Corp. of New York et ano. (1974, 373 F. Supp. 661).

Questions whether two-year period of limitations of Virginia and Alaska or three-year period of limitations of District of Columbia were applicable to action by Virginia plaintiffs against District of Columbia defendant for injuries sustained in Alaska plane crash or whether Warsaw Convention preempted use of limitations of either jurisdiction in action operated to preclude granting of motion to dismiss action as untimely pending further argument. Id.

Where Virginia resident brought suit in the District of Columbia against corporation which engaged in business both in Virginia and the District of Columbia, based on personal injuries allegedly sustained in a fall in defendant's store in Virginia, Virginia two-year statute of limitations, which would bar the action, would be applied, rather than District of Columbia three-year statute, which would not bar the action, both on the basis of the District of Columbia "interest analysis" approach to conflict of laws and to prevent forum shopping. D. Farrier v. May Department Stores Company, Inc. (1973, 357 F. Supp. 190).

Contracts

General three-year statute of limitations for bringing action on a contract did not bar hospital's claim for services rendered to decedent. D. Evans, Executor etc. v. Washington Hospital Center, Inc. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 44).

Costs on appeal

Where appeal by plaintiff purchaser of automobile, in action for breach of contract against automobile dealer and manufacturer, in which action judgment had been entered for defendants on grounds that action was commenced more than six years after purchase of the automobile and thus was barred by the statute of limitations, was completely lacking in substance, appeal would be dismissed as frivolous and double costs would be assessed against purchaser. E. E. Tolson, Jr., v. Handley Ford, Inc. et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 634).

Employment cases

Former government employee could not maintain action against government officials for alleged conspiracy to deprive him of his job more than three years after employee's dismissal on ground that conspiracy which caused dismissal, though admittedly occurring outside three-year period set by statute of limitations, continued within the period where no independently actionable acts causing injury were alleged to have occurred within the limitations period. A. E. Fitzgerald v. R. C. Seamans, Jr., et al. (1974, 384 F. Supp. 688).

Mere allegation that conspiracy to deprive former government employee of his job continued as conspiracy of silence after employee's dismissal, which admittedly occurred outside period set by statute of limitations, or that conspiracy was actively concealed within the limitations period would not suffice to make actionable those acts with respect to which statute of limitations had run. Id.

District of Columbia school teacher's cause of action arising out of disputed salary placement arose, at the latest, on May 1, 1967, on affirmance by chief examiner of her salary placement, and thus suit on original claim which was not filed until September 11, 1972, was barred by three-year statute of limitations. C. L. Clark v. H. J. Scott, Superintendent of Schools, et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A. 2d 442).

Group life insurance

Action which was brought by beneficiary of group life policy to recover double indemnity accidental death benefits more than three years after insurer had refused claim for double indemnity benefits was precluded by applicable three-year statute of limitations. M. G. Dillard v. The Travelers Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 222).

Personal injury

Time for bringing action for recovery of injuries sustained by hotel tenant who alleged that, on two occasions, a person entered his room and assaulted him, would be three years from the time the right to maintain the action accrued. C. H. Alley v. Dodge Hotel (1974, 501 F. 2d 880, 163 U.S. App. D.C. 320).

Where shooting victim filed his complaint against District of Columbia and its chief of police two years and three months after incident in which police officer shot victim with his service revolver while allegedly in grossly intoxicated condition, where subject case involved claims grounded in negligence, and where limitation period for negligence actions in the District of Columbia was three years, plaintiff's complaint was timely, notwithstanding contention that the complaint was essentially for "wounding" and thus barred under one-year limitation period for wounding. D. S. Marusa v. District of Columbia et al. (1973, 484 F. 2d 828, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 348).

Purpose

Broad purposes of statutes of limitation are prevention of state claims and unfair surprise. S. Macklin et al. v. Specter Freight Systems, Inc., et al. (1973, 478 F.2d 979, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 69).

Summary judgment

In beneficiary's action against insurer to recover double indemnity accidental death benefits under group life policy, beneficiary's allegations that suit was timely brought, that claim was in continuing dispute, and that insurer's rejection of claim was a nullity failed to establish existence of genuine issues of material fact with respect to insurer's defenses under statute of limitations and did not preclude grant of summary judgment, absent supporting factual assertions. M. G. Dillard v. The Travelers Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 222).

Tolling of statute

Statute of limitations was not tolled with respect to former government employee's claim of alleged conspiracy to deprive him of his job on theory that fraudulent concealment of material facts by conspirators precluded him from bringing lawsuit within statutory period where employee not only knew the essential facts relating to his cause of action well before statute of limitations had run on his claim but publicly alleged many of the same evidentiary details which he asserted in suit prior to running of the statute of limitations. A. E. Fitzgerald v. R. C. Seamans, Jr., et al. (1974, 384 F. Supp. 688).

Statute of limitations was not tolled on theory that members of conspiracy had fraudulently concealed certain crucial facts from him and that he was not able to discern concerted pattern of harassment by government officials acting outside the scope of their authority until Civil Service Commission hearings where, in letter to Civil Service Commission appealing his dismissal, former employee clearly maintained that acts of harassment he had suffered had been unauthorized and completely outside ambit of any legitimate official function. Id.

Former employee's filing of appeal to Civil Service Commission from his dismissal did not toll statute of limitations with respect to action for alleged conspiracy to deprive him of his job. Id.

To come within "continuing tort" exception to statute of limitations, another wrongful injurious act which occurs within statutory period and which is repetitious of prelimitation period acts is required; passive refusal to remedy wrongful prelimitation period acts is not sufficient to toll statute of limitations. Id.

The docketing of a duly authenticated claim against a decedent's estate in office of Register of Wills tolls the general three-year statute of limitations and brings the claim within special statute of limitations protecting claimant until three months after claim is rejected or disputed by the executor or administrator. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

United States, suit by

Inasmuch as any recovery in suit by AID to recover payments to exporters of medicinal drugs for breach of sales contract with Vietnamese importers would inure to the benefit of AID or the United States Treasury, the United States is the real party in interest and the federal six-year period of limitations is applicable rather than three-year period of limitations provided for contract actions by this section. United States v. Emons Industries, Inc., et ano. (1976, 406 F. Supp. 355).

§ 12-308. Actions by the United StatesNOTES TO DECISIONS*Real party in interest

Inasmuch as any recovery in suit by AID to recover payments to exporters of medicinal drugs for breach of sales contract with Vietnamese importers would inure to the benefit of AID or the United States Treasury, the United States is the real party in interest and the federal six-year period of limitations is applicable rather than three-year period of limitations provided for contract actions by section 12-301. United States v. Emons Industries, Inc., et ano. (1976, 406 F. Supp. 355).

§ 12-309. Actions against District of Columbia for unliquidated damages; time for noticeSUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Differences existing between governmental and private tort-feasors justifies disparate treatment accorded private tort-feasors and those injured by governmental tort-feasors by this section which requires six months' notice of question as condition to maintenance of suit against District of Columbia for unliquidated damages to personal property. R. A. Wilson et al. v. District of Columbia et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 437).

Estoppel

District of Columbia was not estopped from asserting that motorist's claim against it for personal injury sustained in automobile collision involving automobile owned by the District and operated by one of its employees was barred due to motorist's failure to give timely notice of claim absent waiver by the District of the notice requirement. D. B. Miller v. I. Spencer et ano. (D.C. App. 1974, 330 A. 2d 250).

Police report as notice

Police report which pertained to collision involving automobile owned by District of Columbia and operated by one of its employees and which indicated that no personal injuries resulted from the accident failed to satisfy requirements of "notice of claim" statute with respect to motorist's claim against the District for personal injuries allegedly sustained in the accident. D. B. Miller v. I. Spencer et ano. (D.C. App. 1974, 330 A. 2d 250).

For police accident report to satisfy statutory notice of claim requirement for maintenance of action against the District of Columbia, report must contain information as to time, place, cause and circumstances of injury or damage with at least the same degree of specificity required of a written notice filed by claimant; report must do more than merely report happening of an event or accident. Id.

While police accident report may suffice as notice of claim against District of Columbia in lieu of written notice by claimant, his agent or attorney, the police report must, when facts are apparent, contain at least substance of same information required of written notice filed by claimant and when it does not because no injuries were apparent at time of accident, it is duty of claimant to supply additional information when injuries become apparent. Id.

Police report, which set forth the circumstances surrounding plaintiff's arrest for unlawful entry and carrying a dangerous weapon, was not notice of an injury to person or damage to property for purposes of Code provision [§ 12-309] prohibiting maintenance of an action against the District of Columbia for unliquidated damages to person or property unless, within six months after the injury or damage, claimant has given written notice to the District of Columbia Commissioner of the approximate time, place, cause, and circumstances of the injury or damage. H. E. Brown v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 292).

Summary judgment

Trial court properly treated government's motion to dismiss damage action for noncompliance with provision of this section that written notice of claim against District of Columbia be given within six months of claimant's injury as, in effect, a motion for summary judgment, where court considered evidence presented at hearing at which claimant submitted records and testimony in attempt to raise genuine factual issue as to his inability to provide notice within statutory period. J. H. Hill v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 867).

U.S. Court of Appeals decisions

Decision of United States Court of Appeals with respect to statute pertaining to notice of a claim against District of Columbia, constituted law of the case since it had jurisdiction to review decision of District of Columbia Court of Appeals when decision of District of Columbia Court of Appeals was rendered and when petition for allowance of appeal was filed, but where decision was rendered after effective date of statute providing that decisions of District of Columbia Court of Appeals would no longer be subject to review by United States Court of Appeals, decision would constitute no binding precedent on future cases in District of Columbia Court of Appeals. District of Columbia v. R. Smith (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 787).

Written notice

Where claimant in damage action against District of Columbia was ambulatory when discharged from hospital following five months' treatment for burns he had suffered when fire started in his bed at District of Columbia General Hospital, claimant's allegation that he "was feeling pretty bad" and "didn't know what to do" after discharge does not raise genuine issue as to whether wrongful act of hospital made claimant incapable of providing notice of claim against District of Columbia within month remaining of six-month notice period. J. H. Hill v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 867).

Evidence, in action against District of Columbia to recover for damage allegedly sustained as result of the alleged negligent maintenance and design of sewer grating, supported trial court's finding that District did not receive notice from plaintiff giving correct location of accident as required by statute governing actions against District for damage to person or property. E. F. Toomey v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 565).

Evidence of nonreceipt of letter by addressee was sufficient to rebut prima facie case of receipt created by proof that letter was mailed and to create true issue of fact to be resolved by trier of facts. Id.

TITLE 13.—PROCEDURE GENERALLY

Title 13 was enacted by Pub. L. 88-241, Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 511

Chapter 3.—PROCESS AND PARTIES

SUBCHAPTER II.—SERVICE OF PROCESS; LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES

§ 13-336. Service by publication on nonresidents, absent defendants, and unknown heirs or devisees

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Publication requirements

Trial court's selecting for publication of process in divorce proceedings a newspaper other than newspaper preferred by wife's counsel does not work a denial of access to the courts, where wife, who asserted that publication in newspaper selected by court was more costly than publication in newspaper preferred by counsel, had been permitted to proceed in forma pauperis. D. E. Gomez v. M. F. Gomez (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A.2d 423).

Relative publication costs are not items of which court can take judicial notice for purpose of determining whether trial court abused its discretion in ordering service by publication in a newspaper other than newspaper chosen by plaintiff's counsel; even if they were, judicial notice can not be used as device to correct on appeal the almost complete failure to present adequate evidence of publication costs to the trial court. Id.

Record on appeal from trial court's ruling in selecting for publication of process in divorce proceeding a newspaper other than newspaper preferred by plaintiff wife is inadequate and remand is required where no facts as to publication costs were presented to the trial court and motion for publication contained merely naked assertions that plaintiff could not afford to publish in two newspapers and that newspaper preferred by her counsel was the least expensive newspaper. Id.

§ 13-340. Manner of publication; mailing of copy; default; appointment and compensation of guardian and attorney

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Publication requirements

Trial court's selecting for publication of process in divorce proceedings a newspaper other than newspaper preferred by wife's counsel does not work a denial of access to the courts, where wife, who asserted that publication in newspaper selected by court was more costly than publication in newspaper preferred by counsel, had been permitted to proceed in forma pauperis. D. E. Gomez v. M. F. Gomez (D.C. App. 1975, 341 A.2d 423).

Record on appeal from trial court's ruling in selecting for publication of process in divorce proceeding a newspaper other than newspaper preferred by plaintiff wife is inadequate and remand is required where no facts as to publication costs were presented to the trial court and motion for publication contained merely naked assertions that plaintiff could not afford to publish in two newspapers and that newspaper preferred by her counsel was the least expensive newspaper. Id.

Denial of motion to allow publication only in least expensive newspaper in divorce action by wife proceeding in forma pauperis, who made bona fide effort to comply with publication requirements, and who alleged that without such relief she would be unable to pursue divorce action, was improper in that indigent litigant's access to court to obtain divorce may not be barred by financial considerations, including publication costs. M. B. Johnson v. J. R. Johnson (D.C. App. 1974, 329 A.2d 451).

Chapter 4.—CIVIL JURISDICTION AND SERVICE OUTSIDE THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

SUBCHAPTER I.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 13-401. Relation to other provisions of law

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Long-arm statute (this chapter) enacted as part of Court Reorganization Act of 1970 exists independently of Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act (§ 40-423) as an alternative, independent method for acquiring in personam jurisdiction over a nonresident motorist. Liberty Mutual Insurance Company et ano. v. W. Burgess (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A.2d 775).

SUBCHAPTER II.—BASES OF PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER PERSONS OUTSIDE THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

§ 13-422. Personal jurisdiction based upon enduring relationship

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Business domicile

Corporation does not maintain business domicile within District of Columbia merely by maintaining office and staff within District for purposes of maintaining contact with agencies of United States government. Norair Engineering Associates, Inc., et ano. v. Noland Company et al. (1973, 365 F. Supp. 740).

§ 13-423. Personal jurisdiction based upon conduct

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Exercise of long-arm jurisdiction over foreign corporations in District corporation's action for compensation for services in dealing with federal agency does not deny due process since defendant corporations, through their contract with District corporation, caused District corporation to carry on business activities on their behalf within District, where office was located, and since District has interest in providing forum for its residents. Environmental Research International, Inc. v. Lockwood Greene Engineers, Inc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 390).

Construction

Congress intended to provide District of Columbia with long-arm statute similar to those of Maryland and Virginia and in interpreting statute court must look for guidance to background of Uniform Act and Maryland and Virginia statutes as interpreted by their courts. Environmental Research International, Inc. v. Lockwood Greene Engineers, Inc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 390).

Long-arm statute does not require that the contacts required for jurisdiction such as regular solicitation of business or specific course of contact have direct relationship to the act or failure to act which caused plaintiff's injury. M. L. Aiken v. Lustine Chevrolet, Inc., et ano. (1975, 392 F.Supp. 883).

Long-arm statute (this chapter) enacted as part of Court Reorganization Act of 1970 exists independently of Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act (§ 40-423) as an alternative, independent method for acquiring in personam jurisdiction over a nonresident motorist. Liberty Mutual Insurance Company et ano. v. W. Burgess (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A.2d 775).

Doing business

Complaint which alleged that a phone conversation acted as a ratification of an agent's contract made between two parties physically present in the District of Columbia was sufficient, within meaning of long-arm statute's "transacting business" test, to invoke long-arm jurisdiction of the court. Dorothy K. Winston & Co. et al. v. Town Heights Development, Inc. (1974, 376 F.Supp. 1214).

Although corporate defendant, as operator of aircraft which crashed and allegedly caused injury to plaintiffs, listed an address and telephone number in the District of Columbia telephone directory as well as the World Aviation Directory, where both publications showed the address to be in Arlington, Virginia, and, in addition, defendant was a Tennessee corporation which did not employ personnel or operate aircraft into or out of District of Columbia, and had not entered into any contracts, nor had any outstanding obligations to perform within District of Columbia, defendant was not "transacting any business" within District of Columbia so as to be amenable to long-arm jurisdiction. N. B. Cornwell et ux. v. C. I. T. Corp. of New York et ano. (1974, 373 F. Supp. 661).

Fact that foreign corporation did not qualify to do business within District of Columbia did not entitle creditor of corporation to maintain suit against individual officers of corporation. A. Tasker, Inc. v. J. P. Amsellem (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 178).

Defendant Oregon corporation had not "transacted any business" in the District of Columbia, within meaning of venue statute, where corporation sold an automobile to Michigan corporation and thereafter exercised no control over nor had any knowledge of the price at which the automobile would finally be sold to plaintiff customer, where corporation was not solicited by plaintiff, was not paid by him, and where corporation had maintained no office nor agent in the District of Columbia. E. Mosley v. Nationwide Purchasing, Inc. et ano. (1973, 485 F.2d 418).

Defendant Michigan corporation was not "doing business" within the District of Columbia, within meaning of venue statute, so that venue was laid in wrong district and transfer of case in the interests of justice was within trial court's discretion, where, inter alia, corporation had no office in the District, no agent, no telephone listing and no bank accounts, and where purchase order relating to sale of automobile constituted an offer by plaintiff customer to corporation which was not binding upon the parties until corporation accepted the terms and conditions of sale, so that it could not be said that the contract for sale of automobile was made in the District. Id.

Mere fact that sale of stainless steel tubing used in construction project in West Virginia may have been consummated in District of Columbia by distributor who was not acting as agent for manufacturers of tubing did not give jurisdiction under "long-arm" statute to federal court in District over action by buyers of tubing against manufacturers for damages for alleged defects in tubing. Norair Engineering Associates, Inc., et ano. v. Noland Company et al. (1973, 365 F. Supp. 740).

Government contacts

New York corporation, involved in construction and operation of mills in foreign countries, is not within District of Columbia jurisdiction through government contacts which did not involve sales to the Government but merely taking advantage of services offered to prospective foreign investors by federal agencies, for purpose of action by plaintiffs in whose favor corporation negotiated federal loan. Siam Kraft Paper Co., Ltd. v. Parsons & Whittemore, Inc., et al. (1975, 400 F.Supp. 810).

Rule that entrance into District of Columbia to deal with federal agency does not constitute transaction of business within this chapter does not apply to preclude jurisdiction over corporations which contracted with District corporation to deal with federal agency, with respect to District corporation's claim for compensation for these services. Environmental Research International, Inc. v.

Lockwood Greene Engineers, Inc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 390).

Intent

Congress' overall intent with respect to District of Columbia long-arm statute was to provide the District's courts, to the greatest extent possible, with essentially identical long-arm jurisdiction as was then available in Maryland and Virginia. M. Margoles v. A. Johns et al. (1973, 483 F.2d 1212, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 209; aff'g 333 F. Supp. 942).

Minimum contacts

Discussions, conferences and meetings conducted within District of Columbia by nonresident corporation with reference to oral contract which was allegedly breached by defendants constitutes such minimal contacts with District that maintenance of action for breach of such contract does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. Unidex Systems Corporation v. Butz Engineering Corporation et ano. (1976, 406 F.Supp. 899).

Personal jurisdiction pursuant to long-arm statute was not proper over automobile salesman, sued in his individual capacity on basis of fraudulent representations in sale of automobile to resident of the District, in absence of showing that defendant had any contacts whatsoever with District. M. L. Aiken v. Lustine Chevrolet, Inc., et ano. (1975, 392 F.Supp. 883).

Tortious injury

Personal jurisdiction over defendant under long-arm statute was proper where action was based on alleged injuries to resident plaintiff's credit rating and to her mental and emotional well-being notwithstanding non-resident defendant's contention that personal jurisdiction was improper because the tort occurred in Maryland. M. L. Aiken v. Lustine Chevrolet, Inc., et ano. (1975, 392 F. Supp. 883).

Where newspaper reporter allegedly made defamatory statements in telephone calls from Wisconsin to the District of Columbia with respect to plaintiff, reporter had not acted within the District within meaning of its long-arm statute on theory that by making the telephone call and by causing actual physical events in the District such as the ringing of bells and flashing of lights the reporter projected her presence into the District, and no personal jurisdiction could be asserted over reporter. M. Margoles v. A. Johns et al. (1973, 483 F.2d 1212, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 209; aff'g 333 F. Supp. 942).

Mere fact that purchasers of stainless steel tubing used in West Virginia construction project may have been required to borrow funds from lenders in District of Columbia in order to replace allegedly defective tubing did not mean that purchasers had sustained "tortious injury" within District of Columbia so as to give federal court in District jurisdiction over suit by purchasers against manufacturers under "long-arm" statute. Norair Engineering Associates, Inc., et ano. v. Noland Company et al. (1973, 365 F. Supp. 740).

Where complaint alleged a conspiracy and overt acts in furtherance of conspiracy, at least one of which overt acts was an alleged tort in District of Columbia, where such overt acts were uncontroverted and where, under plaintiff's theory, coconspirators were agents of all their fellow conspirators when acting in furtherance of conspiracy, jurisdiction could be obtained over alleged conspirators, who had no direct contacts with District, by virtue of service of process under District's "long-arm" statute. J. Mandelkorn v. T. Patrick et al. (1973, 359 F. Supp. 692).

Under provision that District of Columbia court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a person, who acts directly or by an agent, as to a claim for relief arising from that person's transacting any business in District or causing tortious injury in District by an act or omission in the District, both the act and the effect, or injury, must take place in District. Id.

§ 13-425. Inconvenient forum

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

The Superior Court did not abuse its discretion in granting defendant's motion to dismiss on grounds of forum non conveniens where plaintiff's cause of action for alleged false arrest and wrongful detention arose in Maryland and defendant was plainly subject of service of process in Maryland. E. J. Pitts v. Woodward and Lothrop (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 816; cert. denied 95 S. Ct. 832, 420 U.S. 911).

Discretion of court

A decision to dismiss on a forum non conveniens motion is entrusted to discretion of trial court and such a dismissal will not be reversed on appeal except for a clear abuse of discretion. District-Realty Title Insurance Corporation v. D. M. Goodrich et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 328 A. 2d 92).

Jurisdiction over defendant

When an issue of forum non conveniens or change of venue is timely raised in a civil action, it is not sufficient to defeat such a motion to show that the court in which the action has been filed clearly has jurisdiction over defendant. E. J. Pitts v. Woodward and Lothrop (D.C. App. 1974, 327 A. 2d 816; cert. denied 95 S. Ct. 832, 420 U.S. 911).

Proper forum

Where resident plaintiff alleged that automobile dealer's refusal to accept return of vehicle pursuant to representations made by salesman caused injury to plaintiff's credit rating and mental and physical well-being, District of Columbia was not a forum non conveniens to defendant automobile dealer which conducted sales activity within district and was located in nearby suburb. M. L. Aiken v. Lustine Chevrolet, Inc., et ano. (1975, 392 F. Supp. 883).

Where Switzerland, alleged appropriate forum, had no contacts with subject of action to enforce support agreement executed between parties in California, other than defendant's domicile there, defendant was not amenable to service of process in California, defendant had substantial contacts with Washington, D.C. and it could reasonably be assumed that suit in Switzerland would face variety of obstacles not found in United States court, inconvenience of defendant does not outweigh plaintiff's interest in having her claim, governed by American law, considered and determined by American court and defendant is not entitled to have action brought in the District dismissed on ground of forum non conveniens. K. Dorati v. A. Dorati (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 18).

Maryland, not the District of Columbia, was proper forum for class action by Maryland homeowners against title insurance company which did business in Maryland seeking damages for overcharges paid to Maryland lawyers on ground that such charges were not filed with nor approved by Maryland Insurance Commissioner, in light of fact that judgment in the Court of District of Columbia where title insurance company had its principal place of business and where some overcharges were made would not be a final resolution of issue raised in action and would not be binding upon Maryland courts or Maryland Insurance Commissioner. District-Realty Title Insurance Corporation v. D. M. Goodrich et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 328 A. 2d 92).

SUBCHAPTER III.—SERVICE OUTSIDE THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

§ 13-431. Manner and proof of service

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Service on foreign government

In action brought by a District of Columbia resident against government of Brazil for damage to his home allegedly resulting from construction of Brazilian embassy, service of summons and complaint upon government of Brazil by registered mail delivered to Ministry of External Relations in Brazilia and by registered mail delivered to the Brazilian embassy in the District of Columbia were reasonably calculated to provide adequate notice of action and both methods of service were valid. S. S. Renchard et al. v. Humphreys & Harding, Inc., et al. (1973, 59 F.R.D. 530).

Chapter 5.—COUNTERCLAIMS

§ 13-501. Counterclaim by way of set-off as an action by defendant

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Unauthorized practice of law

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

Attorney was entitled to raise by counterclaim to a complaint on a debt the defense that the plaintiff, a collection agency, was engaged in the unauthorized practice of law. J. H. Marshall & Associates, Inc. v. W. A. Burleson (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A. 2d 587).

§ 13-502. Effect of assignment

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Unauthorized practice of law

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

Attorney was entitled to raise by counterclaim to a complaint on a debt the defense that the plaintiff, a collection agency, was engaged in the unauthorized practice of law. J. H. Marshall & Associates, Inc. v. W. A. Burleson (D.C. App. 1973, 313 A. 2d 587).

Collection agency cannot properly interpose itself between a creditor and an attorney seeking to collect the creditor's claim; to do so either directly or indirectly, by assignment or otherwise, constitutes the unauthorized practice of law. Id.

Chapter 7.—TRIAL

§ 13-702. Repealed. July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 142 (5)(A), title I, 84 Stat. 552.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Construction

In view of restructuring of District of Columbia court system accomplished by District of Columbia Court Reform and Criminal Procedure Act of 1970, same deference is owed courts of District with respect to their interpretation of acts of Congress directed toward local jurisdiction as is owed with regard to positions taken by same courts on common-law questions of evidence and substantive criminal law. D. Pernell v. Southall Realty (1974, 94 S. Ct. 1723, 416 U.S. 363; rev'g 294 A.2d 490).

Right to jury trial

Since right to recover possession of real property was right ascertained and protected at common law, any party involved in suit under statutes of District of Columbia establishing summary procedure for recovery of possession of real property is entitled under Seventh Amendment to Constitution to trial by jury. D. Pernell v. Southall Realty (1974, 94 S. Ct. 1723, 416 U.S. rev'g and rem'g 294 A.2d 490).

TITLE 14.—PROOF

Title 14 was enacted by Pub. L. 88-241, Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 517

Chapter 1.—EVIDENCE GENERALLY; DEPOSITIONS

§ 14-102. Impeachment of own witness; surprise

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impeachment

In prosecution for sodomy, taking indecent liberties with a minor and assault with a deadly weapon, questioning of complainant as to, inter alia, "Why is it that the first time you said the man tried to do it and later you said that he did do it" did not constitute "impeachment," for purposes of statute permitting party to impeach its own witness only if party is taken by surprise by witness' testimony, but rather a permissible effort to obtain an explanation for established inconsistent statements. J. G. Davis v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 157).

Inconsistent statements as evidence

A prior inconsistent statement used to impeach a witness is admissible solely to affect the credibility of the witness and is not to be considered as support for the truth of its contents, and such rule applies where a party's own witness is impeached because he has been determined to be hostile. United States v. D. G. Gilliam (1973, 484 F. 2d 1093, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Instructions

Under this section authorizing party to impeach his witness by prior statements if the party is taken by surprise by the testimony of the witness, trial court is required to give, sua sponte, a cautionary instruction as to the limited purpose for which the evidence of the prior statements can be used, and except in cases of explicit waiver by defense counsel, failure to do so constitutes reversible error. United States v. D. G. Gilliam (1973, 484 F. 2d 1093, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Assuming that prior statement by witness called by prosecutor as a hostile witness, to the effect that witness had been threatened by defendant, was properly admitted despite absence of surprise on the part of the prosecutor, the trial court committed error in failing to give an immediate cautionary instruction regarding the limited, impeachment purpose for which the evidence could be used and such error was not harmless where court also failed to give such an instruction in its charge to the jury and where the prosecutor argued that the matters in the statement revealed a consciousness of guilt on the part of defendant and should be taken as fact. Id.

Surprise

If the government were positive that one of its witnesses would repudiate a prior statement at trial, it could not be surprised when he did so, and Government was not entitled to claim benefit of statute which allows a party, when surprised by the testimony of his witness, to prove a prior inconsistent statement. W. A. Baker v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 194).

Chapter 3.—COMPETENCY OF WITNESSES

§ 14-305. Competency of witnesses; impeachment by evidence of conviction of crime

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in allowing government to impeach defendant's testimony with a prior conviction where case had narrowed to credibility of defendant and his accuser and, in such circumstances, there was greater, not less, compelling reason for exploring all avenues which would shed light on which of two witnesses was to be believed. United States v. D. T. McDonald (1973, 481 F. 2d 513, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 338).

Administrative proceedings

In denying application for license as a business-chance broker, it was not error for the Real Estate Commission to rely in part on a conviction for fraudulent conduct occurring prior to the ten-year period specified by statute as limitation on the use of prior convictions of witnesses for impeachment purposes in court trials. L. M. Bryant v. Real Estate Commission of the District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A. 2d 721).

Admissibility of prior conviction

Section authorizing conviction-impeachment in trials of District of Columbia offenses mandates that court allow such evidence, and trial court has no discretion in the matter where conviction falls within the purview of the section. United States v. E. Edmonds, Jr. (1975, 524 F. 2d 62, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

Under section enabling impeachment of witness by proof that he has been convicted of criminal offenses under stated conditions, conviction suffered by defendant in North Carolina at age of 16 was not inadmissible merely because, had offense occurred in the District of Columbia, defendant would not have been subjected to criminal prosecution as an adult. Id.

Where application by trial court of this section providing for mandatory witness impeachment by conviction had been improper because indictment had charged both District of Columbia Code offense and United States Code offense, and witness-impeachment statute was not operable as to latter offense, defendant appellant was entitled to remand of case with directions for district court to review admissibility of prior conviction in light of discretion available to it, and such remand was available despite fact that defendant had been acquitted by jury on federal count. United States v. M. J. Belt (1975, 514 F. 2d 837, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Defendant's own testimony was not necessary to his defenses that he was home sleeping while offenses were committed and that he had purchased murder weapon from a third person at a time subsequent to murder and other crimes charged, thus supporting determination that two prior convictions were admissible because prejudicial impact did not far outweigh their probative value on issue of credibility. United States v. J. E. Marshall (1975, 511 F. 2d 1308, 167 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

Defendant's prior conviction of carrying a pistol without a license is within purview of this section which provides that conviction of a crime is admissible for impeachment purposes if crime involved dishonesty or false statement. C. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 337 A. 2d 772).

In prosecution for assault and threats to do bodily harm, admission of defendant's prior conviction of manslaughter was not error, where at time prior conviction was introduced and during final instructions trial court informed jury that it should consider the conviction only in evaluating defendant's credibility. W. B. Davis v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 886).

Fact that time for taking appeal from defense witness' conviction of Harrison Act violation had not expired did not preclude use of such conviction for impeachment on ground of lack of finality since such impeachment was permissible under new impeachment statute; and, in any event, since two of three defense witnesses were not impeached by prior convictions, admission of such conviction did not affect defendant's substantial rights. United

Principal consideration under the discretionary standard of admissibility of prior convictions, as such standard existed prior to 1970 amendment of impeachment statute to mandate admission of certain prior convictions, was whether the prejudicial effect of impeachment far outweighed the probative relevance of a prior conviction to issue of credibility. Id.

Exclusion of evidence of conviction of complaining witness of making false report to police, which evidence was admissible under statute, was reversible error in prosecution for first-degree burglarly, armed robbery, and assault with a deadly weapon, where honesty and veracity of complaining witness was at issue and exclusion may have affected verdict. United States v. G. O. Morgan (1973, 476 F. 2d 928, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 172).

If evidence of prior conviction of defendant was admissible on any other ground than for purpose of attacking his credibility, admission of evidence was properly within the discretion of the trial judge regardless of the constitutionality of amended statute respecting the admission of evidence of prior crimes for purpose of attacking credibility of witness. United States v. J. L. Tyson (1972, 470 F. 2d 381, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 233; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1512, 410 U.S. 985).

Constitutionality

This section providing for mandatory admission of witness impeachment by conviction is not unconstitutional. United States v. M. J. Belt (1975, 514 F.2d 837, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

This section providing that a prior conviction of a felony "shall be admitted" to impeach credibility of the witness is constitutional. W. B. Davis v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 886).

To extent that the 1970 amendment of impeachment statute mandating admission into evidence of certain prior convictions if a defendant takes the stand is applied in trials for offenses committed before its effective date such application constitutes a prohibited ex post facto law; the particularized consideration under the prior discretionary standard of whether prejudicial effect of impeachment outweighed probative relevance of prior conviction on issue of credibility was a protection of the magnitude necessary to invoke the ex post facto clause. United States v. J. D. Henson (1973, 486 F. 2d 1292, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Where offenses at issue were committed before effective date of 1970 amendment to impeachment statute mandating admission into evidence of certain prior convictions of a defendant if he takes the stand, as well as admission of such offenses as to witnesses, such retroactive application was unconstitutional as a prohibited ex post facto law. Id.

Construction

District of Columbia Court Reform Act's requirement that evidence of certain types of prior crimes be admitted for impeachment purposes applies to trials of Code offenses conducted in United States district court during transition period established by Code. United States v. R. E. Yates (1975, 524 F.2d 1282, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Amendment to this section shifting language from "crime" to "criminal offense" was intended not to restrict but to broaden category of convictions usable under this section. United States v. E. Edmonds, Jr. (1975, 524 F.2d 62, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 241).

Where indictment as originally returned contained both federal and District of Columbia offenses, but federal offenses were dismissed prior to trial, District Court properly applied this section providing for mandatory admission of witness impeachment by conviction. United States v. J. Jones, Jr. (1975, 517 F.2d 176, 170 U.S. App. D.C. 362).

This section providing for mandatory admission of witness impeachment by conviction applies to trial in United States District Court for District of Columbia of District of Columbia Code indictments returned before August 1, 1972. United States v. M. J. Belt (1975, 514 F.2d 837, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Where indictment is triable in United States District Court for District of Columbia because it includes both United States Code and District of Columbia Code offenses, provision of this section for mandatory admission of witness impeachments by conviction is not operative; rather, witness impeachment will be conducted under federal evidentiary law, including Federal Rules of Evidence, when effective. Id.

Provision of this section that evidence of criminal defendant's prior convictions shall be admitted for impeachment purposes was intended to apply only to D.C. Code crimes and not to apply to U.S. Code crimes. United States v. C. S. Hairston (1974, 495 F. 2d 1046, 161 U.S. App. D.C. 466).

Where U.S. attorney uses authority given him to combine local and federal crimes in the same indictment, resulting in their trial together in United States District Court in the District of Columbia, federal forum's evidentiary law would govern impeachment by prior conviction. Id.

This section, which permits evidence of prior conviction to be admitted for purpose of attacking defendant's credibility when the defendant testified in his own behalf, does not permit use of the evidence as proof of guilt. United States v. C. H. Carter (1973, 482 F. 2d 738, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 149).

In permitting evidence of prior conviction to impeach a defendant when he testifies, this section furnishes no foundation for its use for any other purpose and care on part of court is required to confine such evidence to the permissible purpose. Id.

Conviction

Mere plea of guilty was insufficient to constitute "conviction" without statute authorizing attack upon credibility of witnesses by admission of prior "convictions." United States v. H. E. Lee (1974, 509 F.2d 400, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 67; cert. denied 95 S. Ct. 1451, 420 U.S. 1006).

Discovery

Criminal records of prosecution witnesses were neither evidence favorable to defendant nor material in any way on issue of guilt or punishment except to the extent that their use would be permitted for impeachment purposes and discovery of the criminal records in the possession of the prosecutor is not compelled by due process of law. United States v. W. C. Engram et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 337 A.2d 488; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 793, 423 U.S. 1058).

The government is committed to furnish to the defendant at trial the record of all impeachable convictions of prosecution witnesses. Id.

Evidence of prior convictions

Under statute authorizing attack upon credibility of witnesses by admission of prior "convictions," it was error to admit evidence of defendant's plea of guilty in different prosecution but where testimony as to guilty plea was largely cumulative to testimony which defendant himself introduced, error was harmless. United States v. H. E. Lee (1974, 509 F.2d 400, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 67; cert. denied 95 S. Ct. 1451, 420 U.S. 1006).

Evidence of prior crimes or convictions is admissible for certain limited purposes for which the probative value of the evidence outweighs its prejudicial character. United States v. C. H. Carter (1973, 482 F. 2d 738, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 149).

Defense counsel has burden to shown why court should exercise discretion to render prior conviction unavailable for impeachment and court's failure to hold hearing on availability for prior conviction was not grounds for reversal, although counsel was court appointed. United States v. D. F. Brown (1973, 476 F. 2d 933, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Hearing

In this case the court held that under the circumstances the defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking and grand larceny, was entitled to nonjury hearing to determine whether defendant would be allowed to take stand in front of jury without prosecution introducing evidence of defendant's prior convictions. United States v. J. Coleman (1969, 420 F. 2d 1313, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Harmless error

In view of overwhelming case made out by prosecution against defendants in robbery prosecution, trial court's error in allowing impeachment of one defendant by evidence of prior conviction for simple assault, such crime not being a felony and not involving dishonesty or false statement, was harmless. United States v. M. J. Belt (1975, 514 F.2d 837, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Refusal to rule on whether defendant's prior conviction of attempted house breaking was an impeachable one is improper, but error is harmless, in that since such conviction was admissible for impeachment purposes, defendant's decision whether to testify would have been same if trial judge had expressly ruled on its admissibility. M. A. Hampton v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 813).

Impeachment

No improper impeachment of defendant in second-degree murder prosecution took place when prosecutor inquired as to previous terms of imprisonment served by defendant only after prisoner had already testified to such confinements in his direct testimony. C. R. Curry v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 322 A. 2d 268).

Instructions

Trial judge's failure to sua sponte give an immediate cautionary instruction when defendant's prior conviction was brought out was not prejudicial error and was not cognizable as plain error where immediately following impeachment defense counsel brought out on redirect that defendant had served his time, defense counsel made no mention of instructions to limit use of prior impeachment when trial court asked for any special instructions and, in contrast to the government, defense counsel again raised prior conviction in his closing argument to note that it was only to be used in considering credibility. United States v. J. D. Henson (1973, 486 F. 2d 1292, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Trial court's instructions concerning limited use of evidence of prior criminal convictions was not sufficient to cure prejudicial effect of the eliciting from defendant of testimony concerning prior convictions. United States v. C. H. Carter (1973, 482 F. 2d 738, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 149).

Reversible error

Prosecutor's eliciting of testimony from defendant that defendant had previously been convicted of six counts of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon, which was designed to persuade jury that defendant would rob a man, and in fact committed the robbery for which he was charged, constituted reversible error. United States v. C. H. Carter (1973, 482 F. 2d 738, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 149).

§ 14-306. Husband and wife

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Confidential nature

Privilege not to reveal confidential marital communications survives the death of one spouse, but it does not extend to noncommunicative acts and a communication otherwise privileged loses its privileged character on coming into the hands of a third party. United States v. J. H. Burks (1972, 470 F. 2d 432, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 284).

Termination of privilege

Common-law privilege of one spouse not to testify for or against the other would not apply where husband's legal interests were in no way at stake in case and the privilege ended with termination of marital relationship through death of husband. United States v. J. H. Burks (1972, 470 F. 2d 432, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 284).

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

§ 14-701. Presumption of death

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

In action wherein insured's mother-in-law, who was beneficiary under life policy, sought declaration that insured was legally dead on basis of statutory presumption, evidence warranted finding that insured departed with intention of changing his domicile. M. A. Sulkie v. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1975, 336 A.2d 830).

Chapter 1.—JUDGMENTS AND DECREES

§ 15-101. Enforceable period of judgments; expiration

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment—Validity

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

§ 15-102. Lien of judgment, decree, or forfeited recognition

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Option to purchase

Purchase option accompanying lease is not a legal or equitable estate in land within provisions of this section that, as of date it is recorded, a final judgment constitutes a lien on all freehold and leasehold estates, legal and equitable of defendants bound by judgment in any land, tenements or hereditaments. R. Harris et ano. v. J. S. Wagshal (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 283).

§ 15-108. Interest on judgment for liquidated debt

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Liquidated debt

Where each member of plaintiff class acquired vested right to receive monthly pension payments at time his application was unlawfully denied, there was liquidated debt in sense that, whenever monthly payment was not made, it was an easily ascertainable sum certain, and question of entitlement of interest was thus controlled by this section providing for inclusion of interest where action is to recover liquidated debt on which interest is payable by contract, by law or by usage; and payment of interest should have been ordered; even if this section were not applicable, denial of interest could not be affirmed as exercise of equitable discretion. S. Kiser et al. v. H. Huger et al. (1974, 517 F.2d 1237, 170 U.S. App. D.C. 407).

§ 15-109. Interest on judgment for damages in contract or tort

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Equitable allowance

Where each member of plaintiff class acquired vested right to receive monthly pension payments at time his application was unlawfully denied, there was liquidated debt in sense that, whenever monthly payment was not made, it was an easily ascertainable sum certain, and question of entitlement of interest was thus controlled by statute providing for inclusion of interest where action is to recover liquidated debt on which interest is payable by contract, by law or by usage; and payment of interest should have been ordered; even if statute were not applicable, denial of interest could not be affirmed as exercise of equitable discretion. S. Kiser et al. v. H. Huger et al. (1974, 517 F.2d 1237, 170 U.S. App. D.C. 407).

Interest before judgment

Since the issue of prejudgment interest was not argued at trial of insured's claim to recover, under insurance policy, a stipulated business interruption loss for restaurant destroyed by fire, and since no evidence was submitted on that question, no award of interest would be allowed the insured except from the date of judgment. Emersons, Ltd., et ano. v. Max Wolman Company et ano. (1975, 388 F.Supp. 729; aff'd 530 F.2d 1093, — U.S. App. D.C. —).

Chapter 3.—ENFORCEMENT OF JUDGMENTS AND DECREES

§ 15-301. Definition and applicability

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment—Validity

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

Chapter 7.—FEES AND COSTS

§ 15-705. Exemption of District of Columbia and United States from fees, costs, and bonds

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Award of court costs to individual

Length of delay in implementing retroactive payment order of Commissioner of Department of Human Resources justifies an assessment of costs in form of a $25 filing fee against administrative officers in their official capacity once petition in nature of mandamus to compel agency action was dismissed as moot after officers tardily performed requested action. B. Dillard et ano. v. J. P. Yell-dell et al. (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 578).

§ 15-712. Waiver of prepayment of costs in Superior Court

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Indigency

Where petitioners were on welfare except for one whose income was only slightly above welfare standard, denial of their petitions to proceed in forma pauperis so as to be relieved from payment of costs with respect to their actions for either divorce or annulment deprived them not only of statutory rights but of right to due process under Constitution. R. A. Cabillo et al. v. R. Cabillo et al. (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A.2d 866).

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. § 16-302. Persons who may adopt

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Natural father

Where consent of mother had been given, director of social services had recommended that petition be granted, and there was no evidence of record indicating that proposed adoption would not be in best interests of child, court erred in denying petition of natural father to adopt illegitimate son. In the Matter of the Petition for Adoption: J. H. (D.C. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 874).

§ 16-304. Consent

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Natural father

Where consent of mother had been given, director of social services had recommended that petition be granted, and there was no evidence of record indicating that proposed adoption would not be in best interests of child, court erred in denying petition of natural father to adopt illegitimate son. In the Matter of the Petition for Adoption: J. H. (D.C. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 874).

Review

Findings of fact and conclusions of law were necessary in order to review dismissal of petition of maternal grandparents for adoption of minor grandchild, with respect to which the trial judge stated only that grandparents had not established the facts to justify the adoption and that withholding of consent by the natural father had not been contrary to the best interests of the child. Petition of G.F.C., Jr. and L.M.C. (D.C. App. 1974, 314 A. 2d 486).

Withdrawal of consent

Where consent to adoption was signed by natural father on August 30 and where father did not indicate desire to revoke consent until the following March 15, father was properly not permitted to withdraw his consent In re Adoption of S. E. D. (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 200).

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 16-308.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Race and religion

Where Social Services Administration did not oppose petition filed by husband and wife of different racial background for adoption of child born of parents of a similar mixed racial background and had full knowledge of facts regarding parties' race and religion and trial court also possessed such information and indicated its approval of the adoption subject to filing of amended adoption petition including racial and religious information which was required by this section and which prospective adoptive parents had refused to include, the adoption petition would be considered amended to conform to information already possessed by the trial court. In the Matter of V. M. DeF. et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 307 A. 2d 737).

§ 16-307. Investigation, report, and recommendation

* * * * *

(b) The investigation, report, and recommendation shall include:

(1) an investigation of:

(A) the truth of the allegations of the petition;

(B) the environment, antecedents,¹ and assets, if any, of the prospective adoptee, to determine whether he is a proper subject for adoption;

(C) the home of the petitioner, to determine whether the home is a suitable one for the prospective adoptee; and

(D) any other circumstances and conditions that may have a bearing on the proposed adoption and of which the court should have knowledge, including the existence and terms of a tentative adoption subsidy agreement entered into prior to the filing of the adoption petition under section 3 of the Act of July 26, 1892 (D.C. Code, sec. 3-115).

(2) a written report to the court of the findings of the investigation; and

(3) a recommendation to the court whether a final decree declaring the adoption prayed for in the petition should be immediately granted, or whether the court should grant an interlocutory decree granting temporary custody of the prospective adoptee to the petitioner, as hereinafter set forth.

The court may dispense with the investigation, report, and interlocutory decree provided for by this chapter when:

(1) the prospective adoptee is an adult; or

(2) the petitioner is a spouse of the natural parent of the prospective adoptee and the natural parent consents to the adoption or joins in the petition for adoption.

(b) After considering the petition, the consents, and such evidence as the parties and any other properly interested person may present, the court may enter a final or interlocutory decree of adoption when it is satisfied that:

(2) the petitioner is fit and able to give the prospective adoptee a proper home and education; and

(3) the adoption will be for the best interests of the prospective adoptee.

In determining whether the petitioner will be able to give the prospective adoptee a proper home and education, the court shall give due consideration to any assurance by the Commissioner that he will provide or contribute funds for the necessary maintenance or medical care of the prospective adoptee under an adoption subsidy agreement under section 3 of the Act of July 26, 1892 (D.C. NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal and error

Where consent of mother had been given, director of social services had recommended that petition be granted, and there was no evidence of record indicating that proposed adoption would not be in best interests of child, court erred in denying petition of natural father to adopt illegitimate son. In the Matter of the Petition for Adoption: J. H. (D.C. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 874).

§ 16-311. Sealing and inspection of records and papers

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Access to investigative report

It was not an abuse of discretion for trial court to deny natural father's oral request for access to sealed report on proposed adoption prepared by Social Rehabilitation Administration. In re Adoption of S. E. D. (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A.2d 200).

Chapter 5.—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT

SUBCHAPTER I.—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT GENERALLY

§ 16-501. Attachment before judgment; affidavit and bond

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment—Validity

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

Restraining order in lieu of attachment

Where wife who was separated from her husband obtained a temporary restraining order on October 2, 1972, barring withdrawal of any of husband's retirement funds in account at first bank, claim of second bank, which had made payments to third party pursuant to checks signed by husband that had been presented to second bank on September 28, September 29, and October 2, 1972, is inferior to wife's where such claim did not become a lien on the funds until delivery of second bank's attachment before judgment to United States marshal on October 11,

1972, and second bank is not entitled to payment until attachment first served was paid. L. O. Trigo v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 445).

§ 16-507. Property subject to attachment; liens; priorities

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Effective date of lien

Where wife who was separated from her husband obtained a temporary restraining order on October 2, 1972, barring withdrawal of any of husband's retirement funds in account at first bank, claim of second bank, which had made payments to third party pursuant to checks signed by husband that had been presented to second bank on September 28, September 29, and October 2, 1972, is inferior to wife's where such claim did not become a lien on the funds until delivery of second bank's attachment before judgment to United States marshal on October 11, 1972, and second bank is not entitled to payment until attachment first served was paid. L. O. Trigo v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 445).

SUBCHAPTER II.—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT AFTER JUDGMENT IN AID OF EXECUTION

§ 16-541. Definition and applicability

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment—Validity

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

SUBCHAPTER III.—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT OF WAGES, ETC.

§ 16-571. Definitions

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment—Validity

Where collection agency practices terminated by Court of Appeals as being an unauthorized practice of law had been long carried on without judicial disapproval and where judgments had been valid under law existing when they were rendered, decision terminating such practices would not be applied retroactively. Kelly Adjustment Co. v. R. Boyd et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 361).

§ 16-572. Attachment of wages; percentage limitations; priority of attachments

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

§ 16-575. Judgment against employer-garnishee for failure to pay percentages

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Failure to pay

Where judgment creditor served writ of attachment on judgment debtor's employer which answered one of the interrogatories in the writ by stating amount of judgment debtor's biweekly gross wages and biweekly disposable earnings, failure of employer to continue to remit percentages of employee's wages as prescribed on writ of attachment entitled judgment creditor to judgment against employer. Household Finance Corporation v. Training Research and Development, Inc. (D.C. App. 1974, 316 A.2d 850).

Chapter 6.—BONDS AND UNDERTAKINGS

§ 16-601. Undertaking in lieu of fiduciary's bond

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Default by principal

Where all of defaults on part of trustee occurred subsequent to period governed by auditor's report, guardian which moved to surcharge trustee and her surety for trustee's alleged misappropriation of trust funds of minor beneficiary was not required to seek to set aside the auditor's report. B. E. Schilt, Successor Guardian etc. v. M. B. Duvall, Trustee, et ano. (1973, 479 F. 2d 1228, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

Under statute providing for entry of judgment against trustee and surety upon default by principal in any of conditions of undertaking or bond, judgment may be entered, upon motion, in action in which undertaking is filed, as an alternative to an independent action. Id.

Where trustee of minor's estate failed to transfer assets to herself in her capacity as guardian as required by law and express order of court, but instead had trust funds withdrawn from trust account paid to her individually or to her credit in Totten trust, such was a misappropriation of trust funds and constituted prior defaults for which trustee's surety was liable. Id.

Chapter 7.—CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

§ 16-706. Enforcement of judgments; commitment upon non-payment of fine

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Imprisonment for nonpayment

Superior Court is authorized to order commitment for term as long as one year to enforce payment of court-ordered fine, provided purpose of such alternative is to compel payment of fine rather than to impose imprisonment for term longer than that specified for offense. G. A. Batres v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 585).

— Indigents

In view of rule that where defendant is indigent, jail sentence imposed as alternative to payment of fine should not exceed maximum prescribed for offense, indigent defendant who was convicted of tampering with an automobile would be remanded for resentencing, with alternative sentence in default of payment of $100 fine not to exceed ten days. G. A. Batres v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 585).

Chapter 9.—DIVORCE, ANNULMENT, SEPARATION, SUPPORT, ETC.

§ 16-904. Grounds for divorce, legal separation and annulment

CROSS REFERENCE

Service by publication on nonresidents and absent defendants, see § 13-336.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Pendency of defendant wife's divorce action in Maryland is not a bar to husband's District of Columbia divorce action, and stay of the District of Columbia action is discretionary as a matter of comity, which discretion was not abused in view of evidence that wife had not diligently prosecuted her action in Maryland. C. L. Archuleta v. J. E. Archuleta (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 157).

Counsel fees

Where attorney for defendant wife in divorce case was awarded a substantial fee for his services in trial court, and where husband appeared to be of limited means, wife's attorney would be awarded a fee of $200 for his representation on appeal. C. L. Archuleta v. J. E. Archuleta (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 157).

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence in husband's divorce action brought on ground of voluntary separation for one year is sufficient to warrant a finding of voluntary separation for the required period. C. L. Archuleta v. J. E. Archuleta (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 157).

Foreign decree

Divorce received in Mexico was void where neither party was domiciled in Mexico or even physically present there except for few hours in year divorce was obtained, and where absent spouse merely executed power of attorney, but entered no appearance in Mexican court. A. S. Clagett v. J. D. B. King (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 245).

Laches and estoppel

Where two couples obtained Mexican divorces which were invalid because none of four parties was domiciled in Mexico, two of them merely spent a few hours in that country in year when divorces were obtained and absent spouses merely executed powers of attorney but entered no appearance in Mexican court, husband, who later married the other's supposed ex-wife, was estopped from challenging Mexican decrees on jurisdictional grounds in suit to annul his second marriage. A. S. Clagett v. J. D. B. King (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 245).

Record on appeal

Duty rests primarily on the appellant to bring up an adequate record for review. D. Dulles v. P. Dulles (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A.2d 59; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1432, 415 U.S. 926).

An appellee has duty to insure adequate record so judgment in his favor may be upheld and may not abdicate this responsibility. Id.

Approval of Statement of Proceedings and Evidence lies with trial court, and it is that court's ultimate responsibility to bring about an adequate record for review. Id.

Where no reporter's transcript to trial was before the Court of Appeals and trial court certified to the court a Statement of Proceedings and Evidence which it expressly disapproved, Court of Appeals had no record on which to conduct its review of case and would remand case for further proceedings. Id.

Separation agreement

Where separation agreement recited that the parties had decided to settle all their present and future property rights and matters of custody, support and maintenance and that support payments to wife were to continue until she remarried or died, subsequent divorce had no effect on the continued validity of such agreement though the agreement said nothing about eventual divorce. R. L. Mohler v. P. A. Mohler (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A. 2d 737).

Where separation agreement was incorporated in decree of separate maintenance and support, wife's alleged unreasonable denial to husband of visitation with children would not be a matter of breach of contract but would be a matter of breach of the decree, and husband's remedy was not to unilaterally disregard the provisions of the decree by withholding support payments and by refusing to execute certain documents required for distribution of property. Id.

Where husband and wife entered into separation agreement which was incorporated in decree of separate maintenance and support, wife's alleged unreasonable denial to husband of visitation with his children would not constitute basis for revision by court of support payments provided in the agreement, absent contention that husband was no longer able to make the payments or that there had been substantial change in his financial situation. Id.

Matter of husband's liability for wife's attorney fees in connection with husband's motion that decree of separate maintenance and support be set aside and that court enter order determining the respective rights of the parties anew was within the sound discretion of the trial court. Id.

Voluntary separation

One of the essential elements that must be established by party moving for a divorce based upon voluntary separation is that separation was voluntary for the statutory period. A. M. Lee v. B. N. Lee (D.C. App. 1973, 307 A. 2d 757).

Wife who asked husband to return home for benefit of child but did not ask husband to return and resume marriage did not manifest a desire to resume marital relationship and thus did not exhibit the plain or open showing necessary to change characterization of their voluntary separation. Id.

§ 16-910. Dissolution of property rights; jurisdiction of court

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Apportionment of jointly held property

Dividing marital property equally among the parties who are both employed and who had contributed equally to purchase and upkeep of property was not an abuse of discretion. A. M. Lee v. B. N. Lee (D.C. App. 1973, 307 A. 2d 757).

Division of property

Neither this section which empowers the domestic relations branch of the Superior Court to apportion, upon entry of final decree of divorce, property which is jointly owned by the spouses, nor section 16-912 giving the Court broad discretion to award alimony and continue a wife's dower interest, empowers the Court to grant to wife any interest in property solely owned by husband. D. C. McGean v. H. O. McGean (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 384).

Evidence

Evidence of wife's financial contributions was properly excluded where it was not sought to be introduced on issue of alimony but on question of wife's entitlement to property. J. L. Sirianni v. J. F. Sirianni (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 101).

Jurisdiction—Over foreign property

Because real property whose ownership was in dispute in divorce action was located in Maryland, Superior Court is empowered to "determine" and "adjudicate" the couple's rights to the property, but has no power to "award" or "apportion" the foreign property. D. C. McGean v. H. O. McGean (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 384).

Property rights

In attempting to show existence of purchase money resulting in trust in favor of wife, payments by wife subsequent to conveyance, made in accordance with original intention and understanding established by initial payment, may be included in her beneficial interest, but any payments, which must go toward the purchase price, made subsequent to time of conveyance must be in fulfillment of an obligation to pay incurred by wife at or before time of conveyance if they are to be included in her beneficial interest; payments made voluntarily, or pursuant to an arrangement entered into after the conveyance, may not be included. D. C. McGean v. H. O. McGean (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 384).

Evidence that deed to Maryland property used by parties in divorce action as a homestead was in name of husband only, that he was solely liable on the mortgage, and that wife had contributed $400 to original purchase price of the property, does not justify holding that wife had a one-half interest in the property, whether based either on a finding of an agreement between the spouses that the property is jointly owned, or on a finding that wife is beneficiary of a resulting trust in that amount. Id.

Property settlement agreements

Even if communications between attorneys for parties constituted agreement that husband would give up specified property interests and that wife would expedite divorce action by not contesting it, such agreement was rescinded by mutual consent where husband breached purported agreement by insisting that his name be removed from mortgage, the case, which parties had originally intended to be heard on uncontested calendar, was then set for trial, and wife thereafter acted in manner inconsistent with agreement. J. L. Sirianni v. J. F. Sirianni (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 101).

— Statute of frauds

Husband's authorizing filing of pretrial praecipe and withdrawing countersuit in divorce proceeding commenced by wife is sufficient to bring oral agreement, which had been negotiated with consent of husband and wife, and which provided that title to marital estate was to be given to husband in return for cash payment and withdrawal of countersuit, outside statute of frauds, and thus trial court, after verifying consent of wife, was in error in refusing to hold that parties were bound by such agreement. C. J. Brown v. P. F. Brown (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 59).

§ 16-911. Alimony pendente lite; suit money; enforcement; custody of children

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Counsel fees

Court erred in making awards of $555 per month in alimony and child support and $1,300 for attorney's fees and suit expenses where court did not first determine amount of husband's net monthly income and where record showed that husband's gross income was $16,041 per year, husband owed over $8,000 to local creditors requiring payments of almost $410 per month, he had no source of income other than salary, owned no securities or real estate, and had only $600 in savings. D. H. Grasty v. C. A. Grasty (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A.2d 218).

Enforcement of future payments

Where husband entered into separation and property settlement with wife in May, 1971, departed for foreign country in April, 1972, and entered into consent order in February, 1973, which acknowledged arrearages and directed that he pay wife certain sum per month, injunction and temporary restraining order obtained by wife in October, 1972, barring withdrawal of husband's retirement funds from first bank, is sufficient to give wife priority over claim to husband's funds of second bank which had paid husband's checks on September 28, September 29, and October 2, 1972, and which obtained lien on the funds in first bank on October 11, 1972, since wife's claim included future support and alimony installments not yet accrued and owing. L. O. Trigo v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 445).

§ 16-912. Permanent alimony; enforcement; retention of dower

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Advisory opinions

It was beyond power of trial court to state in its judgment for absolute divorce that because the subject of alimony was not mentioned in the property settlement agreement, the wife was foreclosed from claiming alimony at the present or any time in the future, since court could not render opinion on issue that may or may not arise. E. R. Smith v. D. L. Smith (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 229).

Amount

Court erred in making awards of $555 per month in alimony and child support and $1,300 for attorney's fees and suit expenses where court did not first determine amount of husband's net monthly income and where record showed that husband's gross income was $16,041 per year, husband owed over $8,000 to local creditors requiring payments of almost $410 per month, he had no source of income other than salary, owned no securities or real estate, and had only $600 in savings. D. H. Grasty v. C. A. Grasty (D.C. App. 1973, 302 A.2d 218).

Award of alimony of $900 per month to wife was not plainly wrong or without substantial evidence to support it in divorce action, where in making such determination consideration was given to the 14-year duration of the marriage, to the parties' standard of living based on the husband's 1971 gross income of $67,000 earned as a practicing physician, to the future earning prospects of each, to wife's continuing medical problems, and to her inability to hold a job in "stressful situations." J. O. Bradt v. G. C. Bradt (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A.2d 445).

Enforcement of future payments

Where husband entered into separation and property settlement with wife in May, 1971, departed for foreign country in April, 1972, and entered into consent order in February, 1973, which acknowledged arrearages and directed that he pay wife certain sum per month, injunction and temporary restraining order obtained by wife in October, 1972, barring withdrawal of husband's retirement funds from first bank, is sufficient to give wife priority over claim to husband's funds of second bank which had paid husband's checks on September 28, September 29, and October 2, 1972, and which obtained lien on the funds in first bank on October 11, 1972, since wife's claim included future support and alimony installments not yet accrued and owing. L. O. Trigo v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 445).

Evidence

Evidence of wife's financial contributions was properly excluded where it was not sought to be introduced on issue of alimony but on question of wife's entitlement to property; and absence of any evidence offered to substantiate need for alimony constituted sufficient basis for denial of requested equitable relief, denominated "alimony in futuro." J. L. Sirianni v. J. F. Sirianni (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 101).

— Admissibility

Policy considerations against admission into evidence of compromise offers, which include encouraging settlement of disputes without trial and enabling a litigant to buy his peace without fear of future collateral consequences and subsequent litigation with third parties were not applicable to agreement by husband in divorce action to pay $850 per month alimony pendente lite, since payment of alimony during pendency of an action for divorce is a preliminary step in the statutory scheme governing disposition of marital suits which differs from an offer to compromise in order to settle a dispute and avoid litigation. J. O. Bradt v. G. C. Bradt (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A.2d 445).

Justiciability

Determination of right of wife to claim alimony can be made only when parties' rights may be immediately affected by such judicial decision. E. R. Smith v. D. L. Smith (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 229).

Property rights

Neither section 16-910 which empowers the domestic relations branch of the Superior Court to apportion, upon entry of final decree of divorce, property which is jointly owned by the spouses, nor this section giving the Court broad discretion to award alimony and continue a wife's dower interest, empowers the Court to grant to wife any interest in property solely owned by husband. D. C. McGean v. H. O. McGean (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 384).

Separation agreement

Original support order in divorce case is conclusive on the parties where there is no showing by husband of a material change since time of decree in his ability to pay or in the needs of the children. D. C. McGean v. H. O. McGean (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 384).

Support provisions of separation agreement incorporated in divorce decree were modified, and husband could not be held in contempt for failure to comply therewith, where in subsequent custody and support proceeding court indicated, with acquiescence of wife's counsel, that support matters would be left for determination after custody matter, and custody was later awarded to husband, with observation that support would not be awarded wife. L. A. Craig v. P. S. Craig (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A.2d 267).

Settlement agreement

Although parents agreed to $20 per week child support, action of trial court in awarding $25 per week child support, after hearing testimony as to needs of child, ability of husband to pay, and financial circumstances of parties, is within scope of trial court's discretion. C. J. Brown v. P. F. Brown (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 59).

§ 16-913. Alimony when divorce is granted on husband's application

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Amount of alimony

Where trial court in awarding alimony to wife in action granting divorce on husband's application merely stated that it found the husband to be able to underwrite an alimony award but made no mention of fact that wife required any amount for her support or how it arrived at amount granted as alimony, case would be remanded to trial court for a more detailed statement of reasons for the action taken. C. V. Wood v. M. K. Wood (D.C. App. 1973, 309 A.2d 103).

Award

Where trial court heard evidence on issue whether alimony should be granted, and amount thereof, it was not fatal for court to use "support" in lieu of "alimony." E. A. Mitchell, Jr. v. K. M. Mitchell (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 837).

It would have been better practice for court to specify how much of amount awarded was alimony for wife, but failure to do so was not fatal. Id.

Contempt

Where husband was not, in divorce order and judgment, punished for his disobedience of previous pendente lite orders, and where trial court imposed no remedial or coercive sanctions conditioned upon husband's obedience to contempt order, the order lacked the certainties, specificity and finality essential for judicial review, and provision of the order relating to wife's entitlement to permanent alimony, being inextricably a part of the contempt order, would have to share the infirmities of such order. J. W. Ashcraft v. C. T. Ashcraft (D.C. App. 1974, 318 A.2d 284).

§ 16-914. Retention of jurisdiction as to alimony and custody of children

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Ability to pay

Failure to make specific findings as to husband's ability to pay does not preclude affirmance of order modifying husband's monthly child support obligation, where issue of husband's ability to pay was not raised in trial court. D. A. Smith v. S. S. Smith (D.C. App. 1975, 344 A.2d 221).

Care and custody of children

In proceeding in which former husband sought to modify divorce decree, trial court's determination, which was based on evaluations by psychiatrist and intrafamily and neglect branch, interviews with children, and testimony and arguments of counsel for both husband and wife, who, pursuant to agreement entered into by parties, had previously had custody of children, that best interests of minor children would be better served by warding custody to husband is not abuse of discretion. K. S. Ross v. S. Ross (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 447).

Where trial court, in proceeding on motion by wife, after absolute divorce, seeking to increase support payments and to modify husband's visitation rights, sua sponte raised issue of custody of children and adjourned the proceedings pending preparation of report on social, psychiatric and other related evaluations of both parents by the director of social services, refusal at adjourned hearing to permit counsel for husband and wife to litigate contents of report or to permit cross-examination of the persons who authorized the report violated due process. J. L. Ziegler v. R. T. Ziegler (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A.2d 13).

Counsel fees

In view of husband's unilateral withholding of part of weekly support payments as required by separation agreement, the interests and welfare of children were clearly affected and in issue, and hence award of counsel fees was proper. R. L. Mohler v. P. A. Mohler (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A.2d 520).

Where legal custody of children had been placed in mother, and father by series of proceedings sought to change or modify their custody, and trial court found that mother's opposition to father's claim was for the best interests of the children, award of counsel fees to mother, not as counsel fees per se but as reimbursement to her for necessities for the minor children, was within jurisdiction of Domestic Relations Branch of Court of General Sessions. R. E. Paine, Jr. v. E. S. Paine (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A.2d 356).

In action instituted against or by mother with respect to custody of minor children, mother is not entitled to recover counsel fees from father if litigation was brought about by her own misconduct or instituted for her own selfish reasons, but court may require reimbursement when it finds that engagement of counsel by mother was necessary to protect the interests and welfare of the children. Id.

Discretion of court

In proceeding seeking modification of support decree, trial court did not abuse its discretion by refusing to modify alimony obligation of husband whose income was decreased as result of his election to voluntarily retire. J. C. Tydings v. G. E. Tydings (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 462).

Fair hearing

At hearing on divorced husband's motion to reduce alimony and child support, remarks of trial court referring to the thickness of the court jacket already existing in the case do not demonstrate such a bias on the part of the trial court as to deprive husband of a fair hearing. C. C. Kieffer v. B. D. Kieffer (D.C. App. 1975, 348 A.2d 887).

Findings of fact

Though findings of trial court, in denying motion to reduce alimony and child support, stating only that movant husband had failed to carry his burden of proof are less than what would normally be required, case will not be remanded where husband, who bore burden of proving a diminution of income since prior order in the case, admitted at hearing in the trial court and oral argument on appeal that his income has not changed since the prior order. C. C. Kieffer v. B. D. Kieffer (D.C. App. 1975, 348 A.2d 887).

Reduction of alimony

Where, following hearing in February 1974, divorced husband's motion for reduction in alimony and child support was denied despite his loss of a major client, and order entered at that time was not appealed, such order stands as a binding determination that as of February the existing alimony and support award was not so onerous as to require modification, and thus in October 1974 hearing on new motion for reduction, husband is limited to change in circumstances since February, and loss of said client cannot be placed in issue as showing change of circumstances. C. C. Kieffer v. B. D. Kieffer (D.C. App. 1975, 348 A.2d 887).

§ 16-916. Maintenance of wife and minor children; maintenance of former wife; maintenance of minor children; enforcement

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Ability to pay

In action for separate maintenance and support where husband is professional man with history of substantial earnings, extensive real estate holdings, and large cash flow of bank deposits, it is sufficient that trial court satisfy itself from sum total of evidence that husband has ability to maintain his wife and children in manner comparable to standard of living to which parties were accustomed at time of separation, and has refused to do so. D. Cefaratti, Jr. v. H. Cefaratti (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A.2d 142).

Abuse of discretion

Whether or not father receives, on motion to adjudicate father in contempt for failure to comply with most recent court order for payment of support for divorced wife and their child, credit for amounts paid in excess of initial court order but in keeping with provisions of separation agreement incorporating such initial court order is matter within discretion of trial court, and in view of court's findings that needs of minor child could not be satisfied by payments made in the past, denial of such credit is not an abuse of discretion. R. T. Foley v. S. A. Foley (D.C. App. 1975, 336 A.2d 549).

Amount of award

Award of $1,350 per month for separate maintenance and support of three minor children was within range of court's permissible discretion on evidence showing that husband was successful attorney whose income had fluctuated between $30,000 and $60,000 for several years. D. Cefaratti, Jr. v. H. Cefaratti (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 142).

Child support

Award of child support was a matter committed to trial court's discretion and included consideration of father's welfare and enforcement of his obligation commensurate with his financial ability to pay. C. J. Roberson v. J. Roberson (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 769).

Absent a showing of abuse, order requiring husband to pay $22.50 per week for support of child of tender years did not constitute abuse of discretion and would not be disturbed on appeal. Id.

Contempt

Finding that husband had wilfully disobeyed separate maintenance and support order was sufficient to support adjudication of contempt. D. Cefaratti, Jr. v. H. Cefaratti (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 142).

Counsel fees

Where divorced wife was 81 years of age, her income was $131 a month and, in order to meet her current living expenses, she had to borrow money from her son, so that if she were required to pay her counsel fees, her action to enforce court agreement requiring former husband to pay her $150 a week would hardly be worth the effort, award of counsel fees was not improper. R. Marlowe v. C. Marlowe (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 59).

Enforcement of future payments

Where husband entered into separation and property settlement with wife in May, 1971, departed for foreign country in April, 1972, and entered into consent order in February, 1973, which acknowledged arrearages and directed that he pay wife certain sum per month, injunction and temporary restraining order obtained by wife in October, 1972, barring withdrawal of husband's retirement funds from first bank, is sufficient to give wife priority over claim to husband's funds of second bank which had paid husband's checks on September 28, September 29, and October 2, 1972, and which obtained lien on the funds in first bank on October 11, 1972, since wife's claim included future support and alimony installments not yet accrued and owing. L. O. Trigo v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 445).

Income tax

That portion of order requiring husband to pay federal and state income tax on wife's maintenance and support payment was eliminated by reviewing court where there was nothing in record regarding extent of wife's estate or federal tax liability nor any foundation regarding state tax law which, even on approximation, might be reached as to what her tax liability might be and wife had been granted rather liberal monthly award for support and maintenance of herself and children. R. Foer v. E. Foer (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 339).

Jurisdiction

Temporary restraining order obtained by wife on October 2, 1972, barring any withdrawal of husband's retirement funds in account at first bank, is a sufficient seizure of the funds to give the court in rem jurisdiction so as to permit determination of who is entitled to the funds, in case where second bank made a claim against the funds, husband had entered into separation and property agreement with wife in May, 1971, providing for alimony and child support, husband resigned his government position and departed for a foreign country in April 1972, apparently intending to seek a permanent residence there, and husband made no further alimony or support payments after July, 1972. L. O. Trigo v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. (D.C. App. 1975, 338 A.2d 445).

Separate maintenance

When a wife leaves marital abode without just cause, her desertion is a bar to a claim for separate maintenance. C. J. Roberson v. J. Roberson (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 769).

Separation agreement

Where husband and wife agreed by separation agreement that court order concerning support for wife and child would remain in force, and order was incorporated in agreement, subsequent divorce decree does not abrogate the order, which continues in force except as modified by subsequent order. R. T. Foley v. S. A. Foley (D.C. App. 1975, 336 A.2d 549).

Wife is precluded from seeking support for herself in excess of that provided by separation agreement, but court is not precluded from increasing child support payments in excess of monthly sum provided for by the agreement, where court found that needs of child had increased and husband was able to pay. Id.

Separation agreement which relieved husband of obligation to pay $500 monthly if wife's gross income exceeded $840 monthly and that if she earned less than $840 husband should pay proportion of $500 equal to proportion of wife's "gross income" to $840 did not reflect intent and, where wife received disability retirement of $409, husband would be required to pay proportion of $500 equal to proportion $409 bore to wife's loss of earnings. P. M. Lewis v. D. Lewis (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A. 2d 720).

Support agreement—Modification

Fact that husband's financial circumstances had changed for the worse since execution of separation and property settlement agreement, which obligated husband to pay child support and related expenses but which was not incorporated into divorce decree, did not justify modification of child support provisions, in absence of overreaching, fraud, duress or concealment. S. S. Lanahan v. J. A. Nevius (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A. 2d 521).

— Specific performance

Although divorced husband's salary had been reduced from $60,000 to $14,000 a year as a result of stockholders' derivative suit brought by former wife, where husband failed to explain adequately why he could not liquidate his personal assets worth more than $500,000 or use them as collateral for a loan, trial court did not abuse its discretion in awarding specific performance of support agreement requiring him to pay $150 a week for support of wife. R. Marlowe v. C. Marlowe (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 59).

§ 16-918. Appointment of counsel; compensation

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attendance at hearing

An attorney appointed pursuant to statute providing that in all uncontested divorce cases, and in any other divorce or annulment case where the court deems it necessary or proper, a disinterested attorney shall be appointed by the court to enter his appearance for the defendant and actively defend his cause, must be present at a divorce fact-finding hearing, even if he has been unable to contact the defendant, and it was error to grant a divorce without a fact-finding hearing at which the appointed attorney was present. C. B. Campbell v. L. G. R. Campbell (D.C. App. 1974, 325 A. 2d 188).

§ 16-921. Validity of marriage, action to determine

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Estoppel

Where two couples obtained Mexican divorces which were invalid because none of four parties was domiciled in Mexico, two of them merely spent a few hours in that country in year when divorces were obtained and absent spouses merely executed powers of attorney but entered no appearance in Mexican court, husband, who later married the other's supposed ex-wife, was estopped from challenging Mexican decrees on jurisdictional grounds in suit to annul his second marriage. A. S. Clagett v. J. D. B. King (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 245).

Validity of foreign divorce

Divorce received in Mexico was void where neither party was domiciled in Mexico or even physically present there except for few hours in year divorce was obtained, and where absent spouse merely executed power of attorney, but entered no appearance in Mexican court. A. S. Clagett v. J. D. B. King (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 245).

Chapter 10.—PROCEEDINGS REGARDING INTRA-FAMILY OFFENSES

§ 16-1001. Definitions

Intra-family offense

Relationship between mother, her assaulted child, and the defendant, who had been living with the mother for about three years at the time of the conduct involved, was close enough to require the government to notify the Director of Social Services of the offenses, but the failure to notify did not compel dismissal of the case on defendant's appeal from his convictions, since it would be inappropriate to permit defense counsel to remain silent as to possible intrafamily treatment of the case and then readily achieve a dismissal on appeal. K. Robinson v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A. 2d 508).

§ 16-1002. Complaint of criminal conduct; referrals to Family Division

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Prosecution

Ultimate control of the handling of an intrafamily offense is vested in the United States attorney, and only in an extreme case might dismissal be the appropriate judicial response to a failure to notify the director of social services. K. Robinson v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 317 A. 2d 508).

SUBCHAPTER IV.—REAL PROPERTY FOR UNITED STATES

§ 16-1365. Appeal; deficiency judgment

Finality

Order of possession to allow the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority to conduct test boring in cemetery was subject to review by the Court of Appeals where, had such Court not stayed the order, the Authority would have taken possession and completed its borings before any review could have been had, leaving cemetery owner without remedy. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority v. One Parcel of Land, etc., et al. (1975, 514 F.2d 1350, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Chapter 15.—FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER

§ 16-1501. Definition; summons

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Judgment on pleadings

In action by landlord for possession of leased realty, where tenant contended that oral promise of five renewals of one-year lease was equivalent to a promise for the full five years and that it had made extensive renovations in reliance thereon, factual determination which was indispensable to a proper resolution of controversy could only be made on the basis of evidence adduced at trial and tenant should have been permitted to show what commitments were made by landlord's agent and nature and extent of its reliance thereon; motion for judgment on pleadings was improperly granted. Amberger & Wohlfarth, Inc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A.2d 460).

Jury trial

Since right to recover possession of real property was right ascertained and protected at common law, any party involved in suit under statutes of District of Columbia establishing summary procedure for recovery of possession of real property is entitled under Seventh Amendment to Constitution to trial by jury. D. Pernell v. Southall Realty (1974, 94 S.Ct. 1723, 416 U.S. 363; rev'g and rem'g 294 A.2d 490).

There is no right to a jury trial under District of Columbia statute in action for possession of leased land. Amberger & Wohlfarth, Inc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1973, 300 A.2d 460).

Laches

Equitable defense of laches was inapplicable to preclude landlord's possessory action, even though landlord had let many months go by after tenant had ceased to pay rent, where any prejudice suffered by tenant because of landlord's failure to act immediately after first default was largely self-imposed, in that as party to rental agreement tenant could not be ignorant of increasing financial obligations by reason of continued occupancy of premises and failure to pay rent. National Capital Housing Authority v. L. Douglas (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A.2d 55).

Stay of execution

All accrued and overdue rent must be unconditionally tendered before any stay of execution in summary possessory action can issue; thus, trial court has no discretion to stay judgment for summary possession for two years on condition that tenant pay accrued and overdue rent in monthly installments over such period in addition to such rent as would be regularly due by reason of continuing occupancy. National Capital Housing Authority v. L. Douglas (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A.2d 55).

CHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This chapter is referred to in sections 11-921, 11-2601.

Representation of indigents, see § 11-2601.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

This section providing that person committed, detained, confined or restrained from his lawful liberty "within the district" may petition for writ of habeas corpus does not restrict the jurisdiction of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in any way in which a federal district court located elsewhere is not restricted but is at most an additional jurisdictional statute relating to particular local problems, and its "within the district" language should be construed in pari materia with the "within their respective jurisdictions" of federal habeas corpus statute. J. E. McCall v. C. L. Swain et al. (1975, 510 F.2d 167, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

The phrase "within the district" in this section providing that person committed, detained, confined, or restrained from his lawful liberties within the District may petition for a writ of habeas corpus does not prohibit a court, whether the District Court or the Superior Court, located in the District from entertaining habeas corpus petitions from individuals confined within the District's correctional facilities located outside the District limits. Id.

Jurisdiction

With respect to habeas corpus petition of petitioner convicted for local crimes in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and confined in District of Columbia reformatory which was designated by the Attorney General as the appropriate facility in which the sentence was to be served, the director of the District of Columbia Department of Corrections and the superintendent of the reformatory were "federal officers or officials" within meaning of this section providing that petitions for writs of habeas corpus directed to federal officers and employees shall be filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. J. E. McCall v. C. L. Swain et al. (1975, 510 F.2d 167, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

Parties

With respect to inmates who were incarcerated in District of Columbia correctional complex in Virginia pursuant to sentences imposed by judges of United States District Court for the District of Columbia, warden of the complex was an "officer or employee of the United States" within this section permitting petitions for writs of habeas corpus directed to federal officers or employees to be heard by United States District Court for the District of Columbia and requiring all other such writs to be filed in the Superior Court for the District of Columbia. E. J. Fitzgerald et al. v. M. J. Sigler et al. (1974, 372 F. Supp. 889).

Director of District of Columbia Department of Corrections was not proper party to habeas corpus proceeding instituted in federal court by inmates who were incarcerated at District of Columbia correctional complex pursuant to sentences imposed by judges of United States District Court for the District of Columbia, as he was not the immediate custodian of the inmates. Id.

Place of confinement

Parolees who were incarcerated at District of Columbia correctional complex located in Virginia pursuant to sentences imposed by judges of United States District Court for the District of Columbia for offenses committed subsequent to their releases on parole were "confined" within District of Columbia within statute providing that a person must be committed, detained, confined or restrained within the District before writ of habeas corpus may be entertained in any court in the District. E. J. Fitzgerald et al. v. M. J. Sigler et al. (1974, 372 F. Supp. 889).

Prior proceedings

Prisoner's habeas corpus petition, in which he sought to compel Department of Corrections to recompute his sentence, was not barred by prior legal proceedings where, although prisoner had previously challenged computation of his sentence in two motions for reduction of sentence, record did not reveal that any other court had thoroughly considered issue raised in habeas corpus proceeding and United States Court of Appeals, in affirming second order denying prisoner's motion for reduction of sentence, did so without prejudice to appellant's filing of petition for habeas corpus in an appropriate forum. J. T. Cogdell v. D. C. Jackson et al. (1975, 397 F.Supp. 362).

Youthful offenders

While some delays are inevitable in the transfer of a youthful offender to a certified facility pursuant to the Federal Youth Corrections Act, such delay should not be permitted to become protracted, and if the length of an offender's detention in an adult facility becomes unduly long, the appropriate means of seeking relief is the submission to the trial court of a petition for habeas corpus. G. E. Austin v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 299 A.2d 545).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

To the extent that First Amendment activities may be infringed when the "child in need of supervision" provision of this section is applied, the court, in balancing such infringement against the right and duty of a parent to teach, control and discipline a child, is obliged to grant the parent greater latitude in the First Amendment area than is permitted the state. District of Columbia v. B. J. R. (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 58).

This section defining the term "child" as not including an individual 16 years of age or older who is charged by the United States Attorney with certain enumerated offenses is not unconstitutional either as an arbitrary legislative classification or as a negation of the presumption of innocence. United States v. J. T. Bland (1972, 472 F. 2d 1329, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 254, rev'g and remand'g 330 F. Supp. 34; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 2294, 412 U.S. 909).

Construction

Even if United States attorney's election to charge juvenile as an adult is made after he has been subject to jurisdiction of Family Division by reason of a delinquency petition filed against him, attorney's statutory authority to determine whether juvenile, who is 16 years of age and who is charged with certain enumerated offenses, should be charged as adult is unfettered by section 16-2307, which provides that, on corporation counsel's motion for transfer of child for trial as adult, transfer can be ordered only after a hearing to determine prospects for child's rehabilitation in Family Division. L. B. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 48).

The 1970 amendment of this section limiting jurisdiction, for juvenile offender purposes, to age of 16 when an individual of that age or beyond is charged by United States Attorney with enumerated violent crime was meant to work a substantive contraction of Juvenile Court's prior jurisdiction. B. L. Pendergrast v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 919).

The "child in need of supervision" provision of this section is not a criminal statute in the ordinary sense; it reinforces the authority of parents to control their children through the giving of reasonable and lawful commands, and it may be invoked when children repeatedly refuse to recognize their obligation to obey such commands. District of Columbia v. B. J. R. (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 58).

Custodian

Social worker was not a "custodian" in whom custody of child involved in juvenile proceeding could be placed pending fact-finding hearing; thus, order placing child in social worker's custody pending detention hearing was void and could be disobeyed with impunity and social worker's refusal to comply with order was not punishable as contempt. In the Matter of I. E. Banks (D.C. App. 1973, 306 A. 2d 270).

Delinquent act

Under statute which gives Family Division of the Superior Court jurisdiction over a child charged with a delinquent act, including an offense under the law of the District of Columbia or of a state or under federal law, act charged as a violation of a federal statute comes within the jurisdiction of the Family Division (Juvenile Branch) of the Superior Court. District of Columbia v. P. L. M. (D.C. App. 1974, 325 A. 2d 600).

Dependency determination under prior law

Where nine-year-old girl had previously been adjudged a "dependent child," in that her natural mother had, when the child was four days old, consented to commitment of the child to the Child Welfare Division of the Department of Public Welfare, the child continued in that status, and there is no necessity for the trial court to make a "neglected child" finding in determining whether custody of the child should go to the natural mother or the child's foster parents with whom the child had lived virtually all her life. In the Matter of N. M. S. (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 924).

Due process

Decision vested in prosecutor whether juveniles, who are 16 years of age and who are charged with certain enumerated offenses, should be charged as adults is not subject to judicial review or to requirements of due process, at least in absence of particular circumstances of abuse of discretion. L. B. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 48).

"Child in need of supervision" provision of this section is not unconstitutionally vague; it gave appellee-child adequate warning that to abscond from home five times in four years, three of those times within the nine months preceding the filing of the petition alleging the appellee to be a child in need of supervision, would subject her to the sanctions provided for a child who is habitually disobedient of the reasonable and lawful commands of her parents. District of Columbia v. B. J. R. (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 58).

Exercise of the discretion vested by statute in United States Attorney to charge a person 16 years of age or older with certain enumerated offenses, thereby initiating that person's prosecution as an adult, is not violative of due process. United States v. J. T. Bland (1972, 472 F. 2d 1329, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 254, rev'g and remand'g 330 F. Supp. 34; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 2294, 412 U.S. 909).

While there may be circumstances in which courts would be entitled to review the exercise of prosecutorial discretion as to whether a person should be charged as a juvenile or as an adult, those circumstances would necessarily include the deliberate presence of such factors as race, religion or other arbitrary classification. Id.

Exercise of discretion by the United States Attorney under statute, in part providing that the term "child" does not include an individual 16 years of age or older who is charged by the United States Attorney with certain enumerated offenses, is not violative of due process on theory that it denies the individual charged the presumption of innocence. Id.

Equal protection

Fact that, in federal jurisdictions other than that of the District of Columbia, juveniles who are charged with violation of federal law and who opt for treatment as an adult have the right of trial by jury does not mean that statute giving Superior Court of the District of Columbia primary jurisdiction over juvenile who is alleged to be delinquent, even though that delinquency is based on violation of federal law, denies equal protection. District of Columbia v. P. L. M. (D.C. App. 1974, 325 A. 2d 600).

Jurisdiction

Fact that verdict of not guilty of armed robbery was returned, in proceeding in which 16-year-old accused was charged as an adult, does not require that verdicts of guilty of robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon be certified to Family Division for disposition. L. B. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 48).

Superior Court may assume jurisdiction over a juvenile charged with violation of federal law whether or not the United States district court waives its jurisdiction under a "surrender statute." District of Columbia v. P. L. M. (D.C. App. 1974, 325 A. 2d 600).

Where juvenile is alleged to be delinquent on basis of violation of federal charge, the Family Division (Juvenile Branch) of the Superior Court, has primary, but not exclusive, jurisdiction over the matter. Id.

Until it is determined whether a person is a "child" within statutory definition, there is no family court jurisdiction; therefore, a fortiori, there can be no waiver of jurisdiction. United States v. J. T. Bland (1972, 472 F. 2d 1329, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 254, rev'g and remand'g 330 F. Supp. 34; cert. denied 93 S.Ct. 2294, 412 U.S. 909).

§ 16-2302. Transfer of criminal matters to Family Division

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRESENT LAW

Construction

At time of juvenile's violation of narcotics laws in 1969, District of Columbia statute (§ 11-1552) relating to transfer of case to juvenile court from other courts required that United States District Court for the District of Columbia transfer case to Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia. United States v. S. Williams (1972, 351 F. Supp. 223).

Although no jurisdiction was obtained by United States District Court for District of Columbia over juvenile who violated narcotics laws in 1969, District of Columbia Court Reorganization Act of 1970, if it were applicable, could dictate a different result. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Jurisdiction

Federal district court lacked jurisdiction to hear 1969 case against juvenile, and order committing juvenile to custody of Attorney General would be vacated. United States v. S. Williams (1972, 351 F. Supp. 223).

§ 16-2305. Petition; contents; amendment

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas corpus

Proper remedy for minors contending that, after their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" had been invalidated, they were improperly confined in facility in which they could not have been kept except for such adjudication, was appropriate action in District of Columbia Superior Court, not petition for writ of habeas corpus in federal district court. I. Brown et al. v. J. Yeldell et al. (1973, 487 F. 2d 1210, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

Where petitioners could suffer no adverse collateral consequences due to their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" because it had been invalidated by District of Columbia Court of Appeals, and where two-year commitments ordered as result of that adjudication had elapsed, petitioners suffered no present harm cognizable by writ of habeas corpus. Id.

Petition—Adequacy

Petition given to juvenile satisfies due process requirement of adequate notice applicable to juvenile proceedings even though it is claimed that the petition is defective for failing to allege ownership of the premises which he allegedly burglarized. In the Matter of M. D. J. (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 733).

— Amendment

Permitting government to amend count of petition filed in Juvenile Branch of Family Division to change name of robbery victim was within trial court's discretion and was not prejudicial where defense was alibi. In the Matter of W. K. (D.C. App. 1974, 323 A.2d 442).

Change in name of victim in petition filed in Juvenile Division of Family Court is not tantamount to charging a new offense. Id.

Superior Court has discretion to permit amendment of juvenile delinquency petition, which alleged violation of federal law, so as to allege violation of District law. In the Matter of J. R. G. (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A.2d 529).

Government in juvenile delinquency proceeding may move to amend petition at any time before conclusion of fact-finding hearing. Id.

— Dismissal

Superior Court's use of the phrase "social reasons" alone did not fulfill the requirement of Juvenile Court

Rule that the court, upon request of the corporation counsel, state why it was in the interests of justice and welfare of the child that delinquency petition be dismissed; moreover, effective appellate review would be impossible without a specific understanding of the reasoning applied by a trial court in reaching its conclusion that a juvenile petition should be dismissed without a fact finding hearing or an ultimate finding. District of Columbia v. D. E. P. (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A.2d 831).

Where focus of counsel was never directed to precise issue of whether petitions alleging delinquency should be dismissed and proceedings terminated in interests of justice and juveniles' welfare, government must be given opportunity to address itself to trial court as whether such considerations justified dismissal of the petitions; thus orders of dismissal would be vacated and cases remanded for further proceedings. In the Matter of R. L. R. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A.2d 226).

Pleading

Rationale that purpose of pleading is to facilitate proper decision on merits has special significance in juvenile court proceedings. In the Matter of J. R. G. (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A.2d 529).

Prosecution

Question of whether corporation counsel or United States attorney should conduct proceedings charging juvenile with act of delinquency was not properly certifiable since juvenile was not involved in criminal prosecution. In the Matter of M. W. F. (D.C. App. 1973, 312 A.2d 302).

§ 16-2306. Service of summons and petition

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas corpus

Proper remedy for minors contending that, after their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" had been invalidated, they were improperly confined in facility in which they could not have been kept except for such adjudication, was appropriate action in District of Columbia Superior Court, not petition for writ of habeas corpus in federal district court. I. Brown et al. v. J. Yeldell et al. (1973, 487 F. 2d 1210, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

Where petitioners could suffer no adverse collateral consequences due to their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" because it had been invalidated by District of Columbia Court of Appeals, and where two-year commitments ordered as result of that adjudication had elapsed, petitioners suffered no present harm cognizable by writ of habeas corpus. Id.

§ 16-2307. Transfer for criminal prosecution

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Even if United States attorney's election to charge juvenile as an adult is made after he has been subject to jurisdiction of Family Division by reason of a delinquency petition filed against him, attorney's statutory authority to determine whether juvenile, who is 16 years of age and who is charged with certain enumerated offenses, should be charged as adult is unfettered by this section, which provides that, on corporation counsel's motion for transfer of child for trial as adult, transfer can be ordered only after a hearing to determine prospects for child's rehabilitation in Family Division. L. B. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 48).

Hearing

Although 17-year-old defendant was initially petitioned as a juvenile in Family Division on a charge of assault with intent to kill, a transfer hearing was not required before defendant, following death of victim some two months after the assault, could be charged by the United States Attorney as an adult with second-degree murder. B. L. Pendergrast v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 919).

Waiver

Until it is determined whether a person is a "child" within statutory definition, there is no family court jurisdiction; therefore, a fortiori, there can be no waiver of jurisdiction. United States v. J. T. Bland (1972, 472 F. 2d 1329, 153 U.S. App. D.C. 254, rev'g and remand'g 330 F. Supp. 34; cert. denied 93 S.Ct. 2294, 412 U.S. 909).

§ 16-2308. Initial appearance

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas corpus

Proper remedy for minors contending that, after their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" had been invalidated, they were improperly confined in facility in which they could not have been kept except for such adjudication, was appropriate action in District of Columbia Superior Court, not petition for writ of habeas corpus in federal district court. I. Brown et al. v. J. Yeldell et al. (1973, 487 F. 2d 1210, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

Where petitioners could suffer no adverse collateral consequences due to their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" because it had been invalidated by District of Columbia Court of Appeals, and where two-year commitments ordered as result of that adjudication had elapsed, petitioners suffered no present harm cognizable by writ of habeas corpus. Id.

§ 16-2310. Criteria for detaining children

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Custodian

Social worker was not a "custodian" in whom custody of child involved in juvenile proceeding could be placed pending fact-finding hearing; thus, order placing child in social worker's custody pending detention hearing was void and could be disobeyed with impunity and social worker's refusal to comply with order was not punishable as contempt. In the Matter of I. E. Banks (D.C. App. 1973, 306 A. 2d 270).

§ 16-2312. Detention or shelter care hearing; intermediate disposition

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Provisions of this section that, upon objection of child or his parent, a judge who conducted detention hearing shall not conduct a fact-finding hearing on petition operate to assure that judge who must make ultimate finding of guilty or not guilty is not predisposed toward guilt by having been exposed to testimony which may not be offered or may be inadmissible in fact-finding hearing. In the Matter of W. N. W. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 55).

Custodian

Social worker was not a "custodian" in whom custody of child involved in juvenile proceeding could be placed pending fact-finding hearing; thus, order placing child in social worker's custody pending detention hearing was void and could be disobeyed with impunity and social worker's refusal to comply with order was not punishable as contempt. In the Matter of I. E. Banks (D.C. App. 1973, 306 A. 2d 270).

Reasons for detention

Reasons for entry of detention order phrased in statutory language which are ultimate conclusions are insufficient. In the Matter of M. L. DeJ. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 834).

Mere finding that order detaining juvenile to protect person of others is necessary solely because of "nature and circumstances of pending charge," standing alone, would not constitute sufficient grounds for detention. Id.

Recuse

Fact that trial judge had conducted suppression hearing concerning juvenile's waiver of Fifth and Sixth Amendment rights before he made a confession and that juvenile had testified at that hearing but did not testify at fact-finding hearing does not require trial judge to recuse himself from the fact-finding hearing which followed hearing on motion to suppress. In the Matter of M. D. J. (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 733).

Even though better course would have been for trial judge who conducted prior detention hearing on sodomy charge against 17-year-old defendant and heard prejudicial evidence regarding defendant's history of committing sexual attacks to recuse himself from subsequent fact-finding hearing on assault charge against defendant, where record revealed no untoward conduct by judge during fact-finding hearing and where there was no defense testimony and defendant's confession was received in evidence without objection, judge's decision not to recuse himself does not require reversal. In the Matter of W. N. W. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 55).

Where neither juvenile nor his attorney, both of whom had been present at pretrial detention hearing, requested trial judge to recuse himself, trial judge did not err in failing to recuse himself even though he had conducted the fact-finding hearing on the petition. In the Matter of V. L. M. (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 818).

§ 16-2314. Consent decree

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Dismissal

Superior Court's use of the phrase "social reasons" alone did not fulfill the requirement of Juvenile Court Rule that the court, upon request of the corporation counsel, state why it was in the interests of justice and welfare of the child that delinquency petition be dismissed; moreover, effective appellate review would be impossible without a specific understanding of the reasoning applied by a trial court in reaching its conclusion that a juvenile petition should be dismissed without a fact finding hearing or an ultimate finding. District of Columbia v. D.E.P. (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A. 2d 831).

Where focus of counsel was never directed to precise issue of whether petitions alleging delinquency should be dismissed and proceedings terminated in interests of justice and juveniles' welfare, government must be given opportunity to address itself to trial court as whether such considerations justified dismissal of the petitions; thus orders of dismissal would be vacated and cases remanded for further proceedings. In the Matter of R.L.R. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 226).

§ 16-2316. Conduct of hearings; evidence

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Confessions

Testimony by police officer that offer of immunity was made to juvenile was not made with respect to the instant case but rather with respect to past conduct sustains finding that juvenile's inculpatory statements were not based upon improper inducement by police officers. In the Matter of M. D. J. (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 733).

Court of Appeals rejected so-called "per se" rule arbitrarily holding any juvenile's statement involuntary absent presence of a parent or counsel and recognized that some juveniles who commit criminal acts were essentially as sophisticated, or more so, in such matters as many just over the age limit. In the Matter of J.F.T. (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A.2d 322).

Record indicating that consideration was given to juvenile's degree of experience with law enforcement, history of juvenile's refusal to answer questions during a previous arrest, willingness of juvenile to answer "some" questions, and fact that mother, though absent from police station, was told that she could be with her son during critical period and, within two hours, was advised of his place of detention and date of court appearance provided an adequate basis for concluding that juvenile's custodial confession in absence of his mother was the product of a knowing and intelligent waiver of relevant rights and was voluntarily given. Id.

Where officers continued to interrogate juvenile after juvenile indicated he wanted counsel, confession made by juvenile and evidence obtained as result of such confession were inadmissible in delinquency proceeding. In the Matter of R. A. H. (D.C. App. 1974, 314 A. 2d 133).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where following break up of altercation near front of tavern police officer was informed by unidentified person that one of the three participants, who went into tavern, had a gun, and on entering tavern officer observed four persons seated in a booth, one of whom answered description which had been given him, the officer had a duty to investigate and, in the process, to determine preliminarily whether described individual was armed; thus, pistol, which was observed on floor of booth, was admissible in delinquency proceeding. District of Columbia v. M.E.H. (D.C. App. 1973, 312 A. 2d 561).

Habeas corpus

Proper remedy for minors contending that, after their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" had been invalidated, they were improperly confined in facility in which they could not have been kept except for such adjudication, was appropriate action in District of Columbia Superior Court, not petition for writ of habeas corpus in federal district court. I. Brown et al. v. J. Yeldell et al. (1973, 487 F. 2d 1210, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

Where petitioners could suffer no adverse collateral consequences due to their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" because it had been invalidated by District of Columbia Court of Appeals, and where two-year commitments ordered as result of that adjudication had elapsed, petitioners suffered no present harm cognizable by writ of habeas corpus. Id.

Immunity

Statutory grant of immunity against the use "in any criminal case" of testimony which person claiming privilege against self-incrimination has been compelled to give extended to proceedings in juvenile court; thus, juvenile who claimed privilege against self-incrimination could be compelled to testify before grand jury despite contention that statutory grant of immunity was not co-extensive with scope of her privilege against self-incrimination. In re Grand Jury Proceedings (1974, 491 F. 2d 42, 160 U.S. App. D.C. 249).

Miranda rights

Evidence that juvenile had five prior arrests and that, on the occasion of each arrest, he had been informed of his rights and testimony that he understood each individual right sustains finding that juvenile understood constitutional rights when they were read to him on his sixth arrest. In the Matter of M. D. J. (D.C. App. 1975, 346 A.2d 733).

Prosecution

Question of whether corporation counsel or United States attorney should conduct proceedings charging juvenile with act of delinquency was not properly certifiable since juvenile was not involved in criminal prosecution. In the Matter of M.W.F. (D.C. App. 1973, 312 A. 2d 302).

§ 16-2317. Hearings, findings; dismissal

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Delinquency adjudication

Adjudication of delinquency was warranted with respect to juvenile found carrying a pistol without a license. In the Matter of E. F. B. (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 95).

Dependency determination under prior law

Where nine-year-old girl had previously been adjudged a "dependent child," in that her natural mother had, when the child was four days old, consented to commitment of the child to the Child Welfare Division of the Department of Public Welfare, the child continued in that status, and there is no necessity for the trial court to make a "neglected child" finding in determining whether custody of the child should go to the natural mother or the child's foster parents with whom the child had lived virtually all her life. In the Matter of N. M. S. (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 924).

Dismissal

Superior Court's use of the phrase "social reasons" alone did not fulfill the requirement of Juvenile Court Rule that the court, upon request of the corporation counsel, state why it was in the interests of justice and welfare of the child that delinquency petition be dismissed; moreover, effective appellate review would be impossible without a specific understanding of the reasoning applied by a trial court in reaching its conclusion that a juvenile petition should be dismissed without a fact finding hearing or an ultimate finding. District of Columbia v. D.E.P. (D.C. App. 1973, 311 A. 2d 831).

Where focus of counsel was never directed to precise issue of whether petitions alleging delinquency should be dismissed and proceedings terminated in interests of justice and juveniles' welfare, government must be given opportunity to address itself to trial court as whether such considerations justified dismissal of the petitions; thus orders of dismissal would be vacated and cases remanded for further proceedings. In the Matter of R.L.R. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 226).

Double jeopardy

Where Family Division's sua sponte declaration of mistrial in fact-finding hearing on petition charging juvenile with robbery was not dictated by manifest necessity, retrial of juvenile is barred by constitutional prohibition on double jeopardy. District of Columbia v. I. P. (D.C. App. 1975, 335 A. 2d 224).

Juvenile whose counsel had secured oral ruling of acquittal on charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, had waived any potential double jeopardy claim when his trial counsel acquiesced in continuation of hearing and reopening of court when registered owner of vehicle appeared in courtroom. In the Matter of J. A. H. (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 825).

Even if double jeopardy claim had not been waived by defense counsel's failure to object to reopening following oral granting of motion for judgment of acquittal, such reopening would not have placed juvenile in double jeopardy since oral ruling was not equivalent to a final, written judgment. Id.

For double jeopardy purposes, a trial or fact-finding hearing does not terminate until the actual entry of judgment; until then, the court is free to reconsider its prior rulings. Id.

Habeas corpus

Proper remedy for minors contending that, after their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" had been invalidated, they were improperly confined in facility in which they could not have been kept except for such adjudication, was appropriate action in District of Columbia Superior Court, not petition for writ of habeas corpus in federal district court. I. Brown et al. v. J. Yeldell et al. (1973, 487 F. 2d 1210, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

Where petitioners could suffer no adverse collateral consequences due to their adjudication as "children in need of supervision" because it had been invalidated by District of Columbia Court of Appeals, and where two-year commitments ordered as result of that adjudication had elapsed, petitioners suffered no present harm cognizable by writ of habeas corpus. Id.

Record on appeal

Where no judgment had been included in record of delinquency proceeding and, instead, a handwritten entry had been made on case jacket stating, "Respondent found guilty," so that, without recourse to transcript, it was not possible to know precise findings and adjudication, rule providing that judgment "shall set forth the plea, the findings, the adjudication, and the disposition of order" was not complied with and case was subject to being remanded for compliance. In the Matter of J. F. T. (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 322).

§ 16-2318. Order of adjudication noncriminal

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal

Words "charged with a criminal offense" as used in section 23-104 providing that District of Columbia may appeal a suppression order entered before trial of a person charged with a criminal offense includes the term "delinquent act." District of Columbia v. M. E. H. (D.C. App. 1973, 312 A. 2d 561).

Prosecution

Question of whether corporation counsel or United States attorney should conduct proceedings charging juvenile with act of delinquency was not properly certifiable since juvenile was not involved in criminal prosecution. In the Matter of M. W. F. (D.C. App. 1973, 312 A. 2d 302).

§ 16-2320. Disposition of child who is neglected, delinquent, or in need of supervision

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Custody of dependent child

Where nine-year-old girl has previously been adjudged a "dependent child," the trial court has the authority under its continuing jurisdiction over the child to hear and determine the question of whether custody of the child should be given to the natural mother, who, when the child was four days old, consented to commitment of the child to the Child Welfare Division of the Department of Public Welfare, or to the foster parents with whom the child had lived virtually all her life, and did not err in deciding that, subject to further order of the court, the child should remain with the foster parents. In the Matter of N. M. S. (D.C. App. 1975, 347 A.2d 924).

Trial court was correct in holding that the best interest of the child was the controlling factor in its decision as to whether to give custody of the child to her natural mother, who, when the child was four days old, consented to commitment of the child to the Child Welfare Division of the Department of Public Welfare, or to the foster parents with whom the child had lived virtually all her life, despite contention that court ignored the interest of the mother in its decision. Id.

§ 16-2327. Interlocutory appeals

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

Juvenile seeking summary reversal of order detaining him pending trial on charges of carnal knowledge and assault had burden of demonstrating that merits of claim so clearly warranted relief as to justify expedited action. In the Matter of M. L. DeJ. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 834).

Jurisdiction

Even though juvenile did not file notice of appeal from order denying application to reconsider order detaining him pending trial within two-day period provided for interlocutory appeals, appellate court had jurisdiction to review order by viewing it as final order, as to which such two-day limitation did not apply. In the Matter of M. L. DeJ. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 834).

Record on appeal

Where record on appeal from order detaining juvenile pending trial on charges of carnal knowledge and assault was insufficient to indicate factors relied upon by the court in answering order, case would be remanded to Superior Court with directions that judge file statements of reasons for order or reconsider same. In the Matter of M. L. DeJ. (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 834).

§ 16-2328. Finality of judgments; appeals; transcripts

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeals—Mootness

Appeal from conviction in Family Division of the Superior Court of assault with intent to commit murder was not moot because defendant, subsequent to hearing, was convicted as an adult in another criminal case and had been discharged from jurisdiction of Family Division of Superior Court, where there was possibility of adverse collateral effects in later criminal proceedings resulting from use of juvenile records which included findings in assault prosecution. In re S. W. B. (D.C. App. 1974, 321 A. 2d 564).

Finality of hearings

Where, following hearing in February 1974, divorced husband's motion for reduction in alimony and child support was denied despite his loss of a major client, and order entered at that time was not appealed, such order stands as a binding determination that as of February the existing alimony and support award was not so onerous as to require modification, and thus in October 1974 hearing on new motion for reduction, husband is limited to change in circumstances since February, and loss of said client cannot be placed in issue as showing change of circumstances. C. C. Kieffer v. B. D. Kieffer (D.C. App. 1975, 348 A.2d 887).

§ 16-2334. Sealing of records

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Court's authority to seal juvenile records is not founded on doctrine of parens patriae; Congress has limited authority of the court to seal juvenile records to situations where requirements of this section are satisfied. In the Matter of R. T. (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 156).

SUBCHAPTER II.—PATERNITY PROCEEDINGS

§ 16-2342. Time of bringing complaint

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

In proceeding on petitions to establish paternity and to provide support for children who were 12 and 10 years of age, mother's testimony that defendant had given her money over the years as she needed it, that, on one specific date within one year from date of filing petitions, defendant had given her $10 for visit to clinic (apparently occasioned by her cardiac condition) and that defendant knew that she never asked for money for herself was insufficient to support jurisdictional finding that defendant had contributed to support of children within one year prior to filing of petitions. R. D. Lindsay v. District of Columbia ex rel. K. Lindsay et ano. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 211).

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

§ 17-305. Scope of review

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

In proceeding on petitions to establish paternity and to provide support for children who were 12 and 10 years of age, mother's testimony that defendant had given her money over the years as she needed it, that, on one specific date within one year from date of filing petitions, defendant had given her $10 for visit to clinic (apparently occasioned by her cardiac condition) and that defendant knew that she never asked for money for herself was insufficient to support jurisdictional finding that defendant had contributed to support of children within one year prior to filing of petitions. R. D. Lindsay v. District of Columbia ex rel. K. Lindsay et ano. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 211).

Questions of fact

Even though police officer's specific testimony was that defendant had been looking "in the direction of the parked cars," inference drawn by trial court from totality of testimony adduced on motion to suppress is not plainly wrong or without evidence to support it and, accordingly, reviewing court would accept conclusion that defendant had been "looking into parked cars." R. B. Sanders v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A.2d 373).

Findings of fact by trial court are conclusive on appeal unless plainly wrong or without evidence to support them. Lee Washington, Inc., etc. v. Washington Motor Truck Transportation Employees Health and Welfare Trust (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 604).

Scope of review

Where trial court treated motion to dismiss in effect as one for summary judgment and disposed of motion pursuant to rule that adverse party must set forth specific facts showing a genuine issue for trial, review by Court of Appeals is limited to determining whether trial court properly concluded that appellant failed to set forth specific facts demonstrating genuine issue for trial, and if that conclusion is proper, whether trial court correctly applied relevant statute to undisputed facts. J. H. Hill v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A. 2d 867).

PART III

DECEDENTS' ESTATES AND FIDUCIARY RELATIONS

Part III, consisting of Titles 18 to 21, was enacted by Pub. L. 89-183, § 1, Sept. 14, 1965, 79 Stat. 685, effective Jan. 1, 1966

TITLE 19. DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION.

TITLE 21. FIDUCIARY RELATIONS AND THE MENTALLY ILL.

TITLE 18.—WILLS AND PROBATE OF WILLS

Chapter 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 18-102. Capacity to make a will

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Capacity to make will

Trial court's determination that testator, who had sufficient clearness of mind and memory to know in general the nature and extent of his property and names and identity, of the objects of his bounty and his relation towards them, who corrected misspellings and page number changes on will and initialed such changes and who manifested concern for his estate and surviving spouse, had requisite testamentary capacity to execute a valid will was not erroneous. J. W. Phelps v. R. S. Goldberg (Md. Ct. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 683).

There is a presumption in favor of testamentary capacity. In re Estate of P. L. Weir (1973, 475 F. 2d 988, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 404).

Fact that testator made "unnatural disposition" of his estate was not, in and of itself, indication of testamentary incapacity. Id.

Sound and disposing mind

Under this section, the "sound and disposing mind" necessary to make valid will means that the testator must have had, at the time of the execution of the instrument, sufficient mental capacity to dispose of his property or estate with judgment and understanding, considering the nature and character of the estate as well as the relative claims of different persons who would be the natural objects of his bounty. In re Estate of P. L. Weir (1973, 475 F. 2d 988, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 404).

Chapter 5.—PROBATE OF WILLS

§ 18-504. Probate; waiver of notice; proof of execution

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

Once proponent of will has met his initial burden and will has been admitted to probate and record, subsequent caveators must bear ultimate burden of proof as to execution. C. C. Curtis v. M. B. Curtis (1973, 481 F. 2d 549, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 374).

Where will had been admitted to probate, caveator who subsequently brought action challenging its validity on ground that signature was a forgery, had burden of proof as to that issue. Id.

Burden of going forward, in will contest originating after initial admission to probate, shifts once record of that admission is introduced. Id.

Caveatee is entitled to rely on record of probate as prima facie proof of due execution of will. Id.

Proof

Even in absence of a challenge or caveat, will may not be admitted to probate and record except on formal proof, presented by will's proponent, of proper execution. C. C. Curtis v. M. B. Curtis (1973, 481 F. 2d 549, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 374).

§ 18-507. Admission to probate

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Jurisdiction

Where life beneficiary under will is opposing attempted will probate on ground that testatrix had in fact died resident of and domiciled in Virginia and that Superior Court is therefore without jurisdiction to probate will, and allegedly most of testatrix' personal property was located in Virginia, such allegations placed jurisdiction of court in question and it is duty of Superior Court, of its own motion, to take notice of possible lack of jurisdiction, even if beneficiary has no standing to raise issue. In re Estate of Dapolito (D.C. App. 1975, 331 A.2d 327).

Where appellant is specific devisee and life beneficiary of testamentary trust under will, and as such has legally cognizable interest in taking her interest free from potentially successful collateral attacks in future such as lack of jurisdiction in court rendering judgment, appellant has standing, in proceeding brought to probate will, to contest admission of will to probate in Superior Court. Id.

§ 18-508. Caveat; will not to be probated while issues pending

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admission to probate

District Court properly admitted documents to probate during a period in which no caveat was outstanding, that is, after first caveat had been dismissed with caveator's consent, and before second caveat was filed, where Court had available sworn statements of witnesses to will, and record showed that required notice had been given. In re Estate of P. Himmelfarb (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 477).

Burden of proof

Once proponent of will has met his initial burden and will has been admitted to probate and record, subsequent caveators must bear ultimate burden of proof as to execution. C. C. Curtis v. M. B. Curtis (1973, 481 F. 2d 549, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 374).

Where will had been admitted to probate, caveator who subsequently brought action challenging its validity on ground that signature was a forgery, had burden of proof as to that issue. Id.

Burden of going forward, in will contest originating after initial admission to probate, shifts once record of that admission is introduced. Id.

Caveatee is entitled to rely on record of probate as prima facie proof of due execution of will. Id.

§ 18-509. Caveat; time for filing

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Estoppel

Though it may have appeared to those who ultimately signed settlement agreement in first caveat proceeding that brother, by his inaction, was indicating a willingness to acquiesce in whatever steps his sister took with her caveat, where brother ceased to be inactive in time to give clear notice, several days in advance of settlement, that he would not acquiesce in compromise and would contest will, and signers, in proceeding with settlement, knowingly risked possibility that brother would bring another contest, as he had stated he would, doctrine of equitable estoppel does not operate to bar second caveat brought by brother. In re Estate of P. Himmelfarb (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 477).

Contestant's acceptance of distributions made to her pursuant to will, both prior to and subsequent to her filing of the caveat, did not estop her where the amounts contestant received under the will were less than the amounts she would have received under either intestacy or the prior will, no other beneficiaries who had received distributions under the will would be affected by the challenge, and there was no showing of prejudice. In re Estate of D. H. Burrough (1973, 475 F. 2d 370, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 259; rev'g 318 F. Supp. 366).

There is requisite prejudice and estoppel to contest a will when a party makes a claim outside the will after taking property under a will to which he would not otherwise have been entitled. Id.

Fact that contestant, who had accepted distributions made to her pursuant to the will, both prior to and subsequent to her filing of the caveat, had not made proffer of the items received was not an absolute bar to contest. Id.

Res judicata

Consent order which was entered in proceedings on first caveat filed by child of decedent to contest probate of will does not, under principles of res judicata, operate to bar second caveat filed by another child to adjudicate issue of decedent's testamentary capacity, where second child not only failed to give his consent to compromise agreement upon which consent order was based, but put parties and court unequivocally on notice that he objected to compromise. In re Estate of P. Himmelfarb (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 477).

TITLE 19.—DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION

Chapter 1.—RIGHTS OF SURVIVING SPOUSE AND CHILDREN

§ 19-113. Renunciation of devises and bequests; election; time limitations; renunciation or election by guardian or fiduciary; maximum rights; effect of no devise or bequest or if nothing passes under either; antenuptial or postnuptial agreements

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Inter vivos transfer

Factors controlling determination of whether inter vivos transfer was an improper circumvention of marital rights of the surviving spouse include "completeness" of the transfer, motive for the transfer, participation by transferee in alleged fraud on surviving spouse, time between transfer and death, and degree to which surviving spouse is left without interest in decedent's property or other means of support. C. C. Windsor v. M. M. Leonard et al. (1973, 475 F. 2d 932, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 348).

Net estate

Contention that revocable trust would be included in wife's estate for tax purposes was not proper basis for deciding whether it should be included in wife's "net estate" for purposes of determining husband's statutory share when he renounced his rights under wife's will; the proper basis was Maryland case law on marital property rights. C. C. Windsor v. M. M. Leonard et al. (1973, 475 F. 2d 932, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 348).

Though wife, in creating trust, reserved power of revocation, right to all income during her lifetime, right to withdraw from principal, and right to amend, trust was not an improper evasion of surviving husband's statutory rights when he renounced his rights under wife's will, and thus trust assets were properly excluded from wife's "net estate" in determining husband's statutory share, where there was no evidence of any unusual or fraudulent motive for the transaction, wife created trust at age of 54, some 18 months before she died, and husband was left with a 50% share in an estate exceeding $100,000, in addition to personal holdings worth some $140,000. Id.

Chapter 3.—INTESTATES' ESTATES

§ 19-306. Children to share equally

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Illegitimate children

District of Columbia intestate succession statute (§ 19-316), whereby illegitimate children may inherit from their mother only, does not discriminate against illegitimate children in violation of due process. E. L. Watts et al. v. J. G. Veneman et al. (1971, 334 F. Supp. 482; aff'd 476 F. 2d 529, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 84).

§ 19-316. Share of illegitimate children; their issue; mother

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section is not unconstitutional by reason of fact that it does not permit illegitimate children to inherit as freely as legitimate children. B. Malcolm v. C. W. Weinberger, Secretary etc. (1973, 362 F. Supp. 1348).

This section, whereby illegitimate children may inherit from their mother only, does not discriminate against illegitimate children in violation of due process. E. L. Watts et al. v. J. G. Veneman et al. (1971, 334 F. Supp. 482; aff'd 476 F. 2d 529, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 84).

Inheritance from father

While natural father could designate child as sole beneficiary under will, he could not, absent adoption, make child his heir at law. In the Matter of the Petition for Adoption: J.H. (D.C. App. 1974, 313 A. 2d 874).

Chapter 7.—ESCHEAT

SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

TITLE 20.—ADMINISTRATION OF DECEDENTS' ESTATES

Chapter 13.—CLAIMS OF CREDITORS

§ 20-1301. Debts to be proved

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Legally authenticated claim

A "legally authenticated claim" against an executor or administrator of estate is one which has been filed with the register of wills under oath stating basis of the decedent's debt and fact that it has not been paid or that part has been paid and part is still outstanding. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Purpose

Statutory framework of statutes dealing with administration of estates has dual purpose of giving executor notice of a claim against estate and thus protecting him from committing error of disbursing the assets of estate without first resolving validity of all claims and satisfying the debts, and of protection of the creditors of the estate. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

§ 20-1315. Retaining for claims

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

This section requiring creditor who received written notice from executor to exhibit or pass claim within 30 days of notice if creditor is resident and within 90 days if creditor is a nonresident is an abbreviation of general statute of limitations and must be strictly construed. D. Evans, Executor etc. v. Washington Hospital Center, Inc. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 44).

Exhibition of claim

The purpose of exhibiting claim against estate to executor or administrator is to give executor or administrator an opportunity to make an informed decision as to whether it is a valid claim, and such exhibition has no bearing on running of statute of limitations, so that creditors who have duly docketed their claims against an estate are not required also to exhibit the claim to executor or administrator or to file suit in order to toll the running of the statute. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Notice to creditor

Executor's two letters to hospital requesting copy of decedent's medical records and names of treating doctors and inquiring about existence of hospital bill were insufficient to commence running of 30-day statute of limitations for asserting claim after receiving written notice from executor requesting either exhibition or passing of claim, and hospital which did not present claim for services rendered to decedent within three months was not barred from presenting claim after decedent's assets had been distributed. D. Evans, Executor etc. v. Washington Hospital Center, Inc. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 44).

§ 20-1318. Period during which creditors may file suit after claim is contested

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Contested claim

If executor does not act on claim duly docketed with register of wills, the claimant, not being advised to the contrary, has the right to expect that the claim against estate will be paid when executor is in a position to do so. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Exhibition of claim

The purpose of exhibiting claim against estate to executor or administrator is to give executor or administrator an opportunity to make an informed decision as to whether it is a valid claim, and such exhibition has no bearing on running of statute of limitations, so that creditors who have duly docketed their claims against an estate are not required also to exhibit the claim to executor or administrator or to file suit in order to toll the running of the statute. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Tolling limitations

The docketing of a duly authenticated claim against a decedent's estate in office of register of wills tolls the general three-year statute of limitations and brings the claim within special statute of limitations protecting claimant until three months after claim is rejected or disputed by the executor or administrator. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

§ 20-1320. Notice to creditors to file claims

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Knowledge of claim

Even though executor did not know exact amount of hospital's claim for services rendered to decedent, where executor actually knew of claim and knew that decedent's debts consisted principally of bill due hospital and funeral expenses, statute requiring that claims of which executor has no knowledge be presented within three months after executor's publication of notice to creditors did not bar hospital's claim brought after decedent's assets had been distributed. D. Evans, Executor etc. v. Washington Hospital Center, Inc. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 44).

Purpose

Purpose of this section requiring that claims of which executor has no knowledge be presented within three months after executor's publication of notice to creditors is to enable fiduciary to ascertain extent of estate's indebtedness so he may know what must be paid before making distribution and to protect him when unknown claims are not timely presented. D. Evans, Executor etc. v. Washington Hospital Center, Inc. (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 44).

§ 20-1323. Docket of claims

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Effect of docketing

The docketing of a duly authenticated claim against a decedent's estate in office of register of wills tolls the general three-year statute of limitations and brings the claim within special statute of limitations protecting claimant until three months after claim is rejected or disputed by the executor or administrator. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Once a duly authenticated claim against estate has been timely docketed in office of register of wills, an executor cannot close the estate without recognizing the existence of the claim. Id.

If executor does not act on claim duly docketed with register of wills, the claimant, not being advised to the contrary, has the right to expect that the claim against estate will be paid when executor is in a position to do so. Id.

Exhibition of claim

The purpose of exhibiting claim against estate to executor or administrator is to give executor or administrator an opportunity to make an informed decision as to whether it is a valid claim, and such exhibition has no bearing on running of statute of limitations, so that creditors who have duly docketed their claims against an estate are not required also to exhibit the claim to executor or administrator or to file suit in order to toll the running of the statute. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

§ 20-1324. Filed claim no evidence of correctness if disputed; filing as tolling limitations

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Purpose

Purpose of statute declaring that docketing of claim against estate does not afford evidence as to justice or correctness of a debt when it is controverted by an executor or administrator and does not take a debt out of operation of defense of limitations was to make it clear that mere docketing of a claim would not necessarily establish its validity or deprive estate of any defense of limitations and would not operate to reinstate claim already barred by running of statute of limitations. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Tolling limitations

The docketing of a duly authenticated claim against a decedent's estate in office of register of wills tolls the general three-year statute of limitations and brings the claim within special statute of limitations protecting claimant until three months after claim is rejected or disputed by the executor or administrator. American Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

§ 20-1326. No claim to be noticed unless legally authenticated

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Legally authenticated claim

A "legally authenticated claim" against an executor or administrator of estate is one which has been filed with the register of wills under oath stating basis of the decedent's debt and fact that it has not been paid or that part has been paid and part is still outstanding. American

Security and Trust Company v. J. E. Bindeman, Executor etc., et ano. (D.C. App. 1973, 303 A. 2d 188).

Chapter 17.—ACCOUNTS

§ 20-1705. Disbursements and allowances

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Compensation of executor or administrator

Attorney, administrator of decedent's estate, is entitled to recover in quantum meruit from estate of heir the reasonable value of legal services rendered in connection with sale of inherited property, where conservator gave at least tacit approval to sale and acquiesced in attorney's efforts, court had earlier knowledge of transaction, and services benefited estate, although record fell short of establishing express oral agreement for services and court had not given prior approval to expenditure. In re Conservatorship for C. L. Rich (D.C. App. 1975, 337 A.2d 764).

As against assertion that there was no assurance that claim represented all compensation for services on probate assets which executors might ultimately claim and that compensation which might be later sought from trust assets might in fact represent compensation for services rendered to probate assets, probate court properly awarded compensation and expenses to executors and attorneys in connection with probate assets even though assets of estate would pour over into inter vivos trust and trust provided that trustee could make payments from principal of trust for administration expenses in connection with estate, since any further compensation derived from trust assets would be subject to scrutiny of out-of-state court with jurisdiction to review trust administration. In re Estate of W. L. Clark (1973, 495 F. 2d 102, 161 U.S. App. D.C. 276).

The Classification Act of 1949, as amended, referred to in subsec. (e), was repealed by Act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632, section 1 of which enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law, and is now covered by chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S.C.

CODIFICATION

Subsec. (e) is set out in this supplement to correct editorial error appearing in the main edition.

SUBCHAPTER III.—EMERGENCY HOSPITALIZATION

§ 21-521. Detention of persons believed to be mentally ill; transportation and application to hospital

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Fact that Congress has legislated two statutes for detaining mentally ill persons, one applicable to the metropolitan District of Columbia area containing federal reservations and one applicable to the District of Columbia, does not present a constitutionally suspect situation, inasmuch as the District of Columbia is neither a state nor territory, but a federal enclave, housing the federal government, and Congress may legislate a detention statute applicable only within the District. E. Medynski v. L. S. Margoits (1975, 389 F.Supp. 743).

§ 21-522. Examination and admission to hospital; notice

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Mootness

Case in which petitioner challenged validity of his prior emergency confinement as a person mentally ill and dangerous to himself or others presented sufficient adversariness to avoid mootness in constitutional sense, although hospital had initiated a judicial proceedings for long-term hospitalization and had later unconditionally released petitioner. In re J. Curry (1972, 470 F. 2d 368, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 220).

Voluntary treatment

Where petitioner voluntarily presented himself at university hospital and requested treatment, doctor at this hospital advised petitioner that he could not be admitted there and suggested that he file application for treatment at a public mental hospital, which petitioner was unwilling to do, and doctor then executed an application for emergency hospitalization and sent petitioner in an ambulance to mental hospital which admitted petitioner as involuntary emergency patient, and there was nothing to indicate that petitioner resisted treatment at mental hospital, petitioner's detention as an emergency's involuntary patient was null and void. In re J. Curry (1972, 470 F. 2d 368, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 220).

§ 21-523. Court order requirement for hospital detention beyond 48 hours; maximum period for observation

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SUBCHAPTER IV.—HOSPITALIZATION UNDER COURT ORDER§ 21-545. Hearing and determination by court or jury; order; witnesses; jurors*NOTES TO DECISIONS*Appeal and error

Appeal from commitment order, based on claim that patient was deprived of due process of law because jury did not determine beyond a reasonable doubt that he was mentally ill and consequently dangerous, was not moot because of patient's discharge, where, in light of patient's fixed delusions and testimony indicating likelihood of their persistence, prospect of patient again being subjected to commitment proceedings was not remote, and where collateral consequences of being adjudged mentally ill remained to plague patient. In re J. Ballay (1973, 482 F. 2d 648, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 59).

Burden of proof

Where burden of proof on issue of defendant's mental condition was placed on defendant at release hearing and defendant's request for jury trial was denied, defendant's commitment to mental institution following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not valid under the civil commitment statute of the District of Columbia. United States v. B. L. Wright (1975, 511 F.2d 1311, 167 U.S. App. D.C. 309).

In an involuntary civil commitment trial, due process required proof beyond a reasonable doubt that respondent was mentally ill and, because of the illness, was likely to injure herself or other persons if allowed to remain at liberty. In the Matter of S. Hodges (D. C. App. 1974, 325 A.2d 605).

Proof of mental illness and dangerousness in involuntary civil commitment proceedings must be beyond a reasonable doubt rather than by preponderance of evidence. In re J. Ballay (1973, 482 F. 2d 648, 157 U.S. App. D.C. 59).

There is justification for preponderance of proof standard for commitment of the insanity-acquitted even if higher standard is required prior to civil commitment for propensity and even though there is no justification for denying the insanity-acquitted the right to jury trial that is recognized for those involved in civil commitment proceedings. United States v. J. J. Brown (1973, 478 F. 2d 606, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 402).

Where insanity-acquitted individual has been in detention for considerable period of time, his continued detention vel non should be governed by same standard of burden of proof applied to civil commitments; extent of period calls for sound discretion, considering nature of crime, nature of treatment, and response of person, and generally will not exceed five years and should never exceed maximum sentence for offense, less mandatory release time. Id.

Defendant acquitted by reason of insanity could be committed on determination of mental illness by preponderance of evidence, despite contention that due process required reasonable doubt standard in involuntary civil commitment proceeding and that equal protection required same standard for the insanity-acquitted. Id.

Danger to community

Jury hearing psychiatrist's testimony of dangerousness of person sought to be committed following acquittal on criminal charge due to finding of insanity should be informed of the various components of such term, to what extent it reflects a predicting of behavior, and whether it is prediction of an occurrence of a kind of behavior that, however deviant, might be considered by the jury not to be dangerous. United States v. W. E. Ashe (1973, 478 F. 2d 661, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 457).

In proceedings for commitment as dangerous due to mental illness of a person who has been found not guilty of an offense by reason of insanity, instruction as to role of expert witnesses should be sent to the experts in advance of hearing and should be read at least once to the jury. Id.

Jury trial

Where burden of proof on issue of defendant's mental condition was placed on defendant at release hearing and defendant's request for jury trial was denied, defendant's commitment to mental institution following his acquittal by reason of insanity was not valid under the civil commitment statute of the District of Columbia. United States v. B. L. Wright (1975, 511 F.2d 1311, 167 U.S. App. D.C. 309).

Vacation of commitment under prior law

Person whose two commitments to mental hospital were procedurally defective is entitled to declaration of illegality of such commitments and to vacation of respective commitment orders so that he can explain to potential employers where he was during years in question without jeopardizing his chances of gaining employment. In the Matter of R. A. Brown (1975, 68 F.R.D. 172).

— Jurisdiction

Where proceeding by person previously committed to mental hospital is part of two commitment proceedings begun in District Court sometime previously, Court has jurisdiction over later petition to have commitments declared illegal and vacated despite fact that District of Columbia Court Reorganization Act of 1970 vested exclusive jurisdiction over mental health matters in Superior Court. In the Matter of R. A. Brown (1975, 68 F.R.D. 172).

SUBCHAPTER V.—RIGHT TO COMMUNICATION; EXERCISE OF OTHER RIGHTS§ 21-564. Exercise of property and other rights; notice of inability; persons hospitalized prior to September 15, 1964*SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

SUBCHAPTER VI.—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS§ 21-581. Proceedings instituted by Commissioner of the District of Columbia*SUCCESSION IN GOVERNMENT

The District of Columbia Council and the office of Commissioner of the District of Columbia, as established by Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, were abolished as of noon Jan. 2, 1975, by § 1-131, and replaced by the Council of the District of Columbia and the office of Mayor of the District of Columbia, respectively, as provided by §§ 1-141 and 1-161.

§ 21-586. Financial responsibility for care of hospitalized persons; judicial enforcementNOTES TO DECISIONS*Jurisdiction

Where District Court ordered wife committed to mental hospital, jurisdiction over any claim for contribution to her support remained in District Court while she was confined in hospital, but after she was released and placed in foster home, claim for contribution to her support is to be brought in Superior Court. G. D. Randolph, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1975, 333 A.2d 380).

Chapter 9.—MENTALLY ILL PERSONS FOUND IN CERTAIN FEDERAL RESERVATIONS

§ 21-902. Commitments by special commissioners of certain district courts

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Provisions of this chapter governing involuntary detention and commitment of mentally ill persons on federal reservations in metropolitan District of Columbia are not so inconsistent with provisions of chapter 5 of this title governing commitments in District of Columbia as to deprive an individual of due process and equal protection when committed pursuant to authority of provisions governing federal reservations. E. Medynski v. L. S. Margolis (1975, 389 F.Supp. 743).

Mootness

Action wherein plaintiff challenged constitutionality of procedure of this chapter for involuntary detention and commitment of mentally ill persons in metropolitan District of Columbia area was not moot by reason of plaintiff's discharge from hospital during pendency of litigation where defendant could again be detained pursuant to procedure and, thus, be forced to again advance her allegations, and collateral consequences of being adjudged mentally ill remained to plague plaintiff. E. Medynski v. L. S. Margolis (1975, 389 F.Supp. 743).

§ 21-903. Apprehension by certain officials of persons believed to be mentally ill; proceedings

Chapter 15.—CONSERVATORS

§ 21-1501. Appointment of conservators

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

This section requires a showing that the adult in question, by reason of mental weakness not amounting to unsoundness of mind, is unable to care for his property, and inability must be a present one, as it is insufficient to show a prior mental condition or that there may be, at some uncertain time in the future, an inability to handle property. In the Matter of W. C. Kloman, Jr. (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 830).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In view of other evidence, fact that person had previously been committed to hospital for 10 months on two occasions and had at one point been found not guilty by reason of insanity of assaulting a police officer and had been diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic was insufficient to support finding that person was unable to handle his own funds and that a conservator should be appointed. In the Matter of W. C. Kloman, Jr. (D.C. App. 1974, 315 A. 2d 830).

§ 21-1503. Bond; powers and duties

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accounts—Disbursement

Where ward suffered stroke subsequent to court order for disbursement of estate's funds by conservator, fact that court order might have been based on projected budget does not require substitute conservator to expend funds in exact, or even approximate, proportion to amounts set forth in estimated budget, for large degree of flexibility, autonomy, and discretion is necessary in running household with changing needs. S. Rosendorf et al. v. J. C. Toomey, Conservator (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 694).

Where ward of estate suffered stroke, and ward's wife became responsible for payment of bills, salaries, and other expenditures of household, it is not improper for substitute conservator to designate ward's wife as payee of checks for ward's living expenses. Id.

— Time for objections

Where substitute conservator of estate submitted accounts and reports of his disbursements to ward from 1966 to 1970, action by children of ward brought in 1972 which objected to such disbursements was not timely filed and is precluded, notwithstanding that such delay was attributable to heirs' successful challenge to testamentary instruments executed by ward S. Rosendorf et al. v. J. C. Toomey, Conservator (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 694).

Costs

Where children of ward who challenged substitute conservator's disbursements from estate made no showing of wrongdoing by substitute conservator, trial court's prospective allowance to conservator of attorney's fees in regard to appeal, subject to future approval by trial court as to amount, is reasoned and proper exercise of trial court's discretion. S. Rosendorf et al. v. J. C. Toomey, Conservator (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 694).

Reasonable compensation

Under evidence that commission paid to substitute conservator of estate was based on character of services rendered, amount of time spent, and size of estate administered, and that commission did not exceed statutory limit of 5% of disbursements, trial court did not abuse its discretion in approving payment of such commission to conservator. S. Rosendorf et al. v. J. C. Toomey, Conservator (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 694).

§ 21-1505. Appointment of temporary conservator

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Costs and fees

Where physician initiated proceedings for appointment of conservator on behalf of one of his patients and, in petitioning court for reimbursement of his costs and attorney's fees resulting from temporary conservatorship, was called upon to defend his actions in having initiated the proceedings, which resulted in discharge of temporary conservator, the context in which physician incurred the expenses and costs in conservator proceedings did not amount to a "suit against the insured," and did not require physician to defend against a claim alleging "injury, sickness, disease" caused by "malpractice, error or mistake" within malpractice policy, and physician was not entitled to recover under policy for his costs and fees of defense of his actions. W. M. Oler v. Liberty Mutual Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 333).

Medical services

Proceedings initiated by physician for appointment of conservator on behalf of patient, who physician alleged needed to have assets preserved so that he would not be deprived of treatment he needed, did not constitute the rendering of professional medical services within purview of malpractice policy. W. M. Oler v. Liberty Mutual Insurance Company (D.C. App. 1972, 297 A. 2d 333).

Chapter 17.—UNIFORM FIDUCIARIES ACT

§ 21-1706. Deposit in name of fiduciary as such

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applicability

Uniform Fiduciaries Act applies only to liability for check transactions, so that maintenance of excessive deposits by defendant financial institutions, in action challenging various aspects of charitable hospital's fiscal management, would not fall within any of the Act's provisions. D. M. Stern et al. v. Lucy Webb Hayes National Training School for Deaconesses and Missionaries et al. (1974, 381 F. Supp. 1003).

PART IV

CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE

TITLE 22. CRIMINAL OFFENSES.
TITLE 23. CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

TITLE 24. PRISONERS AND THEIR TREATMENT.

Chapter 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 22-103. Attempts to commit crime.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Joinder

Joinder of counts concerning second-degree burglary, grand larceny, and attempted burglary, was not improper. L. P. Coleman v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 40; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 3070, 413 U.S. 921).

Miranda rights

Defendant's incriminating statement, which was made one or two seconds after his apprehension by single police officer on roof of burglarized building in response to officer's inquiry as to what defendant was doing on roof, and which was given while officer was handcuffing defendant prior to any Miranda warnings, is admissible in defendant's subsequent prosecution for attempted burglary. R. C. Owens v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 340 A.2d 821).

Receiving stolen property

Defendant, who received a television set, which in fact had not been stolen, after having been advised that the set was a stolen set, did not commit crime of attempted receiving stolen property, since an unsuccessful attempt to do that which is not a crime cannot be held to be an attempt to commit crime specified. United States v. F. Hair (1973, 356 F. Supp. 339).

Severance

Refusal to sever counts, in prosecution for second-degree burglary, grand larceny, and attempted burglary, was not an abuse of discretion where, inter alia, if there had been separate trials on each of the counts there would have been a substantial overlap of the evidence. L. P. Coleman v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 40; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 3070, 413 U.S. 921).

§ 22-104. Second conviction.

CROSS REFERENCE

Proceedings to establish previous convictions, see § 23-111.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Peremptory challenges

Defendant who was charged with petit larceny, a misdemeanor for which maximum punishment was one year, was entitled to only the three peremptory charges available to defendant charged with such an offense notwithstanding fact that Government had filed notice that, if convicted, defendant would be subjected to additional penalties of the third offender statute. C. E. Tatum v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 330 A. 2d 522).

Procedure

Trial judge's failure to inquire of defendant whether he affirmed or denied previous convictions contained in government's information invalidates sentence for carrying a pistol without a license imposed under the recidivist sentencing procedure. L. Irby v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 33).

Purpose

Purpose of repeat offender statute is to provide new tools and sentencing alternatives to the trial judge to protect society and to secure certain additional safeguards, due process rights, and rehabilitation of the convicted offender. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 28; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 846, 414 U.S. 1114).

Sentence

A sentence under the recidivist statute is not a part of the offense itself; it is the possible punishment for the latter which determines whether the prosecution must be by indictment; recidivist statute comes into play after the trial and after accused has been found guilty and proceedings thereunder do not involve inquiry into guilt or innocence. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 28; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 846, 414 U.S. 1114).

§ 22-104a. Punishment of persons convicted of a felony with a prior record of at least two felony convictions—Definitions—Effect of convictions pardoned on the ground of innocence.

CROSS REFERENCE

Proceedings to establish previous convictions, see § 23-111.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Prior convictions

Convictions arising from separate indictments handed down on same date cannot be relied on to enhance punishment as third offender. D. L. Washington v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 560).

Procedure

Trial judge's failure to inquire of defendant whether he affirmed or denied previous convictions contained in government's information invalidates sentence for carrying a pistol without a license imposed under the recidivist sentencing procedure. L. Irby v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 342 A.2d 33).

An enhanced sentence could not be imposed upon defendant, found guilty of grand larceny, where the information as to the prior felony convictions was not filed with clerk of court prior to trial as required by § 23-111. J. A. Bond v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 221).

Purpose

Purpose of repeat offender statute is to provide new tools and sentencing alternatives to the trial judge to protect society and to secure certain additional safeguards, due process rights, and rehabilitation of the convicted offender. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 304 A. 2d 28; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 846, 414 U.S. 1114).

§ 22-105. Persons advising, inciting, or conniving at criminal offense to be charged as principals.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acquittal of principal

Fact that a jury made no finding as to guilt on charge of armed robbery of codefendant who eyewitness testified took money does not preclude defendant's conviction of armed robbery as an aider and abettor. W. Strickland, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A.2d 746).

Where codefendant was tried on theory he aided and abetted defendant, if the principal defendant was acquitted then codefendant should also have been found not guilty, and the error which damaged principal defendant's defense was also prejudicial to codefendant. United States v. C. L. Smith (1973, 478 F. 2d 976, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Aid and abet

Under statute authorizing charging of aiders and abettors as principals, particular defendants who distributed allegedly obscene motion picture film could be convicted of knowingly presenting the film in the District of Columbia where such defendants supplied film to exhibitor therein in return for share of proceeds from the exhibition. United States v. Sherpix, Inc. (1975, 512 F.2d 1361, 168 U.S. App. D.C. 121).

Assistance of counsel

Defense counsel should be guided by American Bar Association Standards, should, inter alia, confer with client without delay and as often as necessary to elicit matters of defense or ascertain potential defenses, discuss potential strategies and tactical choices with client, promptly advise him of his rights and take actions necessary to preserve them, conduct investigations to determine matters of defense that can be developed, interview government witnesses if accessible, attempt to secure information in possession of prosecution and do adequate research. United States v. W. DeCoster, Jr. (1973, 487 F. 2d 1197, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

Claim of ineffective assistance of counsel should first be presented to district court in motion for a new trial and in such proceeding, evidence dehors the record may be submitted by affidavit, and when necessary district judge may order a hearing or otherwise allow counsel to respond; if trial court is willing to grant motion, the Court of Appeals will remand and if motion is denied, appeal therefrom will be considered with appeal from conviction and sentence. Id.

Charged as principal

Defendant may be charged and convicted as principal even though proof is that he was only aider and abettor, but there must be evidence that someone other than defendant was principal whom defendant aided and abetted. J. D. Payton, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 305 A. 2d 512).

Elements of offense

To support conviction of aiding and abetting a felony-murder, the homicide must have been committed in the course of the felony and in furtherance of the common purpose to commit the felony, rather than merely coincidental with it. United States v. J. F. Bolden (1975, 514 F.2d 1301, 169 U.S. App. D.C. 60).

Essential elements of aiding and abetting are: (1) that an offense was committed by someone, (2) that the accused assisted or participated in its commission and (3) that he did so with guilty knowledge; hallmark of an aider and abettor is that the accused in some sort associated himself with the venture, participated in it as in something that he wished to bring about and sought by his action to make it succeed. E. Blango v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 335 A.2d 230).

Aiding and abetting a crime is established if the accused associated himself with the venture, participated in it as in something that he wished to bring about and sought by his action to make it succeed. R. F. Creek v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 688).

In order to obtain a conviction for aiding and abetting the commission of a crime, the government must show that the defendant in some way associated himself with the criminal venture, that he participated in it as in something he wished to bring about and that he sought by his action to make it succeed. G. G. Quarles v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 773).

Evidence—Sufficiency

In murder prosecution against two defendants one of whom shot the victim, evidence including showing of continuous association of codefendant with defendant who shot the victim, their furtive consultation immediately preceding the murder and codefendant's holding of bags of valuables that other defendant carried moments earlier and standing close by while the defendant fought with and shot the victim sustained conviction of second-degree murder. United States v. J. Clayborne (1974, 509 F.2d 473, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Evidence was not sufficient to support conviction of petit larceny as an aider and abettor by pushing victim at the very time that pickpocket pushed the victim from the rear and removed victim's wallet from his pocket. G. G. Quarles v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 773).

Instructions

Where soon after retiring jury requested instruction on whether aiding and abetting instruction applied to armed robbery count of indictment as well as assault charge, trial court's charging jury that aiding and abetting instruction was applicable to both counts in absence of defendant was, at most, harmless error. United States v. J. Jones, Jr. (1975, 517 F.2d 176, 170 U.S. App. D.C. 362).

Minor variation from locally suggested instructions on aiding and abetting was insignificant. United States v. J. Clayborne (1974, 509 F.2d 473, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Jury question

In murder prosecution against two defendants one of whom shot the victim, whether the codefendant had aided and abetted the offense was for jury under the evidence. United States v. J. Clayborne (1974, 509 F.2d 473, 166 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

Lesser included offense

An aider and abettor of an armed robbery is not guilty of a lesser included offense but is a principal to the robbery. R. W. Atkinson v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 322 A. 2d 587).

Presence at commission

Presence at scene of crime, while insufficient without more to prove criminal complicity, will constitute aiding and abetting if it designedly encourages the perpetrator, facilitates the unlawful deed or stimulates others to render assistance to criminal act. R. F. Creek v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 324 A. 2d 688).

Evidence sustained robbery conviction of defendant who was one of robber's companions watched commission of robbery, and ran from scene of crime with robber and other companion. Id.

Proof of an accused's presence at the scene of a crime alone cannot support a conviction of aiding and abetting the commission of a crime. G. G. Quarles v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 773).

Proof of presence at scene of crime plus conduct which designedly encourages or facilitates a crime will support an inference of guilty participation in the crime as an aider and abettor. Id.

Prosecutor's comments

Prosecutor's closing and rebuttal arguments which referred to defenses of insanity interposed by famous defendants in other cases and to actions of Hitler and Napoleon were improper and were so highly prejudicial as to require reversal. United States v. W. E. Hawkins (1973, 480 F. 2d 1151, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Where prosecutor's improper closing and rebuttal arguments were so highly prejudicial as to require reversal of conviction of defendant who relied upon insanity as a defense and was convicted of first-degree murder and assault with intent to kill while armed, judgment of conviction of codefendant, who was charged as an aider and abettor, asserted lack of intent to commit murder, and was convicted of second-degree murder, would also be nullified. Id.

§ 22-105a. Punishment of persons convicted of conspiracies to commit crimes—Proof—Conspiracies to commit crimes within or outside of the District.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Presentence hearing

Plea of guilty to conspiracy to commit abortion did not insulate accused from inquiry in presentence hearing as to extent of his conduct in abortion, notwithstanding contention that determination of guilt of a different offense resulted. G. L. Warren v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 228).

§ 22-108. Offenses committed beyond District of Columbia.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Convictions—Mutually exclusive

Convictions of second defendant for burglary and grand larceny were mutually exclusive with conviction for receiving stolen property and bringing it into the District of Columbia, and vacating the burglary and larceny convictions which carried longer sentences cured any prejudice which resulted from the failure to properly instruct. United States v. M. Lemonakis (1973, 485 F. 2d 941, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 162; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1586, 1587, 415 U.S. 989).

Evidence—Admissibility

Error, if any, in introduction into evidence of recordings between since deceased accomplice-informer and first defendant was not reversible error, in prosecution for conspiracy, burglary, grand larceny, interstate transportation of stolen property and bringing stolen property into the District of Columbia. United States v. M. Lemonakis (1973, 485 F. 2d 941, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 162; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1586, 1587, 415 U.S. 989).

Admission into evidence of recorded conversations between since deceased accomplice-informer and first defendant which contained references to second defendant in joint trial did not violate second defendant's rights under the confrontation clause. Id.

Introduction in evidence in joint trial of recordings of conversation between first defendant and since deceased accomplice-informer was not improper on ground that recordings, which were made outside the presence of counsel, denied defendants' right to counsel. Id.

Government informer's suicide note, written six days prior to suicide, and which contained language exculpating second defendant, was not within the dying declaration hearsay rule exception where the note was not made with belief that death was imminent and did not concern the cause or circumstances of what was believed to be impending death. Id.

Accomplice-informer's handwritten suicide note, which contained language exculpating second defendant, was not admissible as declaration against the informer's penal interest where there was no corroboration of the exculpatory statement. Id.

Severance

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in prosecution for conspiracy, burglary, grand larceny, interstate transportation of stolen property, and bringing stolen property into the District of Columbia by denying severance to second defendant on ground of antagonistic defenses. United States v. M. Lemonakis (1973, 485 F. 2d 941, 158 U.S. App. D.C. 162; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1586, 1587, 415 U.S. 989).

Chapter 2.—ABORTION

§ 22-201. Definition and penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Presentence hearing

Plea of guilty to conspiracy to commit abortion did not insulate accused from inquiry in presentence hearing as to extent of his conduct in abortion, notwithstanding contention that determination of guilt of a different offense resulted. G. L. Warren v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 310 A. 2d 228).

Chapter 4.—ARSON

§ 22-401. Definition and penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence was not sufficient to support convictions for arson, second-degree burglary while armed with a Molotov cocktail and possession of a Molotov cocktail. United States v. L. S. Carter (1975, 522 F.2d 666, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

Convictions of arson and of malicious burning of defendant's own property with intent to defraud were sustained by evidence including evidence with respect to access to premises, alibi evidence found by trial court to be incredible, evidence that fire occurred shortly before time for expiration of insurance policy for which continuance had not been arranged and evidence concerning cigarette match bomb and gasoline. P. K. Chaconas v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A. 2d 792).

— Suppression

Where fire inspectors, after fire, entered premises occupied by defendant, without objection by defendant, and defendant consented to removal of various items, items were not subject to suppression as evidence. P. K. Chaconas v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A. 2d 792).

Inferences

Giving of instruction that jurors were permitted to infer that second defendant was "guilty of the crimes charged," if they determined, beyond a reasonable doubt, that he was found in unexplained, exclusive possession of recently stolen property was reversible error where the presumed fact of guilt of arson, possession of a Molotov cocktail and second-degree burglary while armed with a Molotov cocktail did not flow from possession of recently stolen military rifles. United States v. L. S. Carter (1975, 522 F. 2d 666, 173 U.S. App. D.C. 54).

§ 22-402. Burning one's own property with intent to defraud or injure another.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency

Convictions of arson and of malicious burning of defendant's own property with intent to defraud were sustained by evidence including evidence with respect to access to premises, alibi evidence found by trial court to be incredible, evidence that fire occurred shortly before time for expiration of insurance policy for which continuance had not been arranged and evidence concerning cigarette match bomb and gasoline. P. K. Chaconas v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A. 2d 792).

— Suppression

Where fire inspectors, after fire, entered premises occupied by defendant, without objection by defendant, and defendant consented to removal of various items, items were not subject to suppression as evidence. P. K. Chaconas v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 326 A. 2d 792).

§ 22-403. Malicious burning, destruction, or injury of another's movable property.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Elements of offense

The elements of malicious destruction of property are that the defendant injured or broke or destroyed or attempted to injure, break or destroy property; that the property was not the defendant's; that the defendant did so maliciously with intent to injure, break or destroy the property and for a bad or evil purpose, and not merely negligently or accidentally; and that the property was of a value of $200 or more. B. I. Nichols v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 336).

Evidence—Judicial notice

Court would take judicial notice of fact that liquor store, which was the "store" referred to in indictment charging malicious destruction of property of a value of $200 or more, had a value exceeding $200. B. I. Nichols v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 336).

— Sufficiency

Testimony of liquor store's manager that repairs to the store cost $425 is sufficient to prove that the value of the property damaged was $200 or more and is sufficient to support conviction for malicious destruction of property of a value of $200 or more. B. I. Nichols v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 336).

Where evidence in prosecution for destruction of window in apartment showed that apartment was rented and that defendant had merely been an overnight guest in apartment on a few occasions, defendant was properly convicted of destroying property despite his contention of lack of proof of ownership or possession of property. J. N. Gurley v. United States (D.C. App. 1973, 308 A. 2d 785).

Identification

Where witness did not have opportunity to see the face of the large man outside liquor store at close range because witness was watching from an eighth floor window but the parking lot outside the liquor store was illuminated, the witness did observe the man's general facial features, the cut of his hair, the shape of his head, his race, his height and his build and only 20 to 25 minutes elapsed between the crime and the identification, the on-the-scene identification procedures were permissible. B. I. Nichols v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 336).

Witness' identification of the defendant's clothes as identical to those worn by driver of automobile observed at burglary scene was not impermissibly suggestive because the defendant was observed alone in patrol wagon where witness had had two opportunities to view the driver's clothes both before and after the burglar alarm was activated, the identification occurred only 20 to 25 minutes after the second time witness saw the clothes and the witness identified the defendant's uniform rather than the defendant himself. Id.

Defendant's convictions of first-degree burglary, grand larceny, and malicious destruction of property were not supported by sufficient evidence, where, despite the complainant's testimony that he was able to identify defendant at showup because the image of defendant's face was implanted on his mind, the complainant was unable to identify defendant at trial, where his opportunity to observe the burglars was brief, where he saw them at night under artificial light, where his nearest observation of them was when they were running and 17 feet away, and where there was a significant discrepancy in almost all respects between the description given by complainant to the police and defendant's actual description, both physically and in respect to clothing. W. B. Crawley v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 320 A. 2d 309).

Indictment

Relative imprecision in phrasing the value of the damaged property in indictment charging malicious destruction of property of a value of $200 or more is not prejudicial error where defendants could not have been misled in any meaningful way and there was evidence to show that the cost of repair to the damaged store was well over $200. B. I. Nichols v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 336).

Instructions

In prosecution based on defendants' unconsented entry into offices of chemical company and their destruction of certain property in it, instruction that Vietnam war was not issue in case and that, if government proved beyond reasonable doubt that one or more of defendants committed elements of crimes charged, law does not recognize as defense that defendants were motivated to commit their acts by sincere political, religious or moral convictions or in obedience to some higher law was not improper despite contention that instructions were coercive, tantamount to directed verdict of guilty and outside proper scope of judicial instruction. United States v. M. R. Dougherty (1972, 473 F. 2d 1113, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

Sentence

Trial court did not erroneously fail to sentence youth under Federal Youth Corrections Act for misdemeanors he had admitted committing, where trial court expressly found that youth, who had committed the misdemeanors in question while still awaiting sentence by United States district court for attempted robbery and who had left without permission a development center and a halfway house while awaiting determination of armed robbery charges, was unlikely to be rehabilitated by Youth Corrections Act treatment. R. J. Hubb v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 298 A. 2d 512).

Value of property

Within provisions of this section creating the felony of maliciously destroying property of a value of $200 or more, the word "value" refers to the fair market value of the object or entity involved immediately before the crime occurred regardless of whether there is destruction of an entire item of property or only injury which falls short of total destruction. B. I. Nichols v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 336).

When reparable damage or destruction is caused to a portion or portions of a greater whole, the value of the property damaged or destroyed is to be measured by the reasonable cost of the repairs necessitated by the malicious conduct of the defendant charged with malicious destruction of property of the value of $200 or more. Id.

Chapter 5.—ASSAULT—MAYHEM—THREAT OF BODILY HARM

§ 22-501. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Assistance of counsel

Defendant's rights to due process and effective representation by counsel are not violated because of fact that, in agreeing to continuance of trial date because of conflicts in court's calendar, defense counsel did not engage in on-the-record discussion of fact that defendant would become 22 years of age during interim and would therefore not be eligible for sentencing under Youth Corrections Act (18 U.S.C. 5005 et seq.). J. Coleman, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 332 A. 2d 355).

Competency hearing

Where pretrial examination had resulted in certification by hospital staff of competency and Superior Court judge after hearing had reached like result, district judge was not required to direct, sua sponte, further hearing on competency in prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, and for robbery. United States v. C. L. Tremble (1972, 470 F. 2d 1272, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Corroboration

Sex charges may not be submitted to jury simply upon testimony of alleged victim; corroboration is essential to proof of each element. United States v. C. L. Tremble (1972, 470 F. 2d 1272, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Discovery

With the exception of records of impeachable convictions, the criminal records and records of arrests of government witnesses were not discoverable and the suppression of the testimony of government witnesses, as sanction for disobedience of pretrial discovery order, was in excess of trial court's authority. United States v. W. C. Engram et ano. (D.C. App. 1975, 337 A. 2d 488; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 793, 423 U.S. 1058).

Double jeopardy

Where trial court, acting on good faith but erroneous belief that defendant had been entitled to certain information long before trial, first suggested continuance, which was declined by defendant, and then unsuccessfully sought defendant's consent to mistrial, and finally declared mistrial and discharged jury, without any insistence by defendant upon any right to completion of the trial by the first jury, jeopardy did not attach. United States v. A. D. Sedgwick (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 465; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 1751, —U.S.—).

Where counts of original indictment on which defendant was convicted failed properly to charge offense of assault with intent to commit forcible rape, right to be free of double jeopardy does not bar retrial on new indictment properly charging such offense. J. Hutchinson v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 339 A. 2d 381).

Evidence—Admissibility

Spectrographic identification of defendant as maker of telephone call to which police officer was responding when shot was not sufficiently accepted by scientific community as a whole to form a basis for a jury's determination of guilt or innocence, and was inadmissible. United States v. R. Addison (1974, 498 F. 2d 741, 162 U.S. App. D.C. 199; aff'g 337 F. Supp. 641).

Erroneous admission of testimony based on spectrogram or so-called "voice print" analysis did not fatally infect jury's verdict and did not require a reversal, in light of overwhelming evidence of guilt. Id.

Defendant's conviction was not required to be set aside because of admissibility of testimony as to benzidine test which showed presence of blood on penis shortly after alleged assault with intent to commit rape even if test would yield a positive response to substances other than blood, where defendant admitted at trial that there was blood on penis and attempted to attribute its presence to another source. United States v. L. Smith (1972, 470 F. 2d 377, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 229).

— Disclosure to defense

Where matter which prosecution had not disclosed prior to trial of indictment is inadmissible hearsay, i.e., a street rumor which remained unverified despite immediate investigation by police detective, and where detective did not abandon investigation until after positive identification of defendant had been made by principal victim and defendant had confessed to the crime, undisclosed information is not kind of material which prosecution should have furnished defendant in advance of trial. United States v. A. D. Sedgwick (D.C. App. 1975, 345 A.2d 465; cert. denied 96 S. Ct. 1751, —U.S.—).

Evidence in proceeding on motion for new trial, or alternatively, dismissal of indictment, supported trial court's findings that the statements and testimony of witnesses whose statements were allegedly wrongfully withheld from the defense did not include evidence that was relevant or material or that would be helpful to the defense or tend to exculpate accused and that the disclosure to accused prior to trial of the statements would not have led to evidence that was relevant or material or that would tend to be exculpatory of murder and assault with intent to rob charges. United States v. D. J. Bowles (1973, 488 F. 2d 1307, 159 U.S. App. D.C. 407; cert. denied 94 S. Ct. 1591, 415 U.S. 991).

Where statements given by witnesses to police during murder investigation did not include evidence that was relevant or material or that would be helpful in the defense or tend to exculpate accused and the disclosure to accused prior to trial would not have led to evidence that was relevant or material or that would tend to be exculpatory, accused was not denied due process of law because the statements were withheld from the defense. Id.

— Polygraph tests

Expert testimony based on results of defendant's polygraph examination was inadmissible. United States v. E. Zeiger (1972, 475 F. 2d 1280, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 11; rev'g 350 F. Supp. 685).

— Sufficiency

Evidence that after defendants had taken money from 100-year-old victim the victim was choked with a cable until he lost consciousness is sufficient to support conviction for assault with intent to kill. In the Matter of G. O. B. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 567).

Evidence, including testimony of complainant and others concerning incident, reasonably permitted a finding of guilt on charges of armed kidnapping, armed assault with intent to kill, and carrying a dangerous weapon. R. N. Wooten v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A. 2d 281).

Evidence, including the testimony of an eyewitness involving all three defendants in the assault upon victim, was sufficient to support verdict of jury finding defendants guilty of felony-murder and assault with intent to commit rape while armed. United States v. B. J. Heinlein (1973, 490 F.2d 725, 160 U.S. App. D.C. 157).

Evidence in prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape was insufficient to establish that defendant intended to achieve sexual intercourse by force and violence and against will of prosecutrix. United States v. C. L. Tremble (1972, 470 F. 2d 1272, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Evidence was sufficient to support convictions of assault with intent to kill while armed. United States v. J. Hill (1972, 470 F. 2d 361, 152 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

— Weight

Generally, sexual assault charges by mentally abnormal girl should be subjected to great scrutiny. United States v. H. Benn, Jr. (1973, 476 F. 2d 1127, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Identification

Where at hospital victim was shown sets of pictures which did not include defendant's picture, victim did not select any of these pictures, and after victim was released from hospital she selected defendant's picture from another group of photographs which were presented to her at her home, there was nothing improper in showing victim the picture she had selected before her appearance as a witness at trial, and fact that this did not come out at hearing on identification issue was not a ground for new trial. United States v. J. E. Marshall (1975, 511 F.2d 1308, 167 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

No prejudicial error occurred in assault with intent to commit robbery prosecution where victim, in violation of pretrial suppression order, made in-court identification of defendant, in view of fact that pretrial suppression order, based upon judge's determination that the identification testimony was too weak, was improper. J. R. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 467).

— Lineup

Where officers who heard radio run for a crime arrested juvenile who was running from vicinity of the incident, and juvenile disclosed firsthand knowledge of the crime and implicated defendants, there was probable cause to arrest defendants and showup identification is not the product of an unlawful arrest. In the Matter of G. O. B. (D.C. App. 1975, 343 A.2d 567).

One-man showup held shortly after commission of offense is not unjustified because assault victim sustained head injury, where victim was alert and sitting up in hospital bed when confronting accused shortly after attack. S. A. Washington v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 334 A.2d 185).

Remark of detective to complainant who was in hospital following assault, to effect that "We got your man, we think," does not violate due process by rendering showup procedure so suggestive as to create substantial likelihood of misidentification, where victim was able, prior to being struck, to observe defendant for sufficient period of time to be able to give detailed description, and where showup shortly followed the assault. Id.

Where defendant had been lawfully arrested for assault with intent to commit robbery while armed and was in custody or on bond, no court order was required before he could be viewed at lineup by victims of prior robbery, as long as presentment before magistrate was without undue delay and presence of counsel at lineup was assured. United States v. J. F. Anderson (1972, 352 F. Supp. 333).

Where a suspect arrested for one offense is to be viewed by witnesses to other offenses, there need be no Government disclosure or prior judicial determination of any kind concerning whether the suspect will be required to stand in a lineup, the number of witnesses who will view the lineup, the dates, times, places, nature, number or similarity of the offenses for which the suspect will be viewed, or the conditions under which the lineup will be held. Id.

Indictment

Any infirmity in grand jury proceedings because of failure of complainant and one of police officers to state that pistol used in shooting was victim's, that victim had informed grand jury that one defendant's job was that of a robber and that during the proceedings the prosecutor referred to another case against one defendant, is not of such a nature as to warrant dismissal since there was ample other evidence on which the grand jury could have returned the indictment. E. Blango v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 335 A.2d 230).

Counts of indictment charging defendant with assaulting female persons with intent to carnally know and abuse such persons did not charge offenses under District of Columbia law where victims were females over 16 years of age. United States v. J. Hutchinson (1973, 478 F. 2d 997, 156 U.S. App. D.C. 87).

Instructions

Trial judge in prosecution for assault with intent to commit robbery did not err in denying defendant's request for instructions to jury on lesser included offense of simple assault where there was no showing that evidence was such that jury might rationally acquit defendant of greater charge and convict him of lesser charge and where element of intent to commit robbery was not sufficiently in dispute. J. R. Brown v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 349 A.2d 467).

Court's instructions, after it received note mentioning that one juror did not believe testimony of the complainant, that since jury had been deliberating only two hours court was going to ask it to continue and that jurors were not to reveal to anyone how they stood numerically or otherwise on question of guilt or innocence, does not amount to coercion to find a guilty verdict, especially in the absence of suggestion that trial judge intimated impatience or displeasure with the jury by his instruction, facial expression or tone of voice and that sending back of jury was suggested by counsel for one defendant and neither counsel objected to judge's statement. E. Blango v. United States (D.C. App. 1975, 335 A.2d 230).

Intent

Assault with intent to kill while armed is a crime requiring specific intent. United States v. G. A. Martin (1973, 475 F. 2d 943, 154 U.S. App. D.C. 359).

In light of instructions as whole, erroneous instruction to effect that jury must find beyond reasonable doubt that defendant if he performed acts giving rise to charge of assault with intent to kill was in such a mental state that he was not capable of forming specific intent in question was harmless. Id.

Once defense of intoxication is interposed in prosecution on charge of assault with intent to kill while armed, burden rests with prosecution to establish that at time offense was committed defendant had capacity to form requisite specific intent. Id.

Lesser included offense

Counts of assault with a dangerous weapon were lesser included offenses of offenses of assault with attempt to commit robbery and armed robbery and, therefore, defendant could not be convicted of the former offenses in addition to the latter. E. Quick v. United States (D.C. App. 1974, 316 A. 2d 875).

Assault with dangerous weapon is lesser included offense of assault with intent to rob while armed. United States v. W. J. Chavis, Jr. (1973, 476 F. 2d 1137, 155 U.S. App. D.C. 190).

Where charges of assault with intent to commit rape while armed and charges of assault with a dangerous weapon arose from the same act or transaction, the latter charge, requiring proof of two of the three elements constituting former offense, merged with and became a lesser offense to the charge of assault with intent to commit rape while armed, barring conviction on the lesser offense. United States v. H. Benn, Jr. (1973, 476 F. 2d 1127 155 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Merger of offenses
